... A Striking Likeness ...

Bayard Young, a young gentleman of prepossessing appearance and fashionable attire, swinging a light cane, entered the Union station as a train rolled in. He was expecting a friend who did not come. But some one else came, who proceeded to disarrange the precision of Mr. Young's neckwear and otherwise ruffle his equanimity. A young lady, plainly but neatly dressed, descended from a car, and, her glance lighting on the gentleman in question, she rushed toward him, threw her arms about his neck and covered his face with klanes. Now, while young men are not usual ly averse to being kissed, they don't like to be taken by surprise. Mr. Young made an effort to disengage himself from the embrace, at least so far as to get a look at the kisser. This surprised the girl, and she, too, drew away. Then a color rose to her cheek, and, covering her face with both hands, she turned and ran away as fast as she could. The first thing Mr. Young diff. after her departure was to rearrange his disordered neckwear. Then he missed a scarfpin with a handsome pearl set in it that had been there before the sudden attack. Rushing after the girl, he caught her just as she was leaving the station.

"I'll trouble you for my scarfpin," he said.

She looked up, marks of distress and confusion still on her face. "I mis-took you for my brother," she said.

"My scarfpin. Give it to me at once or I will call a policeman." The girl's manner changed in a twinkling. Her eyes flashed ominously. "How dare you, sir!"

"I'm used to such games," he re-

"You certainly must be. Such people being your associates, you would not be expected to know a true lady when you see one."

At that moment Young saw his pin hanging head down from a bit of lingerie under the lady's throat. He snatched it away from her and put it in his scarf. She appeared to be very much astonished, too much astonished in fact to speak. When she did she

"It must have got caught in the lace when I"-

"Hugged me."

She stamped her foot and flashed at him like a tigress. Then, obeying a sudden thought, she opened her pocketbook and, taking out a card, handed it to him. When he had read it the astonishment was transferred from the girl to him.

"Are you Ralph Roswell's sister?" "I am."

"He was my chum at college."

"I am very much surprised to hear it. I supposed that he never associated with young men who were intimate with women who 'play games.' " Young looked uncomfortable. His nama went up to me nor covered deferentially.

"I suppose I owe you an apology," he

"No apology will be accepted."

"The circumstances were deceiving You must admit that I had apparent enuse for".

"Mistaking me for a thief?"

"I-the fact is"- He took out his handkerchief and wiped the perspiration from his forehead. "Is there any atonement I can make?"

"None whatever. One who mistake a lady for a common swindler-could dence women I believe they are calls. -commits an unpardonable sin."

With this she turned contemptuously and strode away. Young followed her "Leave me at once or I will call a policeman."

"I would rather go to jail than part in this way." "That would be no hardship. You would be with your acknowledged as-nocintes." Young concluded to make a masked attack in flank.

"Ralph and I look so much alike that in college they called us the twins."
"There's not the slightest resemblance."

"How, then, did you come to mistake me for him?"

"I-be-was to meet me."

"By Jove, there comes Ralph now, hurrying along to reach the station be- be well done in the forenoon. fore the train arrives! How the deuce are we to explain being together when he knows I've never been introduced to you-never have seen you?" The girl winced.

"Leave hirs to me. Hello, old boy What's the matter with your watch?" with restraint,

"How did you two know each oth er?" asked the brother, "Know each other?" replied Bayard. "Why, you see it was the likeness."

"What likeness?" In prevarication a woman can al ways give points to a man. The girl came in to save the day. "Why, your friend couldn't help seeing the family resemblance between you and me." "You're as like as fwins," Young put in. "Your sister looked so crestfallen I couldn't help taking care of her."

"I'm glad you were good to her." "I shall never forget it." said the girl, with a vindictive flash in her eye. "Please do." moaned Young. Then remembering himself, "I mean please don't." "What's the matter with you two?" nsked the brother. "You look and act $2.30 per bbl.

This unlucky hit came near bringing out the denouement, but the girl started on, and the denouement was de layed till a year later, when it was told at the wedding breakfast of Bayard Young and the girl he had mistaken for a thief.

In Chosing Your Piano Dealer

you would, if careful, ask the following questions and demand satisfactory answers to each one before paying out money. "Ask them all of Eilers Piano House." Reading this advertisement, calling at our nearest store to see our instruments, and thinking the matter over

(1) What kind of piano do they sell? Would you ask for a finer piano than a Weber, Kimball, Chickering, Haddarf, Lester, Hazleton, etc., or would you think of putting less into a piano than you can get (of us) a durable good Baily, Clarendon, Marshall & Wendell, Doll Foster, Whiting, Hinze or Weser for ?

(2) Are they high priced with their pianos? Do you suppose that, with four thousand pianos due to arrive, at our thirty stores from forty different factories; by the end of this year, we can afford to hold out for even usual prices? No. We have to sell, 'em at low prices to do it on time. You are safe on price here.

(3) If I don't pay cash how will I be treated? The fact that most of our sales are made on the "part-down-and-rest-later" basis proves it is popular and economical, and our rapidly growing trade proves that we do it on a fair and just plan. Our sales now total to a volume four times that of our nearest competitor, which enables us to do a little more on terms (along with our lower prices) than can be done elsewhere.

Decide on Eilers Piano House

An attractive display of samples of their most prominent makes will be kept on hand all summer at their Astoria branch, 424 Commercial street. Investigate now, even if you don't intend to buy till later.
