SECRETS OF
OLD CASTLE

Jewels of Great Value Have Been Found in Angeley by the Searching Officers.

MARQUIS' WHIMS GRATIFIED

Furniture and Other Articles in Mansion Are Supposed to Be Worth Fully Half a Million Dollars.

New York, July 12.—Angelsey Castle is slowly giving up its secrets, says a Herald dispatch from London. The catalogue of its contents when published will form one of the most remarkable documents ever issued from the printing press. Fictitious stories arising out of local gossip which fixed the value of the jewels and other treasures found in the castle at a million sterling may be dismissed, but the facts are in themselves sufficiently extraordinary. The living rooms in Angelsey castle are furnished in a manner that is magnificently extravagant.

According to the latest computations, the jewels that have been discovered are expected to realize at auction from $100,000 to $150,000. The original cost was probably double, but owing to the fantastic settings, their value is considerably reduced.

The approximate value of the furniture and other articles, apart from the jewels, real and imitation, that are being catalogued, probably will be something like $500,000. In the house and grounds every fancy of the marquis has apparently been gratified in the most luxurious manner. A meeting of the committee of inspection has been held which lasted six hours. The result of the conference is that there is now every prospect that the affairs of the marquis will not come before the bankruptcy court. The liabilities at present ascertained are about $1,- 250,000, and it is believed that under the proposed deed of assignment the creditors will receive their money in full, plus four per cent interest, within about nine years, providing the marquis lives that long.

The deed of assignment has been agreed to by a large number of the creditors, including three continental jewelers, who have claims for about $2,400,000 and certain English money lenders.

Army Girl Saves Ill Treated Horse.

New York, July 11.—Shoppers in Sixth avenue near West Thirty-fourth street yesterday saw a girl dressed in a white linen suit run out into the street and stop a van that was being slowly drawn northward by two horses, one of them lame.

Thomas Dolto from his van seat frowned down threateningly on the very young woman—she must have been still in her teens—who with her hand upon the bridle of one of Dolto's pair of horses stood resolutely impeding his progress.

"Git up!" said Dolto, cracking his whip.

"Stop!" cried the girl. "Stop. I say!
You cannot drive this animal. It's cruel, brutal!"

A crowd quickly collected and Pol-liceman A. W. Bossard appeared.

"I am not a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," the girl explained quickly, "but I saw the condition of this poor horse.
He can't go much farther, and it's an outrage to drive him. See that high fore fetlock," she went on. "He has ringbone. And look at these wounds under the collar. This animal should be in a veterinarian's charge. I'm afraid, though"—she looked at the wretched beast sympathetically but critically—"I'm afraid he'll have to be shot."

There was an hour's wait in the hot sun for the arrival of an agent from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It was during this wait that the identity of the young woman became known. She answered the many questions of the policeman, who watched her as she still stood guard.

She said she was Dorothy Smith, daughter of Captain E. V. Smith of the United States infantry, now in the Philippines. She was born in Texas at an army post and has spent much of her life in the west, where she gained her knowledge of horses. She is devoted to riding and driving. She now lives here with her mother.

"I'm tender hearted, perhaps," she smilingly said to the policeman, "but I have never been able to see a horse ill treated without protesting. Only last week I compelled a driver to stop abus-ing his horse in Thirty-second street.

The poor animal had to be shot."

WILL MEET AUGUST 2.

Oregon Development Convention Called to Assemble at Portland.

Portland Journal: At a meeting of the Commercial Club this morning it was decided to call the forthcoming two days' mass meeting of the citizens of Oregon who are interested in the formation of a state development league to order in the Marquam Grand theater on the morning of Tuesday, August 2, at 10 o'clock. President Coke of the Commercial Club will preside. Temporary chairman and officers will be selected later.

Through the courtesy of the Mar-quam Grand management, the use of that theater has been tendered free to the meetings of the two days, August 2 and 3. By the courtesy of the Oregon Water Power & Railway Company, four of the largest cars of that company have also been tendered to the convention, for the purposes of a trolley ride about the city to be enjoyed August 2 by the wives, daughters and other lady friends of the delegates. The Woman's Club of Portland has offered to aid in receiving the visiting ladies and will act as the guide of the visitors during their stay in the city.

The chief social event of the convention has been arranged for Tuesday evening, August 2, at which time a reception to the delegates and their friends will be tendered by the Commercial Club at the rooms of the latter organization in the Chamber of Commerce building. In honor of the reception an entertaining program is being arranged. The Woman's Club will also aid in making this gathering a success.

As for the prospects of the convention, Manager Richardson of the Commercial Club said they could not be better, and he wished to convey thanks to the newspapers of Oregon for the support which they have given the movement to found the development organization.

"If the newspapers of the state had acted as one organ, they could not have done better for the convention," said Mr. Richardson today. "The notices have praised the organization of such a league, have told of the good it would accomplish and have urged their readers to lend hearty support to the plan.

"Because of this support, there is no doubt in our mind but that good delegations will come from every county in the state. These delegates will return home, will form local organizations and these local organizations will aid in gathering valuable exhibits and information regarding the productiveness of Oregon along different lines.

Insurance Taxation.

"The occasion is not yet ripe for the mention of life insurance taxation in a national political platform," said a man prominent in public affairs yesterday, "but a good point can be made almost any time by condemning it in state creeds. Policy holders are tired of seeing part of their dividend payments devoted to meeting the requirements of onerous tax laws in states where such an import is levied, but there is no other way, for the tax comes out of them and from nobody else.

"Political platforms have been felicitiously compared to the platforms of railroad cars as something made to get in on, but not to stand on. But I sometimes think that the political party in any state which shall embody in its declaration of principles a denunciation of life insurance taxation will have at least one good campaign issue

A Woman's Headache

generally comes because of troubles peculiar to women; these troubles come from a cause simple in itself, but which Beecham's Pills will quickly remove. There are many ways in which women suffer and

A Woman's Backache is another most serious and painful experience of many women. Thousands of women are taking Beecham's Pills periodically and find them wonderful in relieving the suffering. Every woman should acquaint herself with the good these Pills can do, as

A Woman's Suffering

on which not only to fight for office, but also to stand upon thereafter.

"What sense or justice is there in demanding that men who are often practicing the most commendable sort of self-denial in order to keep their policies alive, and so protect their families, shall pay a tax upon these very same insurance contracts? That is just what they are forced to do, through reduced dividends, and any state ought to be able to find other methods of raising funds than by taxing its life insurance policy holders."

No Pity Shown.

"For years fate was after me continuously," writes F. A. Gullede, Verbena, Ala. "I had a terrible case of Piles, causing 24 tumors. When all failed Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me." Equally good for Burns and all aches and pains. Only 25c, at Chas.

HIGH BALL'S ANKLE BROKEN.

New York, July 12.—High Ball, the American derby winner, one of the best of the 3-year-olds, broke his leg at the ankle while running off the Sea Girt stakes at Brighton Beach today. As High Ball is insured for $25,000, a message was sent to the representative of the insurance company at New York to come at once and look at the Jerby winner and end his agony, but Bud May, half owner of the horse, would not consent to have him shot.
