

LORD AND MASTER

Woman's Opinion of Man as an Expert Entertainer.

DO NOT LIKE TO BE BOSSED

Hard Work Pulls a Man Down and Worry Makes Life Unpleasant for Women, Says Maud Robinson, Who Evidently Has Had Experience.

It's funny how some women enjoy rattling their matrimonial chains so that every one can take notice. It is as if they cried, "Behold me, the slave who enjoys it!"

The fun of the thing is that half the time the supposed lord and master is a mild little man, incapable of dictating to a mosquito, instead of the terrible "he who must be obeyed" they represent him to be.

"I'd like to, yes, very much, but Charlie wouldn't let me!" one often hears these self made slaves remark, whereas the truth is that Charlie wouldn't care a hang either way.

But sometimes a man really is a tyrant.

Usually, however, the woman has herself to blame for that.

A friend of mine, a great big stunging girl, married a little bit of a man with a nasty, critical way about him, as small men often have, and a very exaggerated idea of his own importance and opinions. Before her marriage she was independence personified, but since then she doesn't breathe without his permission. He criticizes everybody and everything, and she simply has no will of her own. It is almost ridiculous for this great, splendid, clever woman to see life only through the eyes of this wizened up specimen of manhood who has not the broad outlook of an ordinary man even. He tells her exactly what she shall do and exactly what she shall wear. He wags goes over the list of her lifelong friends and weeds out those he does not fancy. And she calmly acquiesces regardless of past favors and ties.

It is just as if she realized his smallness and meanness and wanted to give many men would be invited out if they did nothing but talk shop and wonder whether Jones was going to close that deal tomorrow or if the tailor would make that coat collar fit better in the back?

Perhaps—who knows?—it is this very ability to throw off cares which allows men to accomplish so much more than women.

As a rule, it is hard work that pulls a man down, while it is almost invariably worry that gives a woman nervous prostration.

Too Much Hostess.

"There is such a thing as entertaining one's guests to death," remarked the popular woman. "Nothing makes me so nervous as a visit to a house where every day has been planned out beforehand. I feel as if an invisible arm were pushing me all the time, and I want to sit down, figuratively speaking, in my tracks like a balking horse."

"That sort of thing is all right for a children's party, where complications are apt to arise if the children's attention is not kept distracted all the time, but the average adult wants some blanks in her day that she can fill to suit her own fancy. She is even glad of a chance to lounge around a bit, to read a book or merely to have a heart to heart talk and become better acquainted. Try taking it easier when you have people at the house, and, believe me, they will enjoy their visit much more." MAUD ROBINSON.

WIVES WHO ARE CHUMS.

They Never Ask the Editor of the Woman's Page For Advice.

Why are so many marriages failures? Because the bride and groom have no astes in common.

A man marries a girl because she is pretty; a girl marries a man because he has a good income or a good appearance. After they settle down together what remains? He likes to read; she wants to go out all the time. He is interested in athletics, she in poetry. She loves opera, and he won't go inside a theater unless to hear a comedy, and very often he has a sense of humor and she has none at all.

This last is positively a tragedy. If men would realize how necessary a sense of humor is in a woman they would certainly look for it more carefully before committing themselves. The trouble with most men is that they make too many allowances for the differences between men and women. They think because a girl can't understand it is because she is a woman. It is not. It is because she is the wrong woman. There is a right kind of woman for every man, and she will have the same tastes as he has; she will laugh at the same things and cry at the same things.

That is being a real chum, and it is the married chums who lead happy lives.

Most women have no idea of the meaning of being chums. A husband tries to tell his wife things, and she gives up in despair because he thinks that, being a woman, she can't understand (which is a libel on womanhood), or she makes a scene when things don't go her way instead of stating her objections quietly and giving him good advice.

The papers are full of loveless wives asking for advice, and the advice is very simple. It is the same for all: "Be his chum; be sunny and cheerful; forget your petticoats occasionally and your narrow prejudices; be a friend to him as his men friends are; share his trouble and, above all, his point of view; like the things he likes and take pleasure in the things which amuse him, and I am almost willing to wager everything I have that he will like your things and think everything you do is just about right in the end." SUMMER DINING ROOM.

How to Furnish It Inexpensively and Yet Artistically.

Dining room furniture is expensive, and the furnishing of the summer house is apt to be a heavy consideration.

Why not adopt the following plan? Buy some neatly shaped pine chairs and a table and stain them a soft Flemish green. In the center of the table have an old rose jardiniere holding a fern. The floor may be covered with a green art square, and the wood-work of the room may likewise be stained the same tone of green.

Notice the room in the picture. How artistic and yet how simple it is! The fireplace is a good thing in the dining room of a summer house on account of chilly mornings and evenings. Bits of green and white china will add to the decorative effect. The casement window is the making of the room, and it is hung very simply with dimity curtains. Any woman might have a dining room like this for a very small sum. R. DE LA BAUME.

A Psalm of Farm Life.

Tell me not in broken measures Modern farming does not pay. For a farm produces chickens, And the hens—do they not lay?

Eggs are high and going higher. And the price is soaring fast; Every time we get to market It is higher than the last.

Not a coop but it produces Every day an egg or two. So each farmer gains his millions. Even though the hens be few.

Every egg is very precious. And the hens are held in awe. When a hen begins to cackle. Then the farmer goes "Haw, haw!"

In the broad and busy farmyard Struts a rooster now and then. But the shrewd, bewhiskered farmer Only notices the hen.

Trust no rooster, however showy Be the feathers in his tail; Pay attention to the biddies. And your wealth will never fail.

Lives of farmers all remind us We may reel in wealth some day If we hustle to the market. With the eggs our pullets lay. —Chicago Chronicle.
