PORTLAND MARKETS

Latest Quotations in the Portland Produce Markets.

Complete Market Reports Corrected Each Day Giving the Wholesale Prices of Commodities, Farm Produce and Vegetables.

Portland, Aug. 25.—Fancy creamery butter is very short in supply, and city creameries are likely to raise their prices to 32 1-2 cents per pound within a short time. Milk and cream become more scarce in Oregon from day to day, on account of dry pastures.

Fresh Oregon eggs are quoted at 23 to 24 cents per dozen today by some dealers, while others say 23 1-2 cents should be the top quotation. Dealers who have cold-storage eggs on hand have begun to take them out, though they say there is little or no profit in doing so at less than 24 cents per dozen.

Prices of new crop oats have advanced to $25 per ton, as a result of the unwillingness of growers to sell at former prices offered. The demand for oats and barley on the part of mills is good at this time.

Canned tomatoes have advanced as a result of short tomato crop in Utah. Modesto watermelons were offered at 85 cents per 100 pounds on FFront street this morning. Chinook salmon have disappeared from the market, on account of the close season. Fresh salmon are coming in from Yaquina Bay and from Puget Sound. Hens have been in good demand, and this helped the price of springs to keep up. Huckleberries are reaching this city from coast counties. They sell at 12 cents per pound.
