

IGNORE PRECEDENT

Newly Elected District Attorney Will Follow Law.

THREE FOLLOWED CUSTOM

Attorney Says He Will Not Authorize Bills of Interpreters and Medical Witnesses, Also Will Not Pay Travel-expenses of Witnesses.

Boston, Dec. 19.—"I intend to ignore all customs established by my predecessors. Where the statute fails to give me authority to direct payments by the county treasurer, custom cannot give me such authority. This office is to be conducted during my administration in accordance with the law."

This declaration by the newly elected district attorney, John B. Moran, last night accompanied an announcement by him of several radical changes in the conduct of the district attorney's office, Mr. Moran claiming that his predecessors in office have been guilty of authorizing payments over which they have no control.

In his announcement today the district attorney declares that he will not, because he has not the authority to authorize bills presented by interpreters and medical witnesses in payment for their appearance before the grand and petit jurors; he also refuses to authorize the payment of witnesses traveling expenses beyond the limits of the state; declines to authorize police officials to draw money from the county treasurer to pay the expenses incident to bringing to this state any offender captured outside the boundaries of the commonwealth. In this last contention Mr. Moran is supported by the attorney general, Herbert Parker.

Mr. Moran's claim is that under the statute, interpreters and medical witnesses in the courts are entitled to only ordinary witness fees.

The medical examiners in Suffolk county receive $4000 a year for their services and this, Mr. Moran claims is sufficient compensation for the work they do. They have been accustomed to receive $15 for each time they testify before the grand jury and $25 for each appearance before a petit jury.

MORE COMFORT THAN EVER.

On Sunday, December 17th, the Denver & Rio Grande railroad will inaugurate a daily line of standard and tourist sleeping cars between Denver and Los Angeles in connection with the new Clark road. Both cars will leave Denver daily at 9:30 a. m., and arrive at Salt Lake City at 1:35 p. m., the next day. At this point the cars will be held over until midnight, thus allowing through passengers the privilege of a stop-over of ten hours and a half in Salt Lake City. Eastbound, these cars will leave Los Angeles at 8 p. m., and arrive at Salt Lake City at 6:30 a. m., second morning where they will remain over until 3:50 p. m., thence to Denver where they will arrive at 4:20 the following afternoon. This stop-over at Salt Lake City of the regular line of sleeping cars promises to be an attractive feature for transcontinental travelers.

READING HABITS.

You Must Cultivate System if You Would Improve Your Mind.

The mind is a very delicate, complicated piece of mechanism, and, although made to do a certain kind of work marvelously well, yet, when put to an entirely different use, its efficiency is ruined, just as the delicate machinery intended for producing fine watch parts would be completely spoiled for this purpose if used to make clock parts. When the mind becomes deflected to a certain extent from its normal condition by the vicious reading habit, it diverges more and more and rarely goes back to the normal.

By desultory habits of reading and lack of system you confuse the mind with a large mass of unclassified material. You pick up a book and read a few pages and then pick up another one and then go from that to a paper or magazine. This puts the mind in a chaotic state, because you let everything run into the mental reservoir without any order or definite plan. Systemless reading is profitless. You cannot gain knowledge of a friend or prize his friendship by a hasty first impression, so in reading a book you cannot gain everlasting good by skimming over its contents or by reading a few pages one night and then putting it on a shelf to gather dust until you get time to read it again. Everything comes out of the mind as it went in, and if it does not enter in an orderly manner it will come out in chaos.—Success.

EARLY DINING.

In Ancient England It Was at 10 o'clock in the Forenoon.

The ordinary hour for dinner in England in the fifteenth century appears to have been 10 o'clock in the forenoon. In the larger baronial castles a lavish hospitality was practiced, but even among the lower ranks, says a contemporary, the "bona fide traveler" could always be sure of a welcome and the best provision that the house afforded. To shut the door upon the houseless stranger was an offense which the church would not readily condone, and it was remarked of more than one who had erred in this respect that luck ever afterward deserted him. The approach of the meal was often announced by the blowing of horns, so that wayfarers might hasten their movements.

Curiously enough, grace was said before the tables were laid, and the guests appear to have had their appetites whetted in a most salutary manner by regarding the movements of the attendants as they spread the cloths and brought in salt-cellars, drinking vessels and other necessaries. To wait on others at table was considered rather honorable than otherwise, and the story of the Black Prince attending to the wants of the captive French monarch contains nothing extraordinary. In the households of the great the carvers and those who presented the wine at table were never less than squires and often nobles and barons.—Family Magazine.

Irritant Drugs.

The use of tea and coffee, says an authority, who includes tobacco as well, is injurious and ought not to be indulged in by those who seek to place themselves in the best condition to resist disease, because they belong in the category of irritant drugs. These, by rousing the vital forces to get rid of the poison, provoke the action which is mistakenly supposed to be an added force, whereas this action is only one of self preservation. It will readily be seen how much supporting and building up of the system there are in such substances by trying to live on them to the exclusion of other things. The result would prove the absurdity of the idea.
