Vessels Are Moving Along as of Yore.

RAJORE RETURNS TO PORT

Quite a Movement of Vessels Sunday and Yesterday—Bark Buffon Arrives After a Hard Time—Schooner Salina Breaking Up—New Rates to Frisco.

The steamer Senator, from San Francisco, arrived in yesterday at 11:55 and left up at 2:45.

The British ship Wavertree was towed down on Sunday morning, arriving here at 10 a. m. She left out yesterday at 10 a. m.

The schooner Jos. Dolph came down on Sunday at 7 p. m. and passed out yesterday at 2 p. m.

The Norwegian steamer Herm crossed in Sunday at 3 p. m. and left up yesterday at 6 a. m.

The steamer Sue H. Elmore came in Sunday and is scheduled to sail tomorrow at 5 p. m.

The oil steamer Asuncion arrived in yesterday at 7:40 and left up the river at 10 a. m.

The French bark Ville de Mulhouse, from Hobart, via San Francisco, crossed in Sunday at 9 a. m. In the lower harbor she struck the sands and last night she was pulled clear and this morning will be towed to Portland by the Harvest Queen.

New passenger rates have been established on the Senator, to San Francisco. For the winter season the rates will be: $15 first class, $12 second class and $10 third class, or stowage. Second class accommodations will be similar to first class, in the dining saloon but staterooms will not have the choice locations as will the first-class. These rates are expected to remain in vogue until spring.

The steamer General Washington took a spin along the harbor front yesterday and appeared to be doing nicely, thank you.

Brer Mitchell, of the Callender dock, had a "cocking time" yesterday. He was found checking up a shipment of over 5000 floats for nets, which is being made to San Francisco. He made the count correct but said that he would rather count the number of boats passing over the bar in stormy weather, it's easier.

The schooner Salina which was aground on the beach about 4 or 5 miles above Ocean Park has firmly settled and is breaking up. She got off for a while but having no tug at hand drifted back again. She will be dismantled and will otherwise be a total loss.

The Alliance is scheduled to leave Portland for Coos Bay on Thursday night and will arrive in Astoria sometime Friday forenoon.

The steamer Persia, with a general cargo for the Orient arrived down at 8:30 yesterday morning and immediately proceeded to sea, crossing out at 10 o'clock.

The steamer Jordan goes on the Grays Harbor route today. Capt. H. Haslam will be in command.

The steamer Johan Paulsen, came down the river Saturday night and left on Sunday at 9:15 a. m. for San Francisco.

The steamer Breakwater which left Portland on Saturday night did not reach here until 3 p. m. on Sunday, owing to fog on the river. She left here for Coos Bay at 4:10 of the same day. She will, no doubt, be welcome at Coos Bay as no vessel has reached that section from this port for a few weeks.

The bark Oakland left yesterday for Knappton where she will load lumber.

The French bark Buffon, which was reported outside with pilot aboard, last week, came safely to anchor in the harbor yesterday. Captain Gunderson who, was the pilot aboard, had quite a time of it but safely piloted his charge to a snug harbor. On Thursday night a heavy hurricane was met and some damage was done. Seas washed over the vessel but the damage was not serious though the anchor was nearly lost. During the hurricane a bark was seen close by at 8:30 p. m. She seemed to be having a hard time of it, her spalls hanging in a bedraggled condition. Owing to the hour and the severe weather the name of the bark could not be obtained. Good seamanship on the part of Capt. Gunderson finally prevailed and his charge was brought to open water until favorable conditions arose to enter port.

Ferdinand Scipion, one of the crew of the French bark Buffon, was taken to the hospital on the arrival of the vessel in port. He has been critically ill for the past three weeks.

The British ship Rajore which left Portland on December 7 returned to Astoria at noon Sunday after a severe experience on the coast. She left out one week ago bound for Queenstown, with a cargo of grain. She was caught in the hurricane of last Thursday, her steering gear was disabled and her cabin flooded. Her cargo shifted and after buffeting the winds and heavy sea finally put back to Astoria. She will remain in port until orders are received as to her repairs.
