

FESTIVITIES END

Eleventh Annual Regatta now a Matter of History.

IT PROVES A GREAT SUCCESS

Greatest of All Regattas Comes to End—Final Ceremonies Under Most Propitious Auspices—Gratification Expressed on Every Hand.

The third and final day of Astoria's Eleventh Annual Regatta opened under most propitious auspices. The weather was charming, the great crowds were eager for more entertainment and the program was strong enough to gratify their every desire. By 9 o'clock the waterfront was swarming with the visiting thousands intermingling with other thousands of home people, the pride of the latter rising apace with the unstinted symptoms of pleasure exhibited by the former.

The scheduled events were not put in motion for some little time after the grandstand was filled, but the internum was supplied with a series of fun-making episodes that successfully weathered the delay. Professor Duroe, the submarine diver, did some of his fanciest stunts. Spencer and Weston divided honors in a lively log-rolling contest. Skibbe did his 70-foot jump and Church followed with high dives, and both led the uproar on the greased pole, both capturing the flag at its seaboard end. And the pranking only ceased at 10:30 when the Princess Sacajawea arrived on her matutinal visit to the grandstand. When the Electro had borne her away amid the acclaim of the host, she passed the signal to the judges on the Manzanita and the sports of the day began in earnest.

The motor fishboats, three in number, lined up for the initial race, and got away in fine shape. Charles Olsen crossed the line first in 1:02:11, his opponents winning out, however, on a four-minute handicap by a margin of 32 seconds.

Edward Glass and Dr. Patton went over the course in single shells with nothing lost to either in the get away. Glass taking a victory in 9:41 by a length.

P. Simmons took the $40 purse in the fishboat rowing race, which followed. J. O. Lott capturing the second prize of $30, and J. Toila, the third, of $10. The fourth man in was Andrew Lee, who took his discomfiture with apparent good humor.

T. Trullinger and H. L. Knight held the only places in the start of the gasoline pleasure launches, and Knight had to push hard to save the race on a two-second leeway.

Richard Bond then made a wonderful showing in a hotly contested canoe event, alone, against Dent and Gloss. He was allowed 20 yards to even up, and practically maintained that lead at the finish.

Dent took the single canoe trophy away from Bond in the race that followed, and did it after a sharp struggle with the backwater from a passing steamer.

The four-oared pleasure boat race between Bond and Dent, and Upton and Patton, was a well-pulled effort and closed with the last named gentlemen in a lead that could not be bragged upon.

Gloss took final honors for the morning from Patton in the single pleasure boat race, and this closed the program for the forenoon.

Everything went off without a hitch or hindrance, and the immense concourse dwindled slowly, yet happily, cityward, in search of such further refreshments as were seasonable, satisfying and calculated to fortify them for the strain of pleasure arranged for them during the afternoon.

In the net throwing contest (anchor start, tent up, coffee pot boiling, John Ekholm took the first prize; Vimo Koski, second; and H. Hendrickson, third. A protest was filed in the cat boat race, and it was recommended that purse be divided among the participants. Yachts, class "b" sailing race, Zephyr, first; Synanox, second; Albatross, third. The result of the fish boat sailing race is not yet announced. Yachts, class "c" sailing race, Naiad, first; Goddy, second; back race, W. L. McCroskey, first; Wesley Welch, second. Boys' 100 yard dash, W. L. McCroskey, first; Wesley Welch, second. Two hundred and twenty yard dash, Francis Reddick, first; William Hoover, second. Three legged race, Welch and McCroskey, first; Fake and Carlson, second; half mile run, William Woods, first; William Hughts, second.

The committee is in receipt of the following letter of felicitation from the sporting contingent which attended the regatta:

To Mr. Wise and other members of the Regatta Committee:

The undersigned take this means of expressing to you their appreciation of the courtesies extended them during the Eleventh Annual regatta, and to congratulate you upon its unqualified success:

E. Newton Atherton, V. H. Dent, Fay H. Hupton, E. O. Gloss, Julius Gloss, W. J. Patton and Diles Bond.

The following prizes were awarded by the judges of the marine parade:

Best decorated and illuminated steam craft, first Guy Howard; second Shamrock; best decorated and illuminated sailing draft, Naiad, first; Zephyr second; best decorated and illuminated gasoline craft, Restless first; Knights boat, second; boat towing largest number of sailing craft, steamer Electro.

The admiral, we understand, banqueted his staff at the Occident last night.

WILL REMAIN OPEN.

Country Fair Will Be Kept Open for Forthcoming Two Weeks.

Judge J. Q. A. Bowley, chairman of the committee in charge of the now celebrated "Country Fair," makes the pleasant announcement that this valuable exhibit will be kept open during the forthcoming two weeks. The fair has taken a rigid grip on popular favor, and its exploitation for another half month may, it is devoutly hoped, lead to the adoption of such measures as will ensure its permanency as an institution of peculiar significance and value to this city and county.

A. B. THOMAS.

(We are glad that both the regatta and our "newsy little paper" are appreciated. It is our intention to make the Astorian larger.—Editor.)

IN THE JUSTICE COURT.

Son of Erin Argues His Own Case Before the Bar of Justice.

The case of the State of Oregon vs. Maney of having committed assault on the person of Evert Hjartin, both employed at the Clatsop mill received an airing in the justice court yesterday.

The defendant who to judge from his name is a "wee bit Irish" conducted his own case, and from the testimony of himself and witnesses it seems that for the past year young Hjartin who is of Finish' extraction and of a pugnacious disposition, had on several occasions spread pitch and grease and even expectorated profusely on the lumber which the defendant had to handle. McManey protested against the habit and was promptly offered a chance to fight it out, but he, thought a large man is a cripple, avoided it until happening to slip and fall Hjartin rushed at him while he was down, he then grabbed a piece of iron pipe about two feet in length and ordered him to stop. Hjartin did so for an instant but thinking he could duck under the blow he threw himself forward and received an upward blow on the side of the head making an ugly cut.

On seeing that he had knocked the man down McManey offered to help him up but it was unnecessary as he sprang up and ran for the mill.

Later however, he became faint and McManey assisted him to the car, paying his fare, and proffering him money with which to pay his doctor bill. Justice Goodman reserved his decision until later.

OFFICIAL FORESIGHT.

The Sheriff of Clatsop Makes an Important Discovery in the Jail.

Sheriff Thomas Liville of this county has in force a rule that may stand him well in hand as a counter-play against the murderous tendencies that actuate some of the miserable creatures of whom he is the official custodian, and that is, at odd and frequent intervals, to inspect the cells of the county jail for evidences of attempted escape, or the more serious purposes of vicious assault on the officers who are brought in personal contact with the prisoners day by day.

He is wise in his day, as was proven yesterday morning when after rigid and uncompromising scrutiny of the cells and their inmates, he brought to light three vicious, amateur weapons, a billie, a tomahawk and a knife, any of which could have been used by a desperate man to the complete undoing of any less careful officer. The billie was the least harmful of the three, being too light in construction to stun or bruise and the conclusion at headquarters is it was not finished. A short, sharp knife made from the broken half of a caseknife, with a handle of wood bound on with hemp twine, and the last, a nameless sort of contrivance wrought of old nails, the pointed frame of an old iron bracket and part of a broomhandle, all tightly welded in the same hempen stuff, and stout enough to deliver a killing blow. These choice specimens of criminal ingenuity now figure in the cabinet maintained by the sheriff for such curiosities, and it is deemed an infinitely better place for them than where they were found.

The responsibility for their manufacture rests among the five inmates of the jail now awaiting trial at the September term of the circuit court, namely, Braemer, for forgery; Petersen, for burglary; Seaborg, for salmon theft; Stockton, for swindling, and Riley, for jurglary. They may have been aided by friends from the outside, but such a conclusion is rendered dubious by the nature of the stuff employed in the construction of the weapons.
