COLONEL ROESSLER SAYS THAT THE PROJECT SHOULD WAIT—ENGINEER SUBMITS ANNUAL REPORT ON BAR CONDITIONS

That appropriations made by the government for the improvement of the Columbia River bar have been judiciously expended is evidenced by the fact the channel there has been deepened fully a foot during the past year, as shown in the annual report of the district engineer, which was made public yesterday by Lieut.-Colonel Roessler, of the United States Engineers. The bar has an average minimum depth of between 23 and 24 feet for the entire width, and in places the last survey, made in June, reads 25, 26 and even 27 feet.

This encouraging movement is attributed to the results accomplished through the extension of the jetty from the south shore, as the bar dredge Chinook has not been in commission during the period covered by the report. The recent survey also indicates the channel is developing in a southwesterly direction. With a depth of at least 23 feet at low water, and allowing between seven and eight feet for tides, it is shown a depth of 30 feet is easily obtainable that will afford an abundance of water for nearly all deep-draft vessels plying on the Pacific.

The fact is also brought out that the crest of the bar is fully 800 feet narrower than it was at the time of the last previous annual report forwarded to the War Department. This is regarded as a most encouraging indication and is taken to sustain the contention that the waters are gradually being confined until with the finishing of the south jetty greater results will be shown, and if the north jetty project is carried out, as recommended March 16, 1903, a permanent depth will be secured, which will forever eliminate the necessity of continuous work and heavy expenditures.

In dealing with the situation Major Roessler calls attention to the fact that when the original jetty project was started in 1884 the good effects were noticeable, and by the time of completion in 1895, there was a depth on the bar of 31 feet. This was for over a mile wide and obtained in a southwesterly direction. Shoaling followed soon, and by 1902 the depth had decreased fully 10 feet. Further extensions of the project, as approved in 1903, for 2½ miles brought the stage to between 23 and 24 feet.

The jetty work is made the all-important matter, and with a trifle over a mile of the south project yet to be carried out a large appropriation will be needed next year. That an additional mile of trestle and enrockment will demonstrate a decidedly further increase in depth is the opinion held, and if the same conditions are met with on the north jetty project the most favorable gains are anticipated.

The uniform depth extending the width of the bar is a peculiar condition, and no other such case is thought to exist on the globe. The sand carried out of the river is beaten back by the heavy

Boats Capsized.—During the rough weather of the past two days fishermen at the mouth of the river have experienced some strenuous times and not only have a number of boats, together with the gear been lost but it is feared that some fishermen have been drowned. The fishing boat of John Jurmu and John Wuhkola, who fish for the Columbia River Packers' Association, was overturned in the storm of Thursday, and the two men barely rescued by the Cape Disappointment Life Saving crew. Boat No. 624 of the Columbia River Packers' Association occupied by John Lund and Axel Marlen was also capsized late Thursday night, and the occupants only succeeded in saving themselves by reaching a pile of the jetty, where they managed to climb upon the jetty, and cling until daylight yesterday morning. They were rescued almost exhausted by workmen on the jetty.

The Promoting Committee. The recent departure made by the directorate of the Irving Club of this city, to put that institution in line with the rapid development of Astoria, by the organization of a promoting committee has been made manifest by the appointment of the following named gentlemen as a special group to work in the behalf. The appointments were made yesterday by President G. C. Fulton: C. R. Higgins, A. Dunbar, John Gratke, J. N. Griffin, A. L. Fox, Harrison Allen, B. VanDusen, R. J. Pilkington, John Nordstrom, F. J. Taylor, W. L. Robb, J. N. Laws, F. R. Stokes, H. L. Henderson, C. G. Palmberg, James Finlayson, C. J. Trenchard, R. B. Dyer, J. C. McCue, W. A. Sherman, Emil Palmberg, J. E. Higgins, W. C. Logan, O. B. Estes and F. L. Parker.

A. O. U. W. Grand Lodge.—On Tuesday next the Oregon grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will convene at Portland, at which time and place the grand lodge of the Degree of Honor, the women's adjunct, will gather and Astoria will be represented at both grand sessions by the following well known ladies and gentlemen: A. O. U. W., William Ross, Thomas Dealey, F. D. Winton, W. C. A. Pohl and John A. Montgomery. The D. of H., Mrs. A. R. Cyrus and Mrs. J. A. Fastabend. The latter lady is grand chief honor, of the Degree of Honor; and Mr. Pohl is a grand trustee of the order in this state.

Big Game Sunday.—The big game of baseball scheduled for tomorrow afternoon on the A. F. C. grounds between the Shamrocks of this city and the Schillers nine of Portland, will undoubtedly be the best that has been witnessed on the local diamond this season. The Schillers are recognized as the champion amateur nine of the state if not the Northwest, and the locals are determined to wrest their laurels from them tomorrow.

Off For Boise.—Frank W. Smith, the well known representative of the Eiler Piano House, has been ordered to Boise, Idaho, when he will look after the interests of the company there, as resident manager. He is a live business man and a friend-maker of the first.

Rescued.—The Point Adams Life Saving Crew picked up two boats and three nets after the storm of Thursday night. E. F. Peterson and Thomas Siene, Victor Carlson, and John Holmes were picked up by the life boat and saved from a watery grave.

Bright eyes are an infallible index to youth, windows from which Cupid shoots his arrows. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes bright eyes, rosy cheeks. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. Sold by Frank Hart.

Back From Springs.—Pat Kinney and Charles Wischo have returned from the mineral springs at Condon, Oregon, where they accompanied A. Seafeldt, who will spend a few weeks at the springs in order to obtain some help for his rheumatism.

Funeral Yesterday.—The funeral of William Wilson was held yesterday from the Pohl undertaking parlors, Rev. Rydquist officiating. The interment was at Greenwood cemetery.
