MURDER SUSPECT

Damaging Evidence in Elm Hurst Murder Case.

BLOODY CLOTHES LOCATED

Henry Becker Arrested For Murder of Fifteen-Year-Old Girl—Claims He Was With Man Who Committed the Deed.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Further damaging evidence has been found against Henry Becker, the suspect held for the murder of Amelia Staffield, at Elmhurst, L. I. Wednesday, according to the police today. Following the dramatic confession of Becker before the coffin of the girl in which he said he saw the murder committed and claimed that it was done by a man in whose company he was, but did not know, the police report that they found in a Chinese laundry at Elmhurst, a shirt which Becker had taken there shortly after the girl was murdered. The shirt had two large spots on it, which looked as though they were blood stains. The shirt was obtained by means of a laundry ticket that was found in Becker's pocket. The discovery of the garment, with its suspicious spots, is considered significant, in view of Becker's statement that he had nothing to do with the murder excepting that he stood by as a witness. The police argue that the stains, if they are blood, could not have been made unless Becker stood closer to the victim of the crime than he admits. Another link in the increasing chain of evidence is a small handkerchief which Becker had in his possession. In one corner there is embroidered the initials "S." The handkerchief was missed on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Eva Simonson shortly after the disappearance of Becker and his companion who had cleansed their hands at her pump. There are several small spots on the handkerchief. The detectives believe they are blood stains. They will be analyzed by a chemist. Mrs. Simonson has identified the handkerchief as that of her son. The police have secured a minute description of Becker's companion, and have every confidence that they will have him in custody within 24 hours.

FORCED TO SERVE

ious scruples against capital punishment could not be permitted or required to serve. He asked the counsel what they had to say about the matter. Borah questioned Tourtellotte further on his willingness to inflict the death penalty on the members of an organization seeking to destroy society, saying that the state was quite willing to rest its case on that proposition. Tourtellotte restated his position as to anarchy but protested that this was the case however, and satisfied the state.

Neither side would challenge nor offer and further suggestion and there the matter rested. Counsel for the state said privately after adjournment that the incident could not constitute an error in the case and that there existed no means whereby either side could in the future plead it. It is thought probable that when it comes time to swear the jury, Tourtellotte will refuse the oath and compel the court to excuse him from serving.

Both sides found a pay streak of qualification in the second section of the special venire and besides Tourtellotte two other talesmen qualified. They are Finley McBean, whose examination was in progress at adjournment last night and E. F. Crow, a retired farmer who now lends a little money for a living. Crow was almost immediately challenged by the defense but his appearance, however, brief, lifted the case and the challenge forward. The defense also challenged Juror John Whitlock today and the state challenged Juror George McIntyre. The vacancy created by the sixteenth challenge is still unfilled, there are four challenges unexpended and there are 12 talesmen of the second special venire left unexamined. The pay streak ran out before the day was over and unless there is mighty good luck with the little squad of unused talesmen there will have to be another adjournment sometime on Monday and a third special venire ordered.

The long strain of jury getting seems to be showing on the nerves of those who are doing the work. Today when the state challenged a talesman for bias, Attorney Richardson remarked that the state had tried enough to qualify him. Hawley took serious offense at the remark and said that it was untrue and asked for the protection of the court saying that things are going to be different from now on.

Judge Wood told him to sit down, but the order had to be repeated before it was obeyed.

The court continues to stiffen against the release of talesmen on excuses light and frivolous. Today Judge Wood took a hand in the examination of every talesman and made sure of the existence of disqualification before acceding to it.

RUSSO-GERMAN ANARCHISTS.

Men and Women Students Plot to Kill the Kaiser.

LONDON, May 25.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail says that the arrest recently of several Russian students here was the result of accumulated evidence that they were associated with a Russo-German anarchist plot to assassinate the Kaiser. Thirty-five, including three men and women were arrested. The police had to act harshly in making the arrests, as one man and a woman tried desperately to escape.

turbed labor conditions existing in San Francisco.

Acting upon instructions received from Washington, United States District Attorney Devlin will make a thorough investigation next week into the attack upon the Jap restaurants on Folsom street in this city about two weeks ago. Devlin said tonight that he had received a message from Attorney-General Bonaparte about 5 o'clock this afternoon asking that an investigation of the incident should be made and a re-

Devlin will commence an inquiry next Monday. A separate investigation will be made by Governor Gillette. The latter said tonight he had heard nothing of any violence having been committed lately against the Japs. The incident are regarded as so insignificant it attracted no attention or comment and the fact that this alleged trivial affair had been made a subject of representations by the Japanese Government created surprise here.

TOULON FIRE.

TOULON, May 25.—Much alarm was created by the discovery of another fire at the naval dock yard. Flames in a clump of brushwood near the remains of the battleship Iena. Firemen extinguished the flames before they reached the buildings.
