Newport Plans Of T. F. Walsh

Career of the Colorado Crossus Like 3 Chapter from the "Arabian Nights"---Once Poor, He Is Now the Pariner of a King.

WALSH, bust-ness adviser and partner of King Leopoid of Beigium and multimillionaire mining expert, has tak-en Beaulieu, William Waldorf Astor's Newport palace, at a rental of $100,000 a year and is to entertain there in his usual princely fashion—the fashion that has already made Paris, Brussels and Washington social circles gasp with astonishment, During the summer New-port is the stronghold of New York's exclusive Four Hundred, and as an in-cident of the Walsh sojourn there Miss Evalyn Walsh is to make her social debut. She and her mother have for some time been regarded as two of the best gowned women in Washington, and the modest, genial husband and father is always at his best no matter where he may be-in the palace of a king or in a tent at a new mining camp. The Walsh home at the national capital is beyond question the finest private residence in Washington. It contains sixty-four rooms. Almost every known species of hard wood has been utilized in the interior finish, $10,000 worth of gold leaf was used in decorating the celling of the ballroom, some of the floors cost $5,000 each, there are electric elevators and a patent system of ventilation, and the mansion itself, unfurnished, cost the Colorado Croesus $1,000,000. Surrounding the house is an Italian garden ornamented with vases, statuary and other works of art, every piece of which was secured from Italy or Greece. Among the features of the mansion are a fine pipe organ, a theater and a roof garden.

The history of Thomas F. Walsh reads like a page from the "Arabian Nights." Born in the county of Tipperary, Ireland, fifty-four years ago,

MISS EVALYN WALSH. was educated in the public schools and learned the millwright's trade. At the age of nineteen be came to America and located in Colorado He was poor, but ambitious, had plty of brains and was a hustler soon made a "strike" in the 1 Hills which netted him about $100,0. For a time after this he ran a hotel in Leadville, devoting all his spare time to the study of geology, mineralogy, metallurgy and various phases of scientific mining. Finally he evolved a theory of his own that the best values would be found near mountain tops. His friends laughed at him, but he quietly went to work, and on top of the San Juan mountains at Ouras he opened the Camp Bird mines, which speedily made him many times a millionaire. From the start he paid the highest wages for the best labor, gave his men an eight hour day of his own volition, built them a handsome clubhouse on Camp Bird property and was recently able to declare with pardonable pride that he had never had trouble with his labor and had never had a strik When it is recalled that for years Colorado has been the theater of the most determined and violent struggles between miners and owners, Mr. Walsh's statement means a great deal. During his prospecting days he grew very fond of the birds that made his camp a rendezvous, and when he made his "strike" one of the first rules posted at the Camp Bird mines was that no birds or harmless beasts should be killed on the property by any employee under penalty of discharge. The camp birds are the scavengers of the mountainand follow the miner from one location to another. They become so tame that they will est out of the hand ...

Mr. Waish was United States commissioner to the last Paris exposition. and while there he met King Leopok who was dazzled by the Colorado mi. and impressed by his apparent busi ink his financial fortunes with those of Walsh, and a partnership was formed.
