Allen Baker Travels Many Miles to Join Loved Ones.

FINDS THEM IN WASHINGTON

Old Man Is Sent on an Errand to Neighboring Farm and Returns to Find His Son and Grandchildren Have Left for the West-He Locates His Relatives.

Tacoma, Oct. 23.—Handicapped by advanced age and scarcely able to care for himselw and make his wants known, Allen Baker lef his home in Clark County, Indiana, last Monday and traveled alone to Tacoma, a distance of 2500 miles, in order that he might be reunited with his son and grandchildren, who left their Indiana home a week ago yesterday without bidding the old man goodbye or telling them where they

The son and his family were located At Sumner and the meeting between the aged man and his little grandchildren in that village yesterday was an affecting

Back in Indiana, Mr. Baker's son lived in Otisco, where he worked at his trade in a black-mith shop, and his two children, a boy of 6 and a girl of 4, were care for by their grandfather, whose life had been given over to the little ones since the death of his wife four years ago. A short time ago the son decided to come West, but it was deemed best not to permit the aged grandfather to make the trip, and in order to avoid a sad parting between the children and their grandfather, the latter was decoyed to a farm, and while he was in the country, the son and his children started for Sumner. When Mr. Haker returned from the country on Monday, the home of his son was deserted and no word had been left to indicate what had become of the family.

Inquiries among the neighbors availed the grandfather nothing, but when he went to the station agent he learned that the family had departed on Saturday for Sumner, Wash,, and despite the long distance and the protests of friends, Mr. Baker purchased a ticket and took the first train for the West. On the train the old man acted queerly and the trainmen thought best to bring him into Tacoma, as he could not tell an intelligent story of where he wanted to go. When he reached this city Friday night, he was almost exhausted and was unable to give an account of himself. His money had given out and he was cared for at the police station until yesterday morning ,when it was learn-

HEAD SOLID SORE

Awful Suffering of Baby and Sleepless Nights of Mother.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Skin Fair as a Lily with no Scar to Recall Awful Sore Writes Mother.

"I herewith write out in full the beginning and end of that terrible disease eczema," says Mrs. Wm. Ryer, Elk River, Minn., "which caused my babe untold suffering and myself many sleepless nights. My babe was born seemingly a fair, healthy child, but when she was three weeks old a swelling appeared on the back of her head, and in course of time broke. It did not heal but grew worse, and the sore spread from the size of a dime to that of a dollar. I used all kinds of remedies that I could think of, but nothing seemed to help; in fact, it grew worse. Her hair fell out where the sore was, and I feared it would never grow again. It continued until my aged father came on a visit, and when he saw the baby he told me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment right away.

"To please him I did so, and to my surprise by their use the sore began to heal over, the hair grew over it, and to-day she has a nice head of hair, her skin is as fair as a lily, and she has no scar left to recall that awful sore, and it is over aight months and it is over eight months and no sign of its returning."

CURE PERMANENT

"Your letter of the 19th inst. re-ceived, asking in regard to the cure of my baby some six years ago. Well, the disease has never returned to her head which at that time was a solid sore on top and down the back." MRS. WM. RYER, Elk River, Minn.

THE MONEY CRAZE.

Wrong Standard by Which the World Is Prone to Measure Men.

The money craze, or tendency to commercialize the ideal, is found in all walks of life. Never before were so many clergymen, especially young pitiful salaries look contemptible in comparison. There are clergymen in the American pulpit preaching for a few hundred dollars a year who know perfectly well, and everybody else. knows, too, that they could make many times as much money in business careers. Many of them do not see why they should not become rich and powusing this money making capacity is ers. In other words, there is a powerto turn his creative faculties into money making channels.

Many of our lawyers are looking for big fees rather than for great legal acumen or high standing at the bar. great and learned profession, upholders of the majesty and justice of the law, as because many of them make a great deal of money from their practice. They know, too, that they are ranked by fellow lawyers largely in proportion to their ability to get big fees. It is well known that some of the men who get enormous fees and become millionaires are not great lawyers at all and have nothing like the legal ability of others who are not paid a quarter of their fees. What is his practice worth? seems to be the question by which to measure a lawyer's standing in the minds of most Physicians and surgeons are measured in much the same way. How often we hear it said, "Why, that physician has a practice of $25,000 a year." Sometimes the sum named is twice or thrice as great. Just as if this was the measure of a physician's usefulness! Of course in a sense getting enormous fees is some proof of his ability, but it is not the best evidence of a man's real service to the world.

Many authors today do not seem to think so much of putting immortality into their compositions of writing as of earning the largest amount of money possible with their pens. Few modern writers would spend years upon a tiny bit of composition or exchange their lives for a few immortal verses or a single book that the world would not let die. Success, Pather of Modern Landscape.

Constable painted the scene as he saw it, but he was not satisfied with merely copying nature. It was to him place, he tried to make it live in his lysis. He is at St. Mary's hospital. so real a companion that, in the first pictures that the clouds might move and overhang the spot, that its atmosphere might penetrate every part of the scene and that trees and water and the very plants by the roadside might move and have their being in it, and, secondly, he put his own personal affection into his representation. Then, too, in the matter of color, which cannot be judged from the reproduction, he dared to paint nature green, as he saw it, and the skies blue, with the sunshine either yellow or glaring white. It is, then, because of this closer faithfulness to the bues of nature and to the effects of movement, of atmosphere and of light and because he interpreted nature according to his own mood that Constable is called the father of modern landscape, for these are the qualities that particularly occupied the artists of the nineteenth century.-St. Nicholas.

A Unique Coat of Arms.

There was one Philadelphian who not only invented arms for himself, but new and republican arms, after discarding the ancestral arms of his famlly. This was Peter Brown, at one time an eminent citizen of Philadelphia. In 1794 William Priest, an English musician, became attached to the theater in Philadelphia in his professional capacity. In 1802 Mr. Priest printed in London a book entitled "Priest's Travels In the United States," which is now exceedingly rare. The frontisplece to this book is a strange and curious design, entitled "Peter Brown's Arms." In explanation of this frontisplece Mr. Priest says: "Peter Brown, a blacksmith of this city, having made his fortune, set up his coach, but so far from being ashamed of the means by which he acquired his riches he caused a large anvil to be painted on each side of his carriage, with two pairs of naked arms in the act of striking. The motto, 'By this I got ye.' "

A Great Composer's Inspiration. At last Wagner was possessed by "das furchtbare Sehnen," which was essential to the composition of acts two and three of "Tristan." On Nov. I he even had thoughts of suicide. He wrote the music with the gold pen presented to him by Mathilde. The third act was written with as great passion as the second. Wagner in his uncomfortable hotel at Lucerne became Tristan tossing on his couch at Kareol. Then we find him weeping while he composes Kurwenal's words, "Auf elg'ner Weld' und Wonne," etc. On Max 8, however, he had been sticking The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, week over the passage preceding "Sterbend lag ich stumm im Kahn," but the provident Mathilde sent him a package of zwieback. He dipped the "sweet, familiar rusks" in milk and consumed them, and the gates of inspiration were opened again, "God, what the proper rusk can do!" he exclaimed. Thes "Tristan" was composed.-Wagper's Letters to Mathilde Wesendonck

Swordsmanship Against a Tiger. The great commercial of killing a tiger with his sword and prizes are so tempting that their own from the back of his horse. General Nicholson performed a similar feat. He rode round and round the tiger at a gallop, gradually narrowing the circle until at last he was near enough to deliver his blow. He had only the one blow and if he had falled would have been slain. The explanation of the feat is that the tiger does not spring upon the horseman during the circling procerful. The Courage of Failure.

All honor to the man or woman who knows no such word as defeat; who follows the pathway of a consistent purpose and in the line of duty, even with the dark shadow of failure obscuring the way. To have the courage of one's convictions at all time and under all circumstances requires no small degree of character and determination. It is better to go down to ultimate overthrow in a cause which one believes to be just and right than to profit by any compromise with conscience or suffer the lowering of the moral tone which must come to all who lose the consciousness of adherence to their faith rather than wear the laurels of honest defeat.- Madame.

The Best Doctor.

Rev. B. C. Horton, Sulphur Springs, Texas writes July 19, 1899; "I have usbooks which shall live through all time ed in my family Ballard's Snow Liniment and Horebound syrup, and they have proved certainly satisfactory. The liniment is the best we have ever used for headache and pains. The cough syrup has been our doctor for the last eight years." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Frank Hart, druggist.

Columbus, Ohio, May 20, Six years ago I had a severe attack Inflammatory Rheumatism. I was laid ut in bed for six months, and the doctors in bed for six months, and the doctors I had did me no good. They changed medicines every week and nothing they prescribed seemed to help me. Finally I began the use of S.S.S. My knee and elbow joints were swollen terribly, and at one time my joints were so swollen and painful that I could not close them when opened. I was so bad that I could not move knee or foot. I was getting discouraged, you may be sure, when I began S.S.
