

TUG TURNS TURTLE

Entering Chicago River With Tow the Chicago Sinks.

AGED PILOT ALMOST DROWNS

Climbs Through 18-inch Window of the Pilot House While Vessel is Under Water and is Badly Injured by Being Cut With Glass.

CHICAGO, August 2.—Coming into the harbor with a heavy tow last night the tug Chicago heeled over just east of the Rush street bridge across the Chicago river, turning turtle with four men on board. The crew grabbed boards and whatever else they could find as the vessel partly righted itself and kept on until they could grab life ropes thrown from the steamer Fleetwood.

Captain McGinn of Milwaukee, who is nearly 70 years of age, had the narrowest escape. He was practically imprisoned in the pilot house when his craft went down. He climbed through the 18-inch window while under water and was badly injured in doing so.

The wreck was witnessed by hundreds of passengers on the outbound excursion boats lying at the dock.

All lake traffic was tied up for an hour. The sunken vessel lies almost directly across the river, practically undamaged, waiting to be pumped out.

The tug was towing in the steamer Muncie of the Anchor line. The tow was loaded heavily with grain and was coming in stern first for the reason that it is impossible to turn round except in the outer harbor.

Captain McGinn said the Chicago was close to the stern of the Muncie and going hard trying to take it clear of an abutment. The churning of the big boat's propeller and the heavy strain on the smaller craft caused it to heel over until it took in water on the starboard side. The tug tripped on the low line and before the crew could cut the hawser it turned turtle.

OFF FOR PHILIPPINES.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 2.—Large quantities of merchandise, ammunition and supplies of every kind for use of the army in the Philippines are being forwarded to the islands.

In addition they will carry 3000 men of the 25th and 29th infantry and cavalry besides a number of prominent officers. On this fleet the Warren will sail tomorrow the Logan on August 8, the Crook on August 10, and the Buford on August 15.

A TRUE SPORTSMAN.

NEW YORK, August 2.—A cable dispatch from Gouryok, Scotland, says Charles Russell, son of the late Lord Russell, of Killowen, and a prominent British yachtsman, is on his way to America to open negotiations with the New York Club on behalf of Sir Thomas Lipton with a view to the latter's challenging for America's cup race next year.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Charles Rogers, druggist, 50c.

Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup is sold under a positive guarantee to cure constipation, sick headache, stomach trouble, or any form of indigestion. If it fails, the manufacturers refund your money. What more can any one do. T. F. Laurin, Owl Drug Store.

Contagious

"My nephew shall have $50,000 on the day of the wedding, and I shall leave him $50,000 more in my will."

"I shall do the same by my niece."

"I suppose they will be very happy."

"Fools may easily be made happy. They do not know what is in store for them."

"You and I were fools, but were saved the consequence of our folly by a misunderstanding."

"Think of the troubles we missed!"

"I have found bachelor life very pleasant."

"The freedom of an old maid is equally agreeable to me—no husband to come home cross, no children to be continually watched to see that they don't get into mischief, no having to please everybody except oneself."

"There go the lovers now. They will doubtless follow the same course that you and I followed. They will go down into the grove below. She will throw herself on the grass, first turning up her overskirt to see that it doesn't get soiled—prudent as to a small thing, reckless as to the most important step in life. He will throw himself down in front of her, where he can look up into her eyes. Presently he will sit beside her and put an arm around her waist. It's the same old story."

"Common in all animals."

"And birds."

"And reptiles."

"Except that the lower creatures do not repent."

"Probably not."

"They are going to the grove, just as you predicted. I would like a look at them."

"Suppose we follow them."

"That would be spying."

"I can see no criminality in two philosophers taking a glimpse of that which is innocent."

"They arose and strolled after the younger couple. They were not old themselves. The man was forty, the woman some six or eight years younger and retaining much of the beauty of her youth. Nevertheless both had reached an age when they pined for new sensations. Or was it in this case an old sensation? They paused when the couple before them paused and proceeded when the couple proceeded. Presently the young people entered the grove."

"I told you so," said the man of the elder couple.

"Yes; they are going to sit on the grass."

"Reality and romance. She is turning up her skirt, thinking of the price of having it relaundersed."

"Don't be too sure of a woman's aim. She looks very pretty with the skirt about her waist."

"You know your sex well."

"I have done that very thing myself and for the reason I have given." She looked about for a gray spot to sit on.

"Do it again."

"They sat down, and she lifted her gauze overskirt."

"It is becoming," he added.

"He is at her feet, as you said."

"He will not stay there long."

"Nor did he. Within ten minutes he arose, plucked a leaf from the tree under which they lounged and when he sat down again placed himself beside her."

"A pair of gloves against a cigar that his arm is around her waist within five minutes." He took out his watch.

"I will take the bet, though I shall lose."

"At four minutes and thirty seconds the young lover's arm was about the waist of the girl beside him."

"I knew you would win."

"Do you know, that's very refreshing. I wouldn't mind being back at that age myself."

"The age of folly."

"After all, folly is at times very nice."

"But dangerous."

"I wonder how it would feel to do that at our age."

"We would be thinking of the danger—that is, the danger of it if we were young."

"Experiment is the only means by which to arrive at sure conclusions."

"He placed an arm about her waist."

"How does it feel?" she asked.

"Delicious."

"No fear of consequences?"

"When I was a soldier I felt no fear after getting into action."

"You were liable to get killed all the same."

"Death was nothing to winning"—

"Take care. Remember what winning in love means. Think of what we escaped."

"We were a pair of idiots."

"It was all your fault."

"No; it was yours. You flirted with that nunny and drove me"—

"Heavens, some one is coming!"

"Only the dog."

"Think how happy we are—no cares, no family jars, no—"

"Companionship. I hate the club. I hate balls, parties, receptions. I hate everything but you."

"And me?"

"I love."

"Look! He is giving her a kiss. Dear, innocent creatures!"

"I have lost eighteen years of such delight. I'll lose no more. Sweetheart, it was all my fault."

"No; mine."

In ten minutes he made up for two years' loss. In twenty minutes he made up for another year, and so on in proportion. Before marriage he made up for the whole eighteen years. It was fortunate that he did so, for a year after marriage he could not have made up for a single year.

DISCOVERY FOR OPICIANS

PARIS, August 2.—Dr. Fortin has reported to the Academy of Science a new contrivance which he believes is to be of great service in eye diagnosis. The physician found that the light from a mercury vapor lamp, passing through two sheets of blue glass and reflected into the eye by a large lens, reveals the internal condition infinitely better than the ordinary white light. By placing a screen with a pinhole between the light and the eye a magnified image of the vessels at the base of the retina, which have hitherto been almost invisible, has been obtained.
