BIG GAIN IS MADE BY A & C. R. R.

INCREASE OF 30 PER CENT SHOWN IN BUSINESS ORIGINATING ON A. & C. LINE—7,300 CARS USED IN HAULING LUMBER LAST YEAR.

Though the combined lumber business handled by the Harriman and Hill systems in Oregon for the year ending June 30, 1906, amounted to less than 28,000 cars, statements completed yesterday of the trade along the line of the Astoria & Columbia River for the same period show the lumber and its products hauled filled 7,300 cars, and all originated on less than 80 miles of road. The figures also show an increase of 1,300 cars over the same period ending June 30, 1905, and it is estimated fully 30 per cent of the cut of the mills supplying the business went by water to California points because of the shortage of cars.

While the company had 6,000 cars of lumber to its credit last year, the total could have been materially increased if cars were available. Reports today show that for September and October there are orders booked to fill 2,000 cars, but it is doubtful if more than half can be moved for the same reason. Between Goble and Seaside there are 30 mills, and they cut an average according to their respective capacities, of 40,000 feet a day each on single shifts, or in all 1,200,000 feet.

There is a steady trade enjoyed by some of the mills with San Francisco and Southern California ports, which goes by water, and in the event of equipment being scarce more vessels are chartered to take care of the rail shipments shut out. The prospects are that the mill products will be turned out in larger quantities during the coming period but in the opinion of railroad men there is no hope that the car situation will improve materially. Summed up, the situation is the development of the Pacific coast has advanced beyond the power of the railroads now in the field to keep abreast, and the only solution expected is the entrance of other transcontinental systems into the territory.

J. W. E. Taylor Resigns—J. W. E. Taylor who left the United Railways company recently to become chief engineer for the Astoria & Columbia River road, has resigned and gone to San Francisco, where he may accept a position which has been tendered him. C. W. Root, who was formerly identified with the A. & C. engineering department, has been appointed chief engineer and is directing the surveys being made on the coast extension from Seaside to Yaquina Bay. Mr. Root arrived in Astoria a few weeks ago and came from Eureka, Cal., where he was prominently connected with the Hammond interests. Engineer R. P. Habersham, of the Corvallis & Eastern, has started a gang running a line between Yaquina and Newport, a distance of between six and eight miles, according to the route selected. The company will extend the road around the bay and it is to enter Newport on Front street.
