Situation in Caucasus Increasingly Serious. Reports of Fleet's Condition and Apprehension of Potemkine's Arrival exciting people.

London, July 8.—A dispatch to a local news agency from Kustenji, dated this morning says the Kniaz Potemkine reappeared here today with torpedo boats and the dispatch boat Pseausap. The Kniaz Potemkine, with her consorts, entered the outer harbor and anchored near the Roumanian cruiser Elisabett.

St. Petersburg, July 8.—According to the latest reports the Kniaz Potemkine has escaped its pursuers and is still at large in the Black sea with the torpedo boat Smeltivly and the Black sea fleet hot on her trail. ## A HUNDRED DOLLARS GIVEN

SAYS FIRST WITNESS

For Claims Secured and Patented Under Williamson's Tutorship.

Trial of Congressman Williamson, Dr. Van Gessner, Marion Biggs and Others Opens and Progresses Rapidly—Jury Selected, Arguments Heard.

Portland, July 7.—The trial was commenced today of Congressman John N. Williamson, Dr. Van Gessner, Marion Biggs and others charged with conspiring to defraud the government of public domain.

The case proceeded with remarkable celerity, the jury being secured and the opening arguments made in time to allow the examination of one witness before the court adjourned.

District Attorney Heney stated in the opening argument that the government proposed to show that Williamson and the other defendants had entered into a conspiracy to suborn 100 persons and cause them to illegally obtain from the government valuable pasture lands in Eastern Oregon.

The District attorney stated that of these 100, forty-four had secured claims and that other patents were pending at the time the indictments were returned.

H. S. Wilson, attorney for the defendants, stated that there had been no conspiracy. He stated that Williamson and Gessner, in order to secure pasturage for stock had offered to advance money to settlers to come into the country and take up claims, and that the defendants had taken mortgages on the property and during the time the patents were pending it was agreed that the defendants should have the right of pasture. It was stated that agreements were made which compelled the patentees to turn over the claims to Williamson and Gessner and that the defendants exerted no claim to ownership until after the return of their money.

It was stated on several occasions Williamson and Gessner bought land that Williamson & Gessner bought land had been issued, but it was said that these had been entirely separate transactions and not connected with the advancing of money to the claimants.

Campbell Duncan, the first witness for the government, stated that he had been told by Marion Biggs, that Gessner wanted land and that if he would go on to a claim and secure a patent to it, Williamson and Gessner would advance the necessary money, in the neighborhood of $400, and when the claim was patented they would pay him $500 for the claim.

Duncan testified that he agreed with Williamson and Gessner, selected the land, advanced the money and that he gave a mortgage on it for $400. When the claim came to patent, he said, they paid him in the neighborhood of $100. When Duncan's examination was concluded the court adjourned.

SUNDAY OPENING OR TRAIL WILL BE CLOSED

(Special to Astorian.)

Portland, July 7.—At a fully attended meeting of the Trail association Thursday, the concessionaries of the amusement thoroughfare of the Lewis and Clark exposition appointed a committee to draft a letter to be addressed to the officials of the Centennial suitably presenting the dumfounding information that unless they were permitted to keep their attractions open on Sunday, they would quit the Trail. A second meeting was held this afternoon at which the report of the committee was received and acted upon. The exposition officials will be advised immediately that commencing Sunday, July 9 all Trail concessions will be open to visitors with the alternative assurance that every attraction will be closed for good if the request is not acceded to by the management of the fair.

This action of the Trail association culminates a movement started during the pre-exposition period. That the exposition attractions were to remain closed on the Sabbath was widely promulgated by the publicity bureau long before the opening of the exposition although it was known at the time that many of the concessionaries were opposed to Sunday closing and that they hoped eventually to overcome this restriction of the concessions department.

Overtures of the concessionaries have been met with almost impregnable red tape which has characterized the administration end of the exposition since its inception and the show men are now determined that their ultimatum shall be carried out to the letter in the event that the officials do not grant the concession.

Notwithstanding, to ascertain extent the exposition officials are right in being reluctant to entertain the proposition submitted by the Trail association, the St. Louis exposition was not open at all on Sundays and to this is accredited a great loss of money. Wishing to consider the arguments of every element the Lewis and Clark administration decided to open the grounds from 1 P. M. until midnight, to close the exhibit places and Trail attractions and to give band concert in the auditorium, as well as oratorios and to hold religious services. This decision met with the hearty approval of men prominent in the ecclesiastical field, and resulted in their offering the exposition company their hearty co-operation.

However, without the Trail, the exposition will prove a sad enterprise, and everything points to the capitulation of the management.
