Very Busy Day Along Astoria's Waterfront.

ALASKA FLEET ARRIVES

Word Received of Safe Arrival of Astoria Fishing Fleet at Nushagak, Alaska—Northland Left Out—Roanoke Due Down.

A letter has been received at the office of the Alaska Fishermen's Packing Association, on Bond street, in this city, announcing the safe arrival, at Nushagak, Alaska, of the Astoria fleet which left here in April last. The communication is from Superintendent Berlund, of the Association's northern canneries, and gives the following dates of arrival: Steamer North Star, arrived on May 3; steamer North King, on May 5; and the ships James Drummond, St. Nicholas, and Berlin, on May 15. Mr. Berglund adds the pleasing intelligence that every soul in the fleet is well and hearty.

The steamer Robert Dollar from San Francisco, bound for the Sound, arrived in this port on Wednesday evening, with a slight break in her machinery, which occurred shortly after her departure from the Bay City; she was making pretty good time up the coast, but her master deemed it expedient to call in here for some coal, not knowing how long his store might last him, and while here will fix the break that is retarding her progress. She will probably leave out this morning for Seattle.

The testimony in the matter of the recent collision between the barkentine Jane L. Stanford and the steamer J. B. Stetson, was all submitted in Portland, on Tuesday last, before Inspectors Edwards and Fuller, of the federal service, and the decision in the case will be forthcoming as soon as the same has been carefully weighed and reviewed. Neither Captain Mollstad of the Stanford, nor Captain Bonafield, of the Stetson cares to talk until the authorities have dealt with the case.

The big, handsome Potter arrived down at 1:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, with quite a crowd of beach-hunters on board, including the "Yellowstone" expedition of young ladies, sent out from Portland, and including in that happy party, Miss Tille Davenneau of this city. The young people will remain at the coast until Saturday when they will return to the metropolis, and start for the real objective of the journey.

The steam schooner Yosemite arrived in on the afternoon of Wednesday, and was to have loaded at Tongue Point mills, but was compelled to leave up yesterday for Linton, where she will load for San Francisco, owing to the fact that the local longshoremen will not load a vessel carrying a non-union crew. A very poor reason for sending a steamer out of this port to load.

The steamship Roanoke is due to arrive down from Portland, sometime this morning, bound for Eureka, San Francisco, and Port Los Angeles.

This is summer vacation time for the bar pilots. There is not business enough to keep the full staff going constantly, at this time a year; hence, Captain Howes, McVickar, Wood and Gunderson are off for the present month, and will alternate with their colleagues during the quiet season.

The steamer Northland went to sea yesterday for San Pedro.

The barkentine Chehalis is now busy loading railroad ties at the Knappton mills.

The steamer F. A. Kilburn left out for San Francisco, on the morning of the fourth.

The barkentine Tropic Bird went to sea yesterday, bound for San Francisco with lumber from Vancouver.

News has reached here of the sailing of the schooner Churehill, from Manila, for this port and Knappton.

The barkentine Mary Winkleman has sailed for San Pedro, having left out yesterday on the hawsers of the Wallula.

The Portland-Asiatic liner Arabia was among the sea-going fleet on the fourth. She left out under the pilotage of Captain Staples, for Hong Kong.

The barkentine Echo has almost finished her loading at Knappton. She will carry 850,000 feet of lumber to Sydney, Australia, and will clear in a few days.

The steamship Aragona is due in at any hour from Nagasaki and trans-Pacific ports; Captain Archie Peases being down to receive and pilot her up to Portland.

The Italian ship Caterina Accame is well along with her loading at the Simpson mills at Knappton, and will sail for Antofagasta, Chile, as soon as the last stick goes on board. She will take out 1,500,000 feet.

The harbor of Astoria was conspicuously decorated in national bunting on the fourth and made a pleasant prospect for homefolks and for visitors. There is nothing so effective as a well decorated ship and nothing that takes to bunting half so well.

The "Telegraph" arrived down on good season yesterday with 61 people for Astoria, and among them eleven ladies and gentlemen of the Willard Stock Company of players, which opens at the Star next week in "A Western Gentleman."

The five-masted schooner Louis was to have loaded at Knappton but could not be accommodated with a berth, and in consequence, was hauled to the Tongue Point Lumbering Company's dock yesterday, by the steamer Melville, and will load there.

PREMIER SEDDON DIES.

Distinguished Statesman Dies On Ship-board From Fatigue.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 5.—The steamer Aorangi, which arrived last night, shortly after the steamer Owestry Grange returned with Premier Seddon of New Zealand, dead on board, the steamer's return causing great excitement. Officers of the Aorangi report that the late New Zealand Premier's death was accelerated by over-fatigue. He had not slept for two nights before embarking owing to receptions and conferences with Premier Deakin of Australia and was too fatigued to sleep when he embarked for New Zealand. His last public utterance touched on American interests in the South Pacific. It was made in a speech in which he expressed regret that the British Colonial policy had prevented the annexation of Samoa and Hawaii, and, incidentally, he recited an interesting account of his visit to President McKinley regarding a proposal for joint British and American occupation of Hawaii. The speech was made in response to a delegation to himself and Premier Deakin from the Presbyterian Church asking that steps be taken to secure the annexation of the new Hebrides, now a joint protectorate of France and Britain. The speech, the last the dead premier made, was an assertion of Colonial rights. He pointed to lost opportunities telling how Samoa had requested to be annexed to New Zealand and a vessel was prepared to proceed but the British government had said it must not be done. Something should be done with regard to the new Hebrides, and especially with regard to the digging of the Panama Canal and the changes that would result in consequence in the South Pacific. He said another opportunity had also been lost in connection with the annexation of Hawaii.

NO TRUSTS IN ENGLAND.

Lord Northcliffe Says Britons Are Too Stupid To Have Trusts.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Lord Northcliffe, better known as Sir Alfred Harmsworth, the publisher, arrived yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, to visit Forest Land in New Foundland, which the Harmsworth corporation has obtained from the colonial government for the manufacture of paper pulp for its publications.

Lord Northcliffe had as fellow passengers, Charles Shibley and K. Wilson, leading writer on English labor topics, and also author of the Standard work, "Ironclads in Action."

Lord Northcliffe had not heard of the railroad accident at Salisbury in which 23 persons, mostly Americans, lost their lives until informed by a reporter who met him on the ship. He said:

"We have very few accidents in England. The people that are wrong will be punished, and the inquiry will be a very, very thorough one."

Of insurance matters, Lord Northcliffe said:

"I don't believe American companies remaining in England, unless they put up a surplus sufficient to meet their claims, will be able to do business."

"Do you have a paper trust in England?" he was asked.

"We don't have any trust at all," said he. "No trusts. John Bull is so stupid that he won't have any trusts. Say that. Say those very words."
