Pilgrim Joe a Man of Integrity

ssues a Statement Concerning His Pair Alleviator and Tells What lt Contains.

[Copyright, 1996, by Ruby Douglas.] TATEMENTS have been made by envious rivals in business that call for prompt denial. My Pilgrim Pain Alleviator is not made by a trust. I am the original and sole inventor, and I am putting it out from humanitarian motives. If I can make 30 per cent and keep my humanitarian motives to the front at the same time I shall ask for no greater reward.

My alleviator contains no breakfast

It has nothing to do with life insurwho was blown up by a powder magazine. Nothing but his left ear was found, and I do not pretend to alleviate fragments.

There are forty-eight full doses in every bottle, and the empty bottle makes a beautiful yard ornament at a seaside resort.

The price is the same the year round. It cures frost bites in winter and dog bites in summer. After licking the blade of an ax on a frosty winter morning nothing will soothe your injured feelings like my alleviator.

The bottle is so thick that the chilthren can play horse with it. In the west it is a favorite missile for farmers to throw at hors.

No matter what other so called alleviators appear in market, do not be deceived. Ask for the old and time tried and take no other.

After three months from date all botties will be made earthquake proof. Quakes may come by day or by night and with what force they will, but the bottle of alleviator sitting on the parlor table will remain undisturbed and be an asset to begin business on anew.

At the Galveston flood one of my bottles floated across to the West Indies and cured four patients when opened. At the San Francisco fire one was warped to the shape of the letter "S' and still preserved its contents.

Ascertain that your family druggist is not a horse thief before asking him if he sells Pilgrim Joe's Alleviator.

I was making for the town of Busted Ben one day last week, feeling in my usual good specrits and wondering why all men could not figger out that integrity paid 30 per cent profit and no afterclap, when I met up with an old cuss on foot who seemed to be made up of smiles and blandness. We stopped to pass the time of day, and by and by he said:

"Pilgrim, it warms the cockles of my heart to meet thee. I have just bought a site for an orphan asylum, and I wouldst have your opinion on the same. Come with me and view the spot where the fatherless will gambol by day and sleep by night. Later on, if thee sees fit, thou may contribute to the grand charity."

As founding orphan asylums has always been right in my line, I turned aside o'er the prairie and foffered him. After walking for half a mile he stopped and said:

"Behold the spot! Here is peace and rest and quietness. It is five miles to the next habitation. No corner saloon, no ward heelers, no trouble and travall. Here shall the orphan rest and sing his song and fear no danger."

I was silently admiring the landscape, which consisted of a hundred acres of prairie and a lame hoss, when I felt something hit the back of my neck, and two hours had passed when I opened my eyes to earthly affairs ag'in. Then the bland and smiling old kuss had long departed, and with him had gone my outfit. It had been a put-up job on a good and innocent man. and it had succeeded. For a time I knew not which may to turn. My specilta was down to zero and my faith in integrity nil. Thus for a few minutes, and then I fallied and set out on foot toward the town mentioned. As I walked I remembered that Integrity had never deserted me yet and that even in railroad rebating I had lived to see virtue triumphant.

It was after dark when I got into town, and what was my surprise to find that old smiling and bland kuss selling my alleviator on the public square and passing himself off for me. I gave him more rope and then at a critical juncture closed in on him. When the populace found that it had been deceived there was no more work for me to do. The people did it themselves. During the fervid excitement I managed to turn the victim's pockets wrong side out and possess myself of their contents, and when invited to see him tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail I was present in the front ranks.

Integrity made one of the biggest triumphs of the decade. It was almost as good as uncovering the operations of a coal road. I had sought my couch amid the plaudits of the multitude before I thought to count my cash. When I did so I found that not only my own had been restored, but I had $40 belonging to the bland and smiling old kuss who was coated with tar. It was then that I determined never to doubt integrity again.

Two days later I was jogging along between the towns of Hell Bent and Angels' Roost when I encountered a female. It is ag'in my principles to encounter one when it can possibly be avoided, but this female was weeping. and it seemed my dooty to cheer her up. She was going my way, and I oftered her a lift. Tearfully she climbed up beside me, and when I had given her five minits to subdue her emotions I

Then I looked more closely at her but attracti supearance. and did not find it in my heart to blame him, though I hold that no woman is to blame for looking unbeautiful. She can't help it more'n a mulley cow can help being born without horns."

"I goeth in sarch."

"Of another man?"

"The same-that is, I was in sarch of another, but I have found him. Where thou goest I will go."

She stole her arm around my waist and snugged up to me, and the tears went away and sunshine illumined her

"I am not free to marry," I said after awhile. "Back in the state of Indiana dwells an old woman who watches and waits for me. She may continer to watch and walt for years and years to come for all she'll ever see me, but nevertheless the legal part of it still holds. Love and matrimony are not for Joe." "Never in this vain world will I let thee go!" says the woman, with a great deal of fervor.

It was then that I called upon ined. The off fore wheel fell into a rut, and the female was pitched out on the soft prairie on her head, and by the time she had scrambled up I had the old hoss under moshun, and her efforts to overtake me were in vain. M. QUAD.
