

Pride of Kentucky.

JUST take a glass And mingle in't A young and tender Sprig of mint. Some pineapple. A cherry red And just a little Twisted shred Of orange peel; Of ice about As much as you Would gather out In one fistful From where 'tis packed; Now fruit and mint And ice that's cracked Are in the glass; To help the cause Put in a couple Of long straws, And while the ice Steams up and melts You've got to put in Something else— I—don't—know—what That—do, do you? Or else I guess Perhaps you dot But put it in. Shake it a lot. Then taste and tell Us what you've got.—Houston Post.

A Foregone Conclusion. "Pa, what is a foregone conclusion?" "Something that you know will happen before it does. For instance, it's a foregone conclusion that if your mother should come into this room now and see me with my feet cocked up and my cigar going nicely, as you see me, she would immediately think of something that— Ah, there she comes! Listen!" "Henry," she said, "I wish you'd see if you can't do something to the dining room window. I can't get it up or down. And when you get that fixed all the hinge of the kitchen door. It squeaks terribly."—Judge.

A Literary Repast. "John," said the poet, "time for breakfast, isn't it?" "Yes, sir—high time!" "Did you warm that sonnet over?" "I sure did, sir!" "And the love song?" "It was warm enough already, sir." "All right. Just pour a little ink in the coffee cups and ring the bell!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Their Honeymoon.

"They got married and went away in their new motor car." "Oh! Where did they spend their honeymoon?" "In the hospital!"

Too Much For Him.

"No," said the man who occasionally lets out an audible thought, "I can't figure it out." "Can't figure what out?" queried the party with the rubber habit. "Why all the women under sixty are not over thirty," answered the noisy thinker.—Chicago News.

The Limit.

Tess—Miss Giddy must be really seriously ill. She hasn't any appetite at all. Jess—Nonsense! A girl isn't always ill when she has no appetite. Tess—But she has no appetite even for ice cream and candy.—Philadelphia Press.

His Motto.

Well Digger—Now, we have found a mighty good vein of water, but there is nothing like being doubly safe and sure of the supply. Suppose we dig it, say, twenty feet deeper. Owner—No. I have always had for my motto, "Let well enough alone."—Judge.

Tried It.

Church—When you feel blue you want to go out and try some roller skating. Gotham—That's just what I did. "What was the result?" "I came home black and blue."—Yonkers Statesman.

Superior Wisdom.

"Mr. Raspem seems to be a most overhearing and self-satisfied man." "Not always. You ought to see how humbly thankful he is when his chauffeur unbends and consents to tell him a little about the machine."—Washington Star.

Fonts of Information.

"Who is the best informed woman in your city?" asked the visitor. "Mrs. Dressalot," replied the native. "Ah! Is she a college woman?" "No; but she patronizes every dress-maker in town."—Judge.

Morning Astorian, 60 cents per month delivered by carrier.

Time to Change. "Ladies and gentlemen," said the lecturer after bowing to the first round of applause that followed his introduction. "I propose this evening to address you on the all important subject of the training and rearing of boys." It is a broad subject that is demanding more and more attention every day. In the beginning, and in order to lay a broad foundation for the proper treatment of this great subject, I will—"Excuse me, professor," interrupted the harassed little man who was almost hidden away in the corner, "but how many boys have you?" "Well, er, um—well, the fact is, sir, I have no children at all," stammered the lecturer. "That's all right, then," said the little man, sinking back into his seat. "I was afeared you had a few of 'em, an' if you had I knowed it was a cinch you didn't know nothin' about raisin' 'em. You kin go ahead and I'll listen, 'cause I'm lookin' for expert advice on the subject." But somehow or other the lecturer thought best to change the subject.

A Summer Romance. Summer maiden. Full of fun. Summer fellow. Chapter one. Moonlight evening. Naught to do. Tender topics. Chapter two. Sparkling diamond. Love will be ever cherished. Chapter three. August passes. Girl no more. Likewise diamond. Chapter four. Young man wakens. Heart to mend. Love next season? No! The end.—Perrine Lambert in Judge.
