PORTLAND, March 5. Onion-growers in the locality tributary to Portland complain that they have lost money this season though they did very well the last one. A good many first class onions are still held by these growers, who find it impossible to sell them, though the season is late. Australian onions are expected within the next four weeks.

Thomas Boggess, a dealer in potatoes and onions, sums up the situation thus:

"Last fall the onion crop was injured to a considerable extent by cold rains and subsequent frosts. The farmers refused to sell the onions that were not injured, and forced the dealers to take the poorer qualities. These were shipped to California at a loss, and now dealers refuse to take the good onions at any price. Then the farmers are left with the best part of their crop on hand and only the local demand to rely on."

Mrs. B. W. Evans, Clearwater, Kan., writes, My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said he had quick consumption. We procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, and it cured him.
