INDUSTRY VERSUS POLITICS

As the years go by with their evidences and results appertaining to the great industry of salmon fishing on the Pacific, the more we are wedded to our conviction that the business must be absolutely divorced from politics if it is to flourish and expand under the nurture that is provided.

If state aid and superintendence is to make no more real progress in the matter than is of record to this date, it were better that the whole matter be left to the fishermen and the cannery and all statutory requirements cancelled at once and forever. The great trade would get along infinitely better in the hands of experts trained to its last essential, than to have that expert interest invaded and hampered by an officialism at once incompetent and costly.

The question is a vital one to this whole upper coast country and in all that realm it is conceded that the fisher and the cannery are the only people who really know the actualities of habit and season and development of the salmon fish; and the logic of leaving the manipulation of the industry to them, permitting them to devise and control the hatchery operations, is becoming more and more apparent every season, nor will a step in this direction be very boldly disparaged if it shall be taken.

WOMEN IN BAR-ROOMS.

The keynote of the ugly situation prevailing in this city was struck when the order was sent out to keep women from the bar-rooms of the city.

This move broke away the vital allurements and deadened the initial step to debauchery, and was the most wholesome procedure taken in many a month. From the hour it was put into effect, there has been a constant exodus from this city of the people who had become absolutely unnecessary here, and the closing of the dancehalls, though a precedent step, was sealed once for all, with the second, but most important mandate.

It was high time some such steps were taken and the city will feel the impetus of it later on. Reactionary movements of this sort are always momentarily deadening, but the effect wears off in time and normal conditions ensue; and Astoria is not destined to suffer unduly from this movement to purify her municipal skirts. She will get credit for it at home and abroad and profit by it immensely in the end. The plea that it curtails the civic income, while in a measure true, but accentuates the necessity for a very general subsidence of public expenditures and a course of economic reformation that has been delayed far too long. The day of regeneration is at hand, and Astoria has a plain duty to perform as imperative upon her as upon other cities of Oregon that have met and performed it.

MESSAGES OF MERIT.

The Astoria Chamber of Commerce is rapidly becoming a powerful agency for good under the progressive and inspiring tactics of Manager John H. Whyte and is gaining the ear of the country all about us, in good shape. He has been indefatigable ever since he arrived here, and has met with sharp and prompt encouragement at the hands of the membership in all the practical steps he has inaugurated for the development of the city and county.

The latest movement in this behalf is the advertising of the whole territory hereabout in every State in the Union,

The Right Age For Senators.

By United States Senator E. W. PETTUS of Alabama.

I DON'T think we ought to have boys in our legislative bodies, but it isn't a GOOD BUSINESS POLICY to send to congress men who are over fifty-five or sixty years of age. I was seventy-six when I entered upon my duties as United States senator. I was too old then, and I haven't grown any younger in the ten years I've been at work on the floor of the senate. My notion is that men from forty to fifty years old—the average man is in the PRIME OF HIS MENTAL VIGOR at that age—ought to be elected as senators and then kept in service as long as they are able to do the required work.

and 45 live papers are now heralding the claims of Astoria and Clatsop to the nation in quiet and effective terms, and will soon bring results upon which may be builded a campaign of acquisition that will not end for years to come and never if it is followed to logical establishment.

First and last the newspaper is the best medium on earth for advertising anything, from cities to socks, and the campaign just started is a forerunner of success of the amplest sort because it is based upon the soundest method of exploitation and one that demonstrates itself hourly in every enterprise and community of the land. It has the approval of the Chamber and the citizen, and are all squarely behind it.

EDITORIAL SALAD.

Abe Hummel might have suspected occasionally in his devious career that it would some day be "23 for his," but when he got it he couldn't have foreseen the restraint and the stripes.

After all its opponents had condemned the Liberal government's bill for Ireland, the Irish themselves reject it. That settles home rule for this session of Parliament.

Chaplain Chidwick, of New York, told the police they are not nearly as bad as they are said to be. They would like to believe him because he is a good man.

None can escape. We knew the writers of stories about animals they never met would be fired upon by the President as soon as he got the range.

The Octopus and Lake have demonstrated their ability to keep foreigners out of Newport society if they attempt to come in by sea.

As to the reason for the Japan Society—why, it may be for the purpose of stowing visiting Japs of importance under the table.

The man who sheared the flock of sheep in Central Park, New York, evidently still believes in someone tempering the wind.

Shipowners as well as striking longshoremen, in the East, show remarkable self-restraint in the matter of arbitration.

The New York City office holders seem to have cornered a lot of that Ohio political harmony.

There's a good job open for somebody as press agent for Japan.

One fact and thirteen rumors make a busy day in Wall Street.

A nice, fresh frost for breakfast is a good appetizer.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

There is probably no medicine made that is relied upon with more implicit confidence than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. During the third of a century in which it has been in use, people have learned that it is the one remedy that never fails. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take. ### TECHNICALLY-EDUCATED MEN NEEDED

Not Enough to Meet the Demand of the Industrial World—Graduates of the Technical Schools Sought Eagerly by Employers.

Some time ago a large industrial concern of the East sent a representative to Pittsburgh with the authority to employ one hundred draftsmen and engineers with thorough technical qualifications. The representative was able to secure only forty, and these he had to pay anywhere from fifty to sixty per cent more than they were then earning to induce them to change.

The incident emphasized the great demand there is for technically trained men in every part of the United States. Not only are their services required at high salaries—in all kinds of construction work, but they are as much in demand for administrative positions. A large proportion of the men at the heads of the various railroad companies are those with engineering educations, and it is stated on good authority that sixty per cent of the officials of the steel industry are technically trained men.

Such is the demand for the man with a technical education that a writer in a recent number of a national industrial publication refers to him as the "autocrat of the business world," meaning that he may command almost any salary within reason. The same writer cites the fact that industrial employers are eagerly seeking the graduates of the technical schools, and mentions an instance where one firm wanted to employ the entire graduating class of a well-known engineering university.

No single agency has done so much to give men technical training as has the International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa. By the unique methods of this great institution, young men may gain thorough technical training in all the leading engineering trades and professions, without giving up any employment that they may have. In almost all large industrial concerns of America these Schools have graduates working with the graduates of leading universities. The Schools can point to thousands of cases where men formerly working as laborers or occupying inferior positions have, through the I. C. S. perfected system of training by mail, become engineers, superintendents, managers, foremen, or heads of their own enterprises.

In fact, the International Correspondence Schools make it so easy for the ambitious man, in his spare hours and at small expense, to rise to the level of the high-salaried experts that no man can now say truthfully that he lacks opportunity.

The International Correspondence Schools are represented in Astoria by Mr. H. Harris, who is always glad to give any one, free of charge, information concerning any of the more than 200 courses of home-study offered by the I. C. S.
