The Statesman is authorized to anand sweeping confession. This confes-FUNDS sion is far more important than Or-

"This statement was made last evening by James McParland, the famous detective in the presence of Governor Gooding and H H. Hawley who is in charge of the prosecution.

"McParland added that Adams' confession is fully and exactly corroborated by that made by Orchard at every point ouched upon by both.

"Moreover, McParland continued, Adams knows far more of the workings of the 'Inner Circle,' than Orchard, and was able to give a mass of detailed information which Orchard's confession does not

"The confession of Adams, he said, is orroborated by that given by Orchard, in every substantial point connected with the assassination of Steunenberg. Adams, however, was not at Caldwell at the time of the assassination, nor with Orehard at the time of the unsuccessful attempt in November. The man who assisted Orchard on the latter occasion was Jack Simpkins.

"Still another statement made by the detective was that Adams' confessions gave the details of a large number of murders not referred to in any manner by Orchard. He further stated the confession had been reduced to writing, signed and acknowledged. It was a voluminous document, covering a greater field and in more detail than that made by Orchard. A further statement was made, that Adams had made his confession without being promised anything. When talked with about the

The Governor's statement also denies the statements that the prisoners are not well treated. The Governor's statement concludes by saying a committee of the trades council was given permission to visit the penitentiary after which it reported that it found conditions much better than it had hoped for, and that Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone, Adams and Orchard had no ground for Orchard Testifies.

Before the grand jury at Caldwell this morning Orchard completed his testimony in the Steunenberg case. It is said he went into great detail about the matter, telling the jurymen what induced him to undertake the crime, how much he was paid, etc. During the afternoon several other witnesses were examined, including former Lieutenant-Governor Hutchinson, who first formulated the theory that the murder was accomplished by means of a bomb. The jury may take additional testimony tomorrow, but it is not expected any indictment will be returned until early next week. Orchard is quoted as having said to one of the officers who guarded him, tonight: : "Now that my mind is unburdened of
