NEWSPAPER HOME

Newspapers of Oregon to Have a Home of Their Own.

AT LEWIS AND CLARK FAIR

Eastern Visitors Desiring Information Relative to Nearly Every Section of the State Can Find Copies of the Papers in That Section.

The Lewis and Clark exposition has "newspaper row," that title having been conferred upon the annex to the administration building which is to be used by the press. The structure, immediately at the left of the main entrance, is a long one-story building with plenty of doors and windows. At one end there is an all, above the entrance to which is a sign reading "visiting Press." In this big room any visiting newspaper man, whether he comes to work or for pleasure, is invited to make his headquarters here.
There are desks, tables, telephones and writing material, to all of which any newspaper man is welcome.

One of the features of "Newspaper row" will be that the copies of newspapers from different sections of the state, illustrated and descriptive editions of the industries and resources of the various counties will be here for distribution. Nearly every county in the state, either by subscription or by appropriations from the board of trade or chamber of commerce will be represented here with a representative from that county, who will give out copies of the newspapers containing a writeup of the locality. This is certainly one of the best advertising methods yet adopted and is certain to be productive of much good to the localities who have had sufficient enterprise to make provisions for advertising matter.

The Associated Press occupies another room. Each of the three Portland dailies, the Morning Oregonian, the Evening Telegram and the Portland Journal, have a room of their own in which the exposition staff will work. Each newspaper has placed an attractive sign in fac-simile of its title over the door. "Newspaper row" will be a highly interesting exhibit, in itself, during the fair, though the rooms are intended only for the workers or for actual newspaper men who may visit the exposition.

Many of the newspapers of the state have already issued special editions containing descriptive matter of the county and cuts of prominent buildings, both public and private, and many of them intend issuing an edition each week during the fair for circulation among the eastern visitors, looking for homes or localities for investment. In this way many of the sections of Oregon expect, and will receive large accessions to their population, in addition to millions of dollars of capital looking for investment.

There is no better way to reach the eastern visitors than through the local press. Folders and magazine write-ups will probably be in evidence but people seeking accurate information relative to any locality invariably ask for the local papers. It contains local news, personals and advertisements of the leading business houses and general everyday information from which a knowledge of the enterprise of the city or county is gleaned and upon which they base an estimate of the opportunities for investment. Descriptive articles in a magazine or a folder are productive of no good. The eastern states have been flooded with this kind of literature and every man, woman and child in the east knows that it is a paid write up, and does not give the true facts in a single instance, but is the imaginative inspiration of a professional descriptive writer.

Eugene High School Faculty Says No Home Runs.

The following edict was issued this week by the Eugene high school faculty:

"Owing to the continued course of insubordination, both toward school authorities and the executive committee, and repeated acts of falseness on the part of its management and various other members of the team, the executive committee, finding no other course remaining, have seen fit to discontinue baseball in the high school for the remainder of this season, and this shall be notice unto those concerned and their authority for bringing the baseball season to a close.
"EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE."

Another Brick Yard.

A prominent man from Ohio was in Astoria yesterday looking over the city with a view of establishing a brick yard here for the manufacture of brick from soap stone. He claims that it makes the hardest and best brick in the world, and that even tiling can be made from it. He examined some of the soap stone and pronounced it of superior quality. He will take a quantity of it back home with him, and expects to return to Astoria this summer to engage in the manufacture of brick.

Clatsop County Census.

No more of the enumerators have reported to County Assessor Cornelius this week. G. W. Lounsbury expects to start in next week to complete his district in the city. Richard Bradbury expects to complete the census of Seaside about the 15th of June. Joan Waterhouse, who has Clatsop and Warrenton districts, will file his report this week. He has enumerated over 600, which is a large increase over the government census of 1900.

Will Enforce the Law.

The duty devolves upon the sheriff and constable to enforce the law passed at the last session of the legislature prohibiting a man from living with or off the earnings of a prostitute. The penalty is imprisonment in the penitentiary. Constable Utzinger states that he will enforce the law against all professionals who are known to have no visible means of support and compel the women with whom they live to give them the money they earn.
This is one of the lowest and most dispicable class of human beings that infest a community and a strict enforcement of the law will rid the city of this untrustable class.
