Adventures of the Explorers Moorcroft and Hearsey.

In the year 1812 Tibet was entered sey, the first Englishmen to penetrate the forbidden land. Hearsey describes one of their experiences at Daba: "After breakfast this day (July 4) Umar our respects to the wazir's son in a council assembled with the lama and the son of the deba. We proceeded about 9 o'clock, attended by the pundit of superfine scarlet broadcloth, some sugar and spice, all arranged on a brass plate. We first entered a gate, very large and handsome dog, something of the Newfoundland breed. We then had to stoop to enter another door, filthy enough, stench abominable. We then proceeded up a few steps of earth chamber, to the right of which was the women's room.

"A greasy, filthy purdah was then lifted up, and we entered the parlor. Here we found a clean mirzal, or poor woolen carpet, spread for us in the ceater of the room. In front was a vacant seat, opposite to which our presents were placed. On the right sat the lama on a cushion; before him was placed a kind of ten poy (three legged table), on which were two wooden varwas also a fire pan. The old gentleman from the cubbio. appeared about seventy years old, had a shrewd countenance, said very little and eyed us all the time. He was dressed in a coarse woolen red garment, the manufacture of the country. greasy and dirty in the extreme. This was the bishop of this see.

ble, though rather heavy looking, person; aged about twenty-nine or thirty. He had a paper in his hand at our entrance, as if in the act of writing. He Frank Hart and leading druggests. was seated on a leather cushion stuffed with wool, over which was a carpet: before him was a sort of small table, on which were two of the wooden plates before mentioned, a china cup. an inkstand, a wooden pen and a knife. To his right lay a long silver pipe. He was dressed in a red, blue, green and yellow striped woolen gown."

Very suspicious were the old priest and his fellows, though a letter from a neighboring seat of government explained to them that Moorcroft and Hearsey really were harmless pilgrims and not the dreaded Firingis and requested that they might be permitted to proceed. On the next day, however, matters were again somewhat complicated by the discovery that Hearsey wore half boots of the English pattern. When the natives discovered this they thought that something was surely wrong. Mooreroft, in his narrative, told of this incident with evident relish, he himself having taken the precaution of having turned up toes added to his own shoes.

Wealth of the Ancient Romans. Some of the Romans seem to have been very "solid," while others were fast to a degree not known nowadays. When Caesar was killed on the ides of March, Antony owed $1,600,000, which he paid before the kalends of April out of the public money and squandered. according to Adams, $28,000,000. Caesar himself, before he set out for Spain, was in debt to the extent of $10,000,-000. Lentulus possessed $16,145,830. Claudius, a freedman, saved $12,500,-000. Augustus obtained from the testamentary disposition of his friendssome people will leave their fortunes to their sovereigns-no less than $161,-458,330. Tiberius left at his death the enormous sum of $108,964,380, which Caligula is said to have squandered in a single year. Vespasian estimated at his ascension that the money which the maintenance of the commonwealth required was $1,764,580,000,

The Whitest City In the World. There cannot possibly be a whiter city than Cadiz unless it be built of snow. The best way to approach the port is to take a trip on one of the small steamers which ply between the ports of Morocco and Spain. As you near the coast you see in front of you a white mass, which appears to be floating upon the water, just as you are. The first thought of a foreigner is that he is in sight of an teeberg. The white mass, glittering in the sun and rendered more dazzling by the blue sea and sky, looks exactly like a monster ice mountain partly melted, so that outlines of eastles and hill appear upon it, but only for a second does the Illusion last, for you know there are no lcebergs in that part, and you are quickly informed that you are looking at Cadiz. No other town in the world presents such a magic appearance.

No Science of History. "The moving finger writes and having writ moves on." We can no more stop or guide its writing than could the wild man whose relies we look for in the drift of another geological period than ours. What is still more humiliating, practically we can no more tell what it is going to write even tomorrow than could that cave dweller. In truth, there is no science of history. Conceive a man more learned than Freeman in history, greater in science than Darwin, deeper versed in human character than George Eliot - yet he could not even roughly draw the map of Europe as it may be a little time hence. The heap of letters which God put in the hand of his empire builder. bidding him "make with them what word he could," are still in constant disarray.-London Saturday Review.
