A TIMELY REVIEW OF THE LATEST MODES (Special) By JUDIC CHOLLET

HERE AND THERE.

Modes in Motor Hats—Trimming For Jumper Waists and Etons.

In motor hats the Romney shape, with its deformed brim cut closely away in front and baggy crown, is favored. This is really very becoming to the wearer, although it sounds anything but attractive.

There is no question as to whether the overskirt is to be a note in summer fashions as it is seen on the prettiest afternoon costumes.

The cap sleeves seen on many jumper waists and Eton jackets may be

For morning the brown silk sunshades are rivaling the green shades which have been popular for so many seasons. They are shown not only in the ruffled parasols, but in those fastened in tucks and hemstitching.

The gown pictured is of green and white striped voile. The ruffled skirt is very smart and easy for the house dressmaker to manage. The skeleton bodice has a blouse and sleeves of lace.

Golfing Dresses in Various Materials. Stripes For Tall Women.

The golfing dresses of the year are made of various materials—cheviot, English suiting, Scotch plaid, French face cloth and even heavier grades of silk. But the most fashionable of fabrics is serge. There are cashmere golfing suits that are very smart, made as trim pony coat suits, though the flannel ones are liked by women who are on the field constantly.

Even very tall women are affecting stripes this season, contrary to all blashed and fastened across with tiny velvet bows and the jacket fronts held together in the same way.

A favorite way of trimming the small mushroom hat is with bouquets at the side with a bow of ribbon between them. A change from this style is to place a huge rose or a bed of leaves and buds around the rest of the hat.

Very sheer foundations are used for the new embroideries, the patterns of which are done in heavy effect. Clifton or thin vellum is sometimes used as a foundation for holding an embroidery done with heavy floss.

Picture leghorns with large bows of flowered gauze are wonderfully alluring and cheap for a garden party hat. When the gauze is employed it does away with the necessity for the more expensive flowers.

Bracelets in yellow dull finished gold in openwork designs are attractive. One of these bracelets forms a spider web all round the wearer's wrist. A diamond fly and a ruby eyed spider glitter in the golden meshes.

Young girls find the jumper waist peculiarly suited to their needs and consequently have hailed it with delight. Here is one that is as charming as it is simple. As illustrated the blouse is made of pale blue messaline, with trimming of cream lace edged with pale blue velvet.

Stunning Effects in Striped Voils. Smart Silk Sunshades.

Checked voile in a dark color with white dots makes a stunning bodice that will be particularly serviceable for wear on cool spring days. As the material is too sheer to be practical, a slip of some dainty light silk must be used as a lining.

Although the linen parasol is still exceedingly fashionable, the silk parasol seems to be also decidedly popular among the newest early summer fashions. The lingerie parasol, with its wealth of lace and embroidery, will undoubtedly hold its own, but the plain linen parasol for less elaborate occasions, which was so overwhelmingly popular last season, must this year share the honors with silk sunshades.

All sorts of weaves in straw are fashionable, although the preference is for the lighter and more transparent. Crin is used again, but the extremely fine straw is really smarter, the best hats being light in weight, no matter how much trimming there is on them.

soap and water and look as well as ever. They must be dried on the hands.

Colored patent leather belts are the newest. They have large gilt buckles, and the price of the belt depends on the elaborateness of the buckle.

All white embroidered swisses are always modish and serviceable, and there are many pretty new designs in these popular fabrics. A charming piece is of gray and white with lavender dots. This combination, by the way, is a favorite one with designers.

The Chesterfield coat pictured is one of the latest developments of the mannish idea among wraps that is essentially smart in effect. This one is designed for young girls and can be made either in the hip length, illustrated, or longer if liked. Covert cloth is used in the present instance.

of the whole problem of railway oppression and monopoly, and determined to continue his journey across the continent and lay the matter before the president. As Mr. Meeker has been promised the support of the National Good Roads Association and the national automobile organizations, it is not at all impossible that he may yet see his dream come true.

If the cigarmakers' strike in Havana continues much longer it is feared that J. Pierpont Morgan and John W. Gates may be forced to abandon the famous black cigars, which have contributed so much to the atmosphere of Wall Street and betake themselves to pipe smoking. Pessimists even talk of a smokeless New York. Dealers throughout the city are in dismay over the announcement from the importing jobbers that most of the popular brands of Havana cigars, especially those in dark colors are exhausted. The trust was well stocked with the lighter and more fashionable shades of cigars when the strike began a month ago, but even those are pretty well used up now, and prices are rising.

Already the rank and file of New Yorkers who indulge in Cuban cigars are finding their favorite brands cut off, and are turning in despair to the Porto Rico products. New York smokes about 200,000 imported cigars a day, at prices ranging from ten cents up to half a dollar. Cigarettes, however, have not been affected by the strike, and the atmosphere has suffered accordingly. Even the odor of the five cent cigar threatens to become worse because of the advanced price of domestic tobacco, particularly the Pennsylvania product, from which many of the cheaper brands are made. Of cigars of all kinds, including stogies, New Yorkers consume 1,000,000 a day, the weekly cigar bill of the metropolis amounting to $3,000,000 or nearly $16,000,000 a year. The demand for American cigarettes, however, is on the decrease in New York, their place being taken to a large extent by the milder flavored ones of Turkish, Egyptian and Asia Minor tobacco.

Fifth Avenue has a mystery, a mystery that has set the coldly reserved jewelers in the vicinity of Fifty-fourth street, and the members of the University Club, as well, to casting anxious glances in the direction of No. 4 West Fifty-fourth street, which is sometimes the home of John D. Rockefeller. The cause of it all is the appearance of the Standard Oil magnate in a new role. Never before within the memory of the oldest inhabitant of the street has Mr. Rockefeller been known to occupy his city home at this time of the year. Heretofore, in summer he has always been in Lakewood, Pocantico Hills, Cleveland, or some other place equally inaccessible to the process server. A few nights ago he surprised his neighbors by appearing in front of his house in company with two strangers. One of them is said to have been smooth shaven, with gray hairs. The other had a dark beard, tinged with gray. For two hours the trio walked up and down the block, talking earnestly and gesticulating emphatically. Next night the mystery deepened by the reappearance of Mr. Rockefeller and two other strangers. Again, as on the previous night, he walked up and down the block, his arms locked fast in those of his companions, his set face indicating that he was intensely in earnest in whatever he was talking about, and the matter in which he emphasized his remarks seemed to show that the matter was of great importance. The following night he appeared again with his two first companions, but the conference lasted only an hour. Evidently a decision had been reached. Now his neighbors are exercised to know whether it means a new public benefaction a rise in the price of oil, or a compromise on both.

Tetter Cured.

A lady customer of ours had suffered with tetter for two or three years. It got so bad on her hands that she could not attend to her household duties. One Loz of Chamberlain's Salve cured her. Chamberlain's medicines give splendid satisfaction in this community.—M. H. Rodney & Co., Almond, Ala. Chamberlain's medicines are for sale by Frank Hart and Leading Druggists.
