In these emergencies. Their work was thoroughly appreciated by the officers and crew of the bark and not less by every citizen who was aware of it.

Everybody in the coast country down about the scene of the wreck was made aware of the impending disaster in some telepathic way, and literally swarmed out to render what assistance they might to the imperiled crew; and, as is usually the case in such matters, nearly all were equipped with big, or little, bottles of liquor, which under certain circumstances may have done a certain amount of good, but which, in the instance under consideration, was altogether too generously applied and to the ultimate discomfiture of several of the Iredale's crew, who were too drunk to make good with the rest of their fellows in reaching this city. A bottle of whiskey is the most tempting of all creature comforts to a sailor, or, afloat or ashore, safe, or in a stress, and this was proven all too plainly yesterday.

The wreck of the Iredale will be one of the sights for some time to come, and it is said the A. & C. railroad people will endeavor to arrange to carry visitors as close to the derelict as possible in the immediate future and thousands will avail themselves of the opportunity to see her, riven, dismantled, inert and abandoned, high on the raw coast.

Quite a number of Astoria citizens, including press representatives, A. & C. railway people and others, went down on the noon train to take a look at the wrecked vessel, but the fearful weather conditions and the fact that the crew was already at Fort Stevens, precluded the two-mile walk in the face of the gale and the visit was abandoned.

Immigration Inspectors Brandt and Hussey went down to overhaul the crew in the interest of their governmental department, and marshalled the men before Dr. Holt, government quarantine officer, at this port, as soon as they arrived here.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES.

Inter-Collegiate Committee to Meet Tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—There will be a meeting of the Intercollegiate football rules committee tomorrow at the Murray Hill hotel. It is called in answer to the request emanating from the conference of football officials held at the Murray Hill two weeks ago for the purpose of interpreting the code. A number of additional questions have arisen since that meeting, calling for decision. All these will be decided and finally settled at this meeting. Most of them are of minor importance, but the question of the meaning of the rule prohibiting the drawing back of men from the line to carry the ball or interfere, is far-reaching in its significance. This will be among the matters taken up. It is expected that with the exception of the western members there will be a full attendance of the committee membership.

ASSESS CORPORATIONS.

State Tax Commissioners of California Increase Tax.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—According to the report of the state tax commission which has been in Berkeley for the past three days finishing its final report for submission to the Legislature, the corporations of the state will be assessed on their gross receipts and not on their net earnings. This kind of taxation has been taken out of the hands of the counties and hereafter the State of California will exercise the right of taxing the public service utilities throughout the state. This tax will support the state, and local property tax will support the county. The commission also recommends that the assessment of real property shall be based on the actual value of the property in question. The commission also favors a low tax rate.
