The case is novel in that the Supreme Court has original jurisdiction and as contempt is a question of fact and not of law, testimony may be adduced. In case the Court overrules this point, his counsel will endeavor to prove that the Sheriff did what he could to protect the prisoner, and therefore was not in contempt. Counsel for the other defendants rest upon the contention as to the appeal and also offer sworn statements of their clients that they had no hand whatever in the lynching of Johnson. They accepted as conclusive, and if the court is not satisfied then the defendants must be prosecuted for perjury. Such prosecution would take the case
