

FEAR FOUL PLAY

Think Conductor Was Murdered by Strikebreakers.

SUICIDE THEORY DON'T HOLD

Robert Roy Is Found With Bullet Hole In Head and Strikebreakers Advance Theory Of Suicide—Police Say It Is Impossible For Man To Kill Himself.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—Mystery surrounds the death of Robert Roy, a motorman employed by the United Railroads, who was found dead last evening in his bunk in the Turk street car barn with a bullet hole in his left eye.

Very little information could be obtained at the barn regarding Roy's death. The officials were reticent and refused to give out any information other than that Roy went to his bunk shortly after 9:30 o'clock last evening and soon after he retired a pistol shot was heard and he was found dead soon after with a bullet hole in his left eye.

The police, however, think differently. They are inclined to believe that Roy was killed in a quarrel with one of the fellow-strikebreakers and that the carmen are trying to shield the culprit.

The police point to the fact that Roy was right-handed and that the bullet entered his left eye in an almost straight direction. There was no powder marks on the face, and the bullet from a heavy thirty-eight caliber revolver it still embedded in the head.

It is next to impossible, it is claimed, for a right-handed man to fire a shot into his left eye in the manner mentioned while lying on his back without singing the face with powder.
