

Seaside Social Events of the Week

Clatsop Beach, Aug. 6.—Clatsop Beach has broken her record for fashionable gatherings this week. The Bennett-Bell wedding brought down a large number of people from Astoria and Portland.

The beautiful weather brings every one down to the beach at bathing time. Those who do not enjoy surf bathing come for the purpose of watching those who do. It is particularly amusing to see such tiny children, some of them only 3 or 4 years of age, go bravely into the surf as far as they dare.

The events of the coming week will be similar in character to the preceding ones, only, being different people who build the bonfires and bake the clams, there is always the charm of newness about it.

Bennett-Bell Nuptials.

A wedding of much social importance, because of the extreme popularity of the contracting parties, took place at Gearhart Park Tuesday, when Miss Charlotte Mae Bennett of Astoria was united in marriage to Mr. Chris Alexander Bell of Portland, Rev. William S. Gilbert officiating. Miss Sue Elmore of Astoria was maid of honor, and Mr. Robert Farrell of Portland was best man.

The floor of the large veranda was covered with canvas and an altar built at the west end was beautifully decorated with moss and maiden-hair fern. The large white pillars were almost concealed with evergreens. A hanging basket of ferns and sweet peas was suspended from the archway between each two posts. The bride's attendants were Mrs. Arthur Finch, Miss Reba Hobson, Miss Sadie Craig, Miss Alice Wood, Miss Marge Halstead and Miss Laura Fox.

Promptly at 2 p. m. the groom and his best man appeared on the porch, followed by the minister, and the bridesmaids, gowned in white, came from the rear of the house, carrying sweet pea garlands, and singing "Faithful and True" from Lohengrin. They wended their way under the trees and formed an aisle on the porch. The girls of the Thursday Afternoon Club, also gowned in white, were grouped on the east end of the porch. The bride, in a beautiful white imported gown and veil, carrying a shower bou-quet of white carnations tied with tulle, came from the front door, and, walking slowly down the aisle formed by her girl friends, was given away by her mother, Mrs. W. S. Kinney.

A reception was held on the lawn, the bridal party receiving their friends under a large American flag.

Miss Sue Elmore wore a very charming gown of pale blue chiffon and carried sweet peas tied with blue tulle.

An elaborate luncheon was served, during which a number of congratulatory telegrams were read. The esteem in which the bride and groom are held was marked by a large number of valuable presents, which were exhibited on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell left for a trip to Victoria, after which they will reside in Portland.
