CLUE TO BOECK.

Detectives on Trail of Missing Jewelry Broker.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Private detectives have succeeded in obtaining a clue which may lead to the arrest of J. Edward Boeck, the missing jewelry and curio broker. The men who have suffered losses through Boeck believe generally that he is on his way back to China where he spent several years, including the time of the Boxer uprising. Boeck left behind him in his office at 177 Broadway, a lot of rare China, and creditors are hoping to obtain some return from it for their losses. There are at least four claimants of this china.

M. R. Guggenheim holds a chattel mortgage on it, he says, for $14,000 for money loaned; Morrison and Shiff have a claim on it as lawyers for a chattel mortgage company and F. D. Cheshire, American Consul General at Mukden, China, has instructed his attorney here to replevin it for him. Boeck declared that the china was worth about $50,000. There are said to be about 60 pieces, including four huge vases of unique design, worth $1000 each. Boeck asserted that one or more of these vases was 4000 years old.

CHAMBER COMMERCE TO ADVERTISE

PROMOTION COMMITTEE VOTED $400 A MONTH TO ADVERTISE IN PAPERS—SUBSCRIPTIONS BEING VOLUNTARILY INCREASED.

An important meeting of the Promotion Committee of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the rooms of the Chamber at which the decision was made to begin an advertising campaign in the classified columns of the daily and weekly papers of the East, and in the classified columns of the magazines, amounting to $400 per month. This amount will be raised to $1000 per month as soon as possible. This $400 will be expended regularly each month for the balance of the year.

Chairman George W. Sanborn presided and there were present besides Messrs. G. C. Fulton, F. L. Fulton, J. T. Ross, Dr. T. L. Ball and Frank Patton.

Manager Whyte read a printed list of 45 advertisements and these evidently made a good impression upon the committee as Chairman Sanborn said he would voluntarily raise his subscription $10 per month to help this advertising campaign which he believed would be more helpful to Astoria than anything else that had ever been undertaken for the benefit of the city, regardless of how much money may have been expended upon any past effort. The advertisements were read before the last regular meeting of the Chamber at which there were present a standing room attendance and at this meeting they elicited a salvo of hand-clapping applause.

Manager Whyte explained to the Promotion Committee that when he had made up his mind to come to Astoria he had then expected that Astoria would be in a position to devote the sum of at least $25,000 a year to advertising. With that sum, the least amount the manager believes the city should consider for advertising purposes, he believes that the future of Astoria would be absolutely assured and that within two years the proof of the pudding would be in the eating. Mr. Whyte does not expect to accomplish any feats of slight-of-hand or legerdemain, but believes that judicious, sensible advertising will do more than anything else to make Astoria grow.

The advertising which the Promotion Committee will immediately place, will be placed through the C. C. Chapman Advertising Agency of Portland, and it will cover every part of the United States, but most of it will be placed in the large daily papers of the eastern states and in the classified columns.

Without reproducing the advertisements in detail, it may be said that the 45 ads which Mr. Whyte prepared, are made up of nine series, and they invite correspondence from nearly every conceivable class and profession and business occupation. It may be that several stenographers will presently be required to take care of the Chamber's business.

Among the various things the Promotion Committee will advertise for, besides immigration in general, are 10,000 woodshoppers, who can go into the backwoods hereabouts and chop their way out rich, needing nothing whatsoever for the process excepting a sharp ax and the main strength necessary to handle it. It is one of the general immigration ads, the reading is as follows: "If you had come west 10 years ago you would have been a millionaire now. Just stop and think what Reine did. There are many men in your city as smart as he is."

Another of the general immigration ads which will be inserted in all of the daily papers of the big cities under the head of "Business Chances," reads: "You who have been clerks for 20 years, do you want to die clerks, or would you prefer to come west and grow up to be a real man and property holder? Out west you can win a home, make a good living and be independent, a real citizen with a chance to go to Congress or to the Senate, to be the Governor of a great State."

Among the other things advertised for, are able-bodied laborers with families, farmers, real estate agents, contractors, parties who would be interested in a shipbuilding plant, the largest ever built on the Pacific Coast; capitalists who are looking for the best opportunities to invest; millers and capitalists generally who would become interested in the largest flour mill in the world; sawmill and lumber people who would invest in the country where there is more standing forests than anywhere else on this continent; for small manufacturers who can manufacture such things as doorbumpers and clothespins out of the wood refuse now going to waste; for lumber people and for logging camp people generally; for capitalists and manufacturers who would become interested in a wagon and vehicle manufacturing establishment; for capitalists and manufacturers who would become interested in wood-working plants generally; for capitalists and manufacturers who would become interested in a furniture factory; for capitalists and manufacturers who would become interested in a soap-making plant; for deep-sea fishermen who would become interested on the co-operative plant or otherwise in a deep sea fishery to be established here on a very large scale; for capitalists and manufacturers and for money generally that would become interested in condensed milk and cream factories here, which would very greatly help and stimulate the dairying interests; for those who would locate here and operate dairies generally; for capitalists and manufacturers who would become interested in a paper mill; for capitalists and manufacturers who would become interested in a brick-making plant; for market gardeners, for domestic servants, for poultry raisers; for alfalfa farmers, for potato farmers, for apple, cherry and plum fruit growers; for hop farmers; for nut planters, the walnut being the nut particularly advertised; for hog raisers, as this is one of the best countries on earth in which to raise hogs, rutabagas growing to perfection and are of themselves a perfection hog food. And as Manager Whyte advertises, a cow can be raised here in the all-the-year-round-green-grass country as cheap as a hen.

Potato farmers are given pointers showing how they can make $600 an acre off of Oregon land and always get the very highest prices for their potatoes. He also points out the fact that Oregon butter is always at a premium, as it should be, because of its par-excellent quality.

Manager Whyte is also writing for the Promotion Committee to all of the various towns and committees contiguous to Astoria asking that they form co-operative committees to work with the Chamber of Commerce, to list dairying and other lands, to take care of newcomers that may be sent to them, and to an advertising fund on whatever they may believe that the circumstances and the purpose justifies, and sent it
