George Kaboth, who came down yesterday from his seining grounds, reports the fishing season to have been an average one with him, he having caught over 70 tons of salmon, and that he will continue operations until the close of the season, though he does not expect another run of any consequence.

The run is still slack, though, with the exception of a couple all grounds have done well so far.

Charles V. Brown has accepted the appointment of admiral of the eleventh annual regatta. Admiral Brown has chosen Oswald West as vice-admiral and John C. McCue as chief of staff as a special courtesy. He has also invited the gentlemen who were on Admiral Smith's staff in 1903 to serve as members of the staff this year, to which will be added a number of gentlemen in Astoria, Portland, Salem, The Dalles and other cities of Oregon.

Dignity will be added to the occasion by the presence of Admiral Smith, who will be the guest of honor of Admiral Smith and to whom he will extend the benefit of his experience.

Because of the vim, enthusiasm and high standing in the work of making former regattas a success the 1905 regatta is under deep obligations to Admiral Brown, and his appointment to the post of honor redounds to the credit of the committee and will go far to make the annual carnival a success.

Dr. Baylis N. Earle, medical officer in command of the Columbia river quarantine station, has been appointed commander of the naval parade, while Captain W. W. Babbidge and George L. Goodell will serve as his assistants.

One of the principal events of the carnival will be a reproduction by the local Redmen, assisted by about 100 Indians, of the "Last of the Mohicans."

This will be enacted on two immense barges anchored in front of the grandstand and promises to be one of the best things of its kind ever presented on the coast.

Treasurer Dunbar has been meeting with marked success in the collection of subscriptions and in consequence work has commenced on the grandstand, which is being erected on the Flavel wharf. In connection with the regatta the suggestion is made by Treasurer Dunbar and Judge Bowby of the county fair that the farmers of Clatsop county take advantage of the opportunity and make creditable displays of the various products of their farms.

This will convince the people of this city that Clatsop county not only has productive soil, but men that know how to utilize it to the best advantage. It will also be the means of bringing the merchants and farmers together, thereby creating a better demand for home products and both parties benefited in many ways.
