THE MORNING ASTORIAN, ASTORIA, OREGUN.

ed, her eyes closed, her tense little muscles relaxed, and she drooped toward the floor, The old man shifted his grip to support her, and in an instant she twisted out of his hands and sprang out of reach, her eyes shining with triumph and venom.

"Yahay, Mr. Razorback!" she shrilled. "How's that fer high? Pap 'll kill ye Sunday! Ye'll be screechin' in hell in a week, an' we 'ull set up an' drink our applejack an' laff!"

Martin pursued her lumberingly, but she was agile as a monkey and ran dodging up and down the counters and mocked him, singing, "Gran'mammy, Tipsy Toe." At last she tired of the game and darted out of the door, flinging back a hoarse laugh at him as she went. He followed, but when he reached the street she was a mere shadow flitting under the courthouse trees. He looked after her forebodingly, then turned his eyes toward the Palace hotel on the corner. The editor of the Herald was seated under the wooden awning, with his chair tilted back against a post, gazing dreamily at the murky red afterglow in the west.

"What's the use of tryin' to bother him with it?" old 'Tom asked kimself. "He'd only laugh." He noted that young William Todd, the drug, book and wall paper clerk, sat near the editor, whittling absently. Martin chuckled. "William's turn tonight," he murmured. "Well, the boys 'll take care of him." He locked the doors of the Emporium, tried them and dropped the keys in his pocket. As he crossed the square to the drug store, where his cronles awaited him.

the musing journalist. "He ought to go out there," he said and shook his head sadly. "I don't reckon Plattville's any too spry for that young man. Five years he's be'n here. Well, it's a good thing for us, but I guess it aln't exactly high life for him." He kicked a stick out of his way impatiently. "Now, where'd that imp run to?" he grumbled.

The imp was lying under the courthouse steps. When the sound of Martin's footsteps had passed away she crept cautiously from her hiding place and stole through the ungroomed grass I took Electric Bitters, which effected to the fence opposite the hotel. Here she stretched herself flat in the weeds and took from the tangled masses of bility and nerve trouble, and keep them her hair, where it was tied with a constantly on hand, since, as a find string, a rolled up, crumpled slip of they have no equal." Chas. Rogers, greasy paper. With this in her fingers druggist, guarantees them at 50c. she lay peering under the fence, her fierce eyes fixed unwinkingly on the editor of the Herald.

The street ran flat and gray in the priate service of Easter music and slowly gathering dusk straight to the ong on Sunday and will be accomwestern horizon, where the sunset embers were strewn in long, glowing, dark school red streaks. The maple trees were the air. The editor often vowed to himself he would watch no more sunsets in Plattville. He thought they were His long, melancholy face grew longer and more melancholy in the twilight, while William Todd patiently whittled near by. Plattville had often was such a quiet man was that there was nobody for him to talk to; but his hearers did not agree, for the population of Carlow county was a thing of pride, being greater than that of several bordering counties. A bent figure came slowly down the Fisher's Opera House caper. The action betokened on! anguld interest. But when he caug! whit of the first of the four subscrift ed lines he sat up straight in his chuir. with a sharp ejaculation. At the bottom of Fisbee's page was written in a dainty feminine hand of a type he had not seen for years:

"The time has come," the walrus said, "To talk of many things Of shoes and ships and scaling wax And cabbages and kings."

He put the paper in his pocket and set off rapidly down the village street. At his departure William Todd looked up quickly. Then he got upon his feet, with a yawn, and quietly followed the editor. In the dusk a tattered little figure rose up from the weeds across the way and stole noiselessly after William. He was in his shirt sleeves, his waistcoat unbuttoned and loose. On the nearest corner Mr. Todd encountered a fellow townsman who had been pacing up and down in front of a cottage crooning to a protestive baby held in his arms. He had paused in his vigu to stare after Harkless.

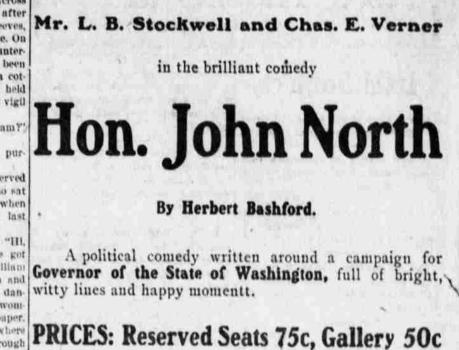

"Where's he bound fer, William?" inquired the man with the baby. "Briscoes'," answered William, pur suing his way. "I reckoned he would be," observed the other, turning to his wife, who sat on the doorstep, "I reckoned so when I see that lady at the lecture last night."

The woman rose to her feet. "III Bill Todd?" she said. "What ye got on to the back of yer vest?" William paused, put his hand behind him and encountered a paper pinned to the dangling strap of his waistcoat. The woman ran to him and unplaned the paper. It bore a writing. They took it to where the yellow lamplight shone out through the open floor and read:

(Continued Next Sunday.)

Cheated Death.

Seat sale open Friday morning at Griffin's Book store, S. Kidney trouble often ends fatally, Has always in stock a but by choosing the right medicine, E. H. Wolfe, of Bear Grove, Iowa, cheated fine assortment of A. G death. He says: "Two years ago I had Kidney Trouble, which caused me great pain, suffering and anxiety, but Boots and Shoes a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general de- MR BALL BRAND RUBBER BOOTS. The Sunday school of the Presby-* terian church will render an appro-E

Call and See. Bond Street.

panled by the string orchestra of the occossoccesoccessoccesoccessoccessoccessoccessoccessoccessoccessoccess * WHEN YOU THINK OF ploneer days, and only a few of us old man after man. Eight men went to folks know much about it." "And he was the first to try to stop of them for twenty years. The Plattthem ?

"Well, you see, our folks are pretty the Herald again, long suffering." said Briscoe apologeta stranger to stir things up, and he but as time went by and left them undid. He sent eight of them to the penitentiary, some for twenty years."

stepped into the doorway and looked what they should do to the man who at them. He was coatless and clad in had brought misfortune and terror upgarments worn to the color of dust. on them. For a long time he had been His bare head was curiously malform- publishing their threatening letters and ed, higher on one side than on the oth- warnings in a column which he headed be turned again to look at the figure of er, and though the buckboard passed rapidly and at a distance this singular lopsidedness was plainly visible to the the Crossroads far behind and had occupants, lending an ugly significance] come in sight of Plattville Mr. Bristo his meager, yellow face. He was coe's visitor turned to Fisbee with a tall, lean, hard, powerfully built. He repetition of the shiver that the laugheyed the strangers with affected lan- ter of Mr. Skillett had caused her and guor and then, when they had gone by, said half under her breath, "I wish-I broke into sudden loud laughter.

the lot," said the judge. "Harkless sent his son and one brother to prison. and it nearly broke his heart that he couldn't swear to Bob."

When they were beyond the village and in the open road again Miss Sherwood took a deep breath. "I think I breathe more freely. That was a hidcous laugh he sent after us."

The judge glanced at his guest's face and chuckled. "I guess we won't frighten you much," he said. "Young lady, I don't believe you'd be afraid of Mr. Tom Martin was putting things to many things, would you? You don't rights in his domain, the Dry Goods look like it. Besides, the Crossroads Emporium, previous to his departure isn't Plattville, and the White Caps for the evening's gossip and checkers have been too scared to do anything at the drug store, he stumbled over much except try to get even with the something soft lying on the floor be-Herald for the last two years-ever hind a counter. The thing rose and thing until he's out of the way."

intake of breath. "Ah, one grows tired and fought earnestly. Grasped by the omething before they"-

the penitentiary on his evidence, five ville brass band serenaded the editor of

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright, 1902, by McClure, Phillips (2 Co.

"They call themselves that," replied bound, and others they recognized.

Briscoe. "Usually White Caps are a Then the state authorities hearkened to vigilance committee in a region where the voice of the Herald and its owner.

the law isn't enforced. These fellows There were arrests, and in the course aren't that kind. They got together to of time there was a trial. Every priswipe out grudges, and sometimes didn't oner proved an alibi-could have proved need any grudge-just made their raids a dozen-but the editor of the Herald, for pure devilment. There's a feud be after virtually conducting the prosecu-tween us and them that goes back into tion, went upon the stand and swore to

The Gentleman

From Indiana

Copyright, 1899, by Doubleday (& McClure Co.

There were no more raids, and the fcally. "We'd sort of got used to the Six Crossroads men who were left kept meanness of the Crossroads. It took to their hovels, appalled and shaken, molested they recovered a measure of

As they passed the saloon a man their hardiness and began to think on

"Humor of the Day." When the Briscoe buckboard had left half wish-that we had not driven "That was Bob Skillett, the worst of through there." She clasped Mr. Fisbee's hand gently. His eyes shone. He touched her fingers with a strange, shy reverence. "You will meet him tomorrow," he said softly.

She laughed and pressed his hand. "I'm afraid not. I was almost at his side last night when Minnle asked him to call on me. He wasn't even interested enough to look at me."

. . .

. .

Something over two hours later, as since it went for them. They're lay- would have evaded him, but he put out clean cut silhouettes against the pale ing for Harkless partly for revenge and his hands and pinioned it and dragged rose and pearl tints of the sky above, partiy because they daren't do any- it to the show window, where the light and a tenderness seemed to shimmer in of the fading day defined his capture. The girl gave a low cry, with a sharp The capture shricked and squirmed of this everlasting American patience! shoulder, he held a lean, fierce eyed, making him morbid. Could be have Why don't the Plattville people do undersized girl of fourteen clad in one shared them it would have been dif-0 000 on garment "It's just as I say," Briscoe answer- of dust she wore over all might be esteemed another. Her cheeks were salthem. I expect we do about all we low, and her brow was already shrowdcan. The boys look after him nights, ly lined, and her eyes were as hypobut the main trouble is that we can't critical as they were savage. She was discussed the editor's habit of silence, make him understand he ought to be very thin and little, but old Tom's and possibly the reason Mr. Harkless brown face grew a shade nearer white "You're no Plattville girl," he said sharply.

SUNDAY, APRIL 23, 1905.

L, E. SELIG, - - Lessee and Manager

SUNDAY, APRIL 23

Mr. Joe Mount presents

ed. "Our folks are sort of used to more afraid of them. If he'd lived here all his life he would be. If they get when the light fell upon her. him there'll be trouble of an illegal nature." He broke off suddenly and nodded to a little old man in a buckboard turning off from the road into a farm lane which led up to a trim cottage with a honeysuckle vine by the door. "That's Mrs. Wimby's husband," said the judge in an undertone.

Miss Sherwood observed that Mrs. Wimby's husband was remarkable for the exceeding plaintiveness of his expression. He was a weazened, blank, tell your folks that if anything happens pale eyed little man, with a thin white mist of neck whisker, and he was shanty in your town will burn, and dressed in clothes much too large for him. No more inoffensive figure than this feeble little old man could be imagined, yet his was the distinction of having received a hostile visit from his neighbors of the Crossroads. A vagabonding tinker, he had married the one respectable person of the section, a widow, who had refused several gentlemen at the Crossronds, and so complete was sie bridegroom's insignificance that to all the world his own name was lost. The bride continued to be known by her former name as "Mrs. Wimby," and her spouse was usually called "Widder Woman Wimby's husband" or "Mr. Wimby." The bride supplied his wardrobe with the garments of her former husband, and, alleging this proceeding as the cause of their anger, the White Caps broke into the farmhouse one night, tore the old man from his bed and before his wife's eyes lashed him with sapling shoots till he was near to death. A little yellow cur that had followed his master on his wanderings was found licking the old man's wounds, and they deluged the dog with kerosene and then threw the poor animal upon a bonfire they had made and danced around in heartiest enjoyment.

The man recovered, but that was no palliation of the offense to the mind of a hot eyed young man from the east who was besieging the county authorities for redress and writing brimstone it I guess you might as well hand out and saltpeter for his paper. The powers of the county proving either lackadaisical or timorous, he appealed to those of the state, and he went every night to sleep at a farmhouse the owner of which had received a warning from the White Caps, and one night it befell that he was rewarded, for the raiders attempted an entrance. He and the farmer and the farmer's sons beat 'll kill ye! Leave me go! Leave me off the marauders and did a satisfactory amount of damage in return. Two kill ye!" Suddenly her struggles ceasof the White Caps they captured and

"You lie!" cried the child. "You lie! I am! You leave me go, will you? I'm lookin' fer pap, and you're a liar!" "You crawled in here to sleep after your seven mile walk, didn't you?" Martin went on.

"You're a liar!" she screamed. "Look here," said Martin slowly, "you go back to Six Crossroads and to a hair of Mr. Harkless' head every your grandfather, and your father, and your uncles, and your brothers, and your cousins, and your second cousins, and your third cousins will never have the good luck to see the penitentlary. Reckon you can remember that message? But before I let you go to carry the paper they sent you over here with.

His prisoner fell into a paroxysm of rage.

"I'll git pap to kill ye!" she shrieked, striking at him. "I don't know nothin' 'bout yer Six Crossroads, ner no papers, ner yer Mr. Harkels neither, ner you, ye razorbacked ole devil. Pap go! Pap 'll kill ye! I'll git him to street, and William Todd halled it cheerfully, "Evening, Mr. Fishee,"

"A good evening, Mr. Todd," answered the old man, pausing. "Ah, Mr. Harkless, I was looking for you." He had not seemed to be looking for anything beyond the boundaries of his own dreams, but he approached Harkless, tugging nervously at some papers in his pocket. "I have completed my notes for our Saturday edition. It was quite easy, sir. There is much doing."

"Thank you, Mr. Fisbee." said Harkless as he took the manuscript. "Have you finished your paper on the earlier Christian symbolism? I hope the Herald may have the honor of printing it." This was a form they used.

"I shall be the recipient of honor, sir," returned Fisbee. "Your kind offer will speed my work; but I fear, Mr. Harkless, I very much fear, that your kindness alone prompts it, for, deeply as I desire it. I cannot truthfully say that my essays appear to increase our circulation." He made an odd, troubled gesture as he went on: "They do not seem to read them here, although Mr. Martin assures me that he carefully reperuses my article on Chaldean decoration whenever he rearranges his exhibition windows." He plodded on a few paces, then turned irresolutely.

"What is it, Fisbee?" asked Harkless Fishee stood for a moment as though about to speak; then he smiled faintly. shook his head and went his way. Harkless waved his hand to him in farewell and, drawing a pencil and a pad from his pocket, proceeded to injure his eyes in the waning twilight by the editorial perusal of the items his staff had just left in his hands. He glanced over them meditatively, making alterations here and there.

The last one Fishee had written as follows:

Miss Sherwood of Rouen, whom Miss Briscoe knew at the Misses Jennings' fin-ishing school in New York, is a guest of Judge Briscoe's household

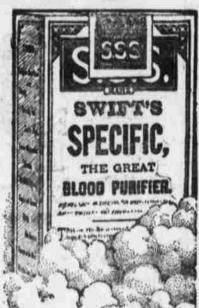

Fishee's items were written in ink. There was a blank space beneath the last. At the bottom of the page something had been scribbled in pencil. Harkless vainly tried to decipher it; but the twilight had fallen too deep, and the writing was too faint, so he struck a match and held it close to the

THINK OF SSS

A BLOOD PURIFIER

The Most Popular and Widely-Known Blood Purifier GUARANTEED PURELY VEGETABLE

This is the season that tests the quality of your blood, and if it is not good, then evidences of it will begin to show as the weather grows warmer. Carbuncles and boils, pimples and blotches, and numerous itching and burning skin eruptions will make their appearance, and are sure indications of bad blood. If spring-time finds you with impure, sickly blood, then you are in poor condition to withstand the strain upon the system which always comes at this time of the year. A failure to look after your physical welfare now, by purifying the blood and toning up the general system, may result in a complete breaking down of health later on, and you will find yourself weak and run down, with no appetite, and a prey to indigestion and nervousness. It is poor blood that makes weak bodies, for it-is this vital fluid that must supply vigor and strength to our systems, and upon its purity rests our chances for health. Any impurity, humor or poison in the blood acts injuriously upon the system and affects the general health. It is to the morbid, unhealthy matter in the blood that chronic sores and ulcers are due. The pustular and scaly skin eruptions so common during spring and summer, show the blood to be in a riotous, feverish condition, as a result of too much acid or the presence of some irritating humor or acrid poison in the blood. A large per cent. of human ailments have their origin in a polluted, diseased blood, and can only be reached by a remedy that goes into the circulation and uproots and expels the poison and restores the blood to a healthy, natural condition. If you have any symptoms fier, then think of S.S.S., best order. My system was run down and my joints ached and pained me con-established reputation going to be laid up with Rheumatism. I had used S. S. S. before, and knew what and that has proven it- it was; so I purchased a bottle of it, and Springfield, Ohio, May 16, 1903.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1908.

JOHN C. STEIN.

On two occasions I have "sed your of bad blood, and are On two occasions I have "sed your of bad blood, and are I have used your S. S. S. this spring. S. S. S. in the spring with fine results. I thinking of a blood puri- and found it to be a blood purifier of the can heartily recommend it as a tonic and blood purifier. I was troubled with her, then think of S. S. S., and my joints ached and pained me con-headaches, indigestion and liver trouble, a remedy with a long- siderably, and I began to fear that I was which all disappeared under the use of a few bottles of your great blood remedy, S. S. S. My appetite, which was poor, was greatly helped. I can eat anything I want now without fear of indigestion, and my blood has been thoroughly cleansed of impurities and made rich and strong again. As a tonic and blood purther it is all you claim for it.

MRS. GEORGE WIEGEL. 771 E. Main St.

mineral, but is composed exclusively of vegetable ingredients, selected for their medicinal properties and gathered from nature's store-houses-the fields and forests. The thousands who have used S. S. S. and know from experience what it will do in blood troubles, do not need to be reminded of a blood purifier now, for they know no better can be found than S. S. S. If you are thinking of a blood purifier, think of S. S. S., which has been sold for nearly fifty years, while the demand is greater now than ever in its history. No remedy without merit could exist so long and retain the confidence of the people. Write us if in need of medical advice, which is given without charge.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

tem builder. S. S. S. con- blood purifier and tonio. tains no mercury, pot-1533 Market Street. ash, arsenic or other self to be a specific in dis- have taken several pottles, with the result that the aches and pains I had are gone; eases of the blood, and a my blood has been cleansed and reno. superior tonic and sys- I can cheerfully testify to its virtues as a