Waterspout Blows off Mouth of Columbia River.

SAILORS GET GUNS FOR HUNT

Narrow Escape of the Andy Mahoney Schooner—Pilots Say Waterspout is Not Unusual Off Oregon Coast in Bad Weather—Important Marine Notes.

A waterspout at the mouth of the river on Monday placed the schooner Andy Mahoney in a dangerous position for a short while, according to the story of members of the crew when they arrived in Portland. During a squall, when the vessel was between Tillamook Head and the lightship, a waterspout was observed coming rapidly toward the ship and growing larger every minute. When a short distance from the ship, all hands were ordered on deck and every gun available was secured to enjoy the royal sport of shooting a waterspout. The spiral column of salt water subsided suddenly, however, making a wave which almost cleaned the decks of the ship.

Several of the bar pilots were asked about this waterspout story, and they asserted that it was quite possible. One had been observed not far from the river mouth some six years ago, and several of the pilots had had experiences with them in past years. They state that the story may be given credence.

The Grand Lodge meeting of the Sons of Herman, of Oregon, which opened its annual session in the A. O. U. W. hall yesterday morning, will come to a close tonight after one of the most successful and enjoyable meetings in its history. A business session with about forty members present was held yesterday morning and afternoon, the following officers being elected for the ensuing year:

President, Herman Enke, of Portland; vice-president, Emil Wolf, Portland; second vice-president, Conrad Utzinger, of Portland; treasurer, Louis Steinhauer, of Portland. As the result shows, most of the old officers were re-elected. The next meeting place of the grand lodge will be in Portland.

A big banquet was held in the hall last night as a close to the proceedings for the day. Speeches, songs and general good time was had, the local members lending their best efforts toward providing a hospitable entertainment for the visitors, who come from all parts of the state as delegates from the numerous lodges of this fraternal order, which is now 20 years old.

After a short business session at the headquarters this morning, the delegates will go to Seaside for an excursion and outing in the afternoon. Several of the members who have never been to North Beach will take the opportunity to visit the Washington resorts. The visitors will assemble in the city again late in the afternoon and adjourn the convention.

PILOTS ANXIOUS TO ASSIST

SEND LETTER TO HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND ASKING FOR RANGE LIGHTS IN HARBOR—MOVEMENT TO SECURE MARINE HOSPITAL FOR ASTORIA.

The matter of having range lights placed in the harbor for boats to come in during the night, has been placed in the hands of the bar pilots as the quickest means for securing results. The following letter, to be signed by all the pilots, will be forwarded to Portland: "To Commander W. Werlich, "U. S. Lighthouse Service.

"We, the undersigned master pilots of steam vessels plying through the Columbia River, respectfully petition you for the following aids to navigation at the mouth of the Columbia River: "1—A combination bell and gas buoy near where number 8 buoy is now located.

"2—Range lights at Hammond.

"3—Pile beacon at Smith's Point, where the red spar buoy is now located. "Signed by Bar Pilots."

Captain McVicar is the leading spirit who is undertaking the work of securing the range lights and he is being backed enthusiastically by all the pilots, who are anxious to have the range lights put in the harbor. They all regard the movement as perfectly feasible, and it is assumed that since the matter is to be presented by them as an aid to navigation, it will bring quicker results than any other method.

The Chamber of Commerce is also assisting in the movement, and since its inception by Samuel Elmore, has lent every effort to bring the matter to a successful conclusion.

Another matter which Manager Whyte is interested in securing for the city is a marine hospital in connection with a quarantine station. At present all ships having a diseased person on board are held until the patient is well, and this works a hardship on the chartering of the boat. With a marine hospital, the patient can be taken ashore and secluded until recovery, leaving the boat to continue its cruise after being safely fumigated. Dr. Holt is greatly interested in the matter and is assisting Mr. Whyte. A letter asking for the station will be sent to Surgeon-General Wyman at Washington, with whom Mr. Whyte is personally acquainted.

What One Enjoys.

At Otto Sund's pretty and cozy resort "The Commercial," one finds all that the inner man desires in the refreshment line and of the best quality too. To pass a little time in such a neat place and spend it in pleasant conversation with genial friends, probably a little business talk, is, to say the least, enlivening. Courteous treatment is another thing that is appreciated and one receives it from Otto himself who takes charge during the day and from his pleasant night manager both of whom dispense the best to be had. "The Commercial," 509 Commercial street, is well known and widely patronized.
