Thirty-four Athletes Make up the Team of Stars Who Will Represent America in the Olympic Games at Athens, Greece.

MEETING FRUITLESS NEW YORK, April 3.—Sailing on the North German Lloyd steamer Barbarossa, for Naples today, are the athletes making up the American Olympic team which takes part in the games at Athens Greece, from April 2 to May 2. The team will proceed from Naples by rail to Brindisi and then by special steamer to Athens. Before sailing the men were all in high spirits and apparenty in the best possible condition. They talked over their plans and listened to much good advice from those who wished thefu well. M. P. Halpin, the team manager, expressed satisfaction in the condition of the men. He said:

"Those who may not be quite fit will get so in short order, if care and close attention to the rules and regulations count for anything. They form a really exceptional lot of men, and America will have reason to be proud of them when the games are over. There is this George F. Baer stated last night that to be considered: If one or two men should be out of condition on any day there will be other stars in the same class who may be relied on. Hawailan Ruckleberry.

On the island of Hawaii are great thickets of the obelo, or Hawalian huckleberry (Vaccinium reticulatum), which the natives consider sacred to Pele, the goddess who is supposed to preside over the famous crater of Kilauea, and which, together with white pigs and chickens, are thrown by them into the boiling red lake during an eruption to appease the wrath of the aggressive dame and thus cause the rivers of lava to cease flowing on their destructive course. These berries grow in clusters on low bushes right on the very brink of the brimstone beds and are so numerous that a bushel may be easily gathered in half an hour. In appearance they somewhat resemble a cranberry, and the flavor is pleasantly suggestive of grapes.
