

THE BOSTON STORE.

Successors to The Morse Department Store.

Positively must close out the entire Morse stock within the next 30 days. No one knows so well what this means as we do. It means a cutting of price to one-half and one-fourth the regular price. It means the saving of hundreds of dollars to the people of Astoria and surrounding country. It means that as good merchandise as is carried by any store in Astoria will go at less prices than any other store can buy them of the large eastern manufacturer.

SCOTLAND DRAWN IN

May Be Dragged Into Church and State Struggle.

DEMOCRATS ARE UNEASY

Bryan to Address Students in Washington on November 25—Southern Democrats Believe They Have Been Denied Consideration in the Past.

GLASGOW, Oct. 10.—No one would have thought that Scotland would be drawn into the engrenage of the struggle now going on in France between the church and state. The struggle is, of course, nominally over, as the separation has been decreed. But it will go on for many a long year still about the property of the church confiscated by the government, and it is by this seizure of church property that Scotland has been drawn into the matter. The French government with the other church property, seized the Scots College in the Rue Cardinal Lemoine. Against this the British government has entered protest, and negotiations for its surrender are being conducted by the British ambassador and M. Briand, minister of public instruction. To this department the former ministers des cultes, or minister of ecclesiastical affairs, belonged, and it is M. Briand who is entrusted with the difficult task of carrying out the liquidation. The seizure of the Scots College was to many people the first revelation of its existence.

The Scots College was founded by King Robert the Bruce. At the time of its foundation there was a healthy rivalry between him and John Balliol as to who should do most for education in Scotland. Balliol favored English influence and founded Balliol College at Oxford. Robert the Bruce declared in favor of French education, France being the ally against the common enemy, England. He accordingly founded the College des Ecoles in Paris in 1320. The first building was in the Rue des Amandiers, which was in the vicinity of the quarter where the Scots students lived in the Rue des Ecoles. But in the latter half of the 17th century the then principal had the college removed to the existing building in the Rue Cardinal Lemoine. This lies on the eastern slope of the hill on which the Pantheon stands, a stone's throw from the beautiful old church of Saint Etienne du Mont.

It is not a particularly striking building from the outside. A large, barrack-like erection, five stories high, it fills half the eastern side of the street. Over the main entrance, cut in the keystone of the arch, are the words College des Ecoles, the old spelling of the word Ecolesais being still preserved. The windows on the lower floor are heavily barred, as the college was used as a prison during the Terror. The college is still used for educational purposes, and is known as the Institute Chevalier, a school of the higher class, which prepares young Frenchmen for the baccalaureat, the French degree of bachelor of arts.

TESTS WIRELESS TELEPHONE.

De Forest Perfects One at Norfolk Which Navy May Adopt for Ships.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 12.—Lee De Forest, the perfecter of one of the two wireless telegraph systems, has been here for three days installing a wireless telephone station on the battleship Virginia at the Norfolk navy yard, by means of which he has spoken audibly to a receiver in the De Forest wireless station on the top of the Law Building in Norfolk, a distance of about two miles. The voice of the inventor was heard in the Norfolk station as plainly as over the ordinary telephone wire. The distance which the wireless telephone may be able to carry the human voice is yet uncertain, but it is not expected to "upplant the wireless telegraph. It is expected that it can be used for communication between vessels in fleet formation and to better advantage that can the wireless telegraph. Every vessel in the Atlantic fleet will be equipped with the wireless telephone before the fleet sets out for the Pacific, it is believed.

ROOSEVELT IS BEST HUNTER.

STAMBOUL, Ea., Oct. 12.—A courier who arrived from the president's camp on the Tensas river late this evening reported that the president had killed a fine buck, but otherwise the hunt today was barren of results.

METEOR OFF JERSEY COAST.

Brilliant One, Reported by the Castilian Prince, Seen Saturday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The steamer Castilian Prince, which arrived yesterday from Fernandina, reports that at 10 o'clock on Saturday night a brilliant meteor fell from the zenith in a westerly direction, expiring at an altitude of 12 to 15 degrees from the horizon and illuminating the whole of the western sky in its transit and showing objects that were under its heavenly path to the naked eye. This occurred when the steamer was coming up the Jersey coast between Barnegat and Sea Girt. The Castilian Prince has naval stores on board. She will finish loading here and then go to River Plate.
