Portland, Oct. 9.-Some shipping de mand has appeared for Oregon potatoes but the condition of the fields prevents digging at this time. There has been a lack of export demand thus far this season, with the exception of a few government contracts for St. Michael, but dealers now look for orders from San Francisco and points south as well as from Alaska.

"The potato crop of the entire coast was good this year," a prominent shipper said today, "but the Oregon Bur bank commands a fair price, even in competition with the best varieties of California Rivers, Bodegas and the irrigated products of Nevada, Utah and eastern Washington. The Oregon crop this year, though not heavy, is of choice quality. The potatoes raised in the vicinity of Portland find much favor at home as well as beyond the state boundaries, and being good keepers I look for fair demand and better prices for the remainder of the season,
