William B. Turner Who Hails From Oregon Feels Shaky About Position he Has Held Ten Years—War Department to Test Aeroplanes and Balloons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—With 1908 fairly under way, the aspiring Presidential candidates for the Republican nomination have gone into hard training for the contest and have undertaken a systematic speech-making diet. Secretary Taft's address last week before the Merchant's Association of Boston was perhaps the initial one in this Td-like-to-be-President talkfest series, and his lead has been followed by Senator Knox, who has accepted several invitations to address political and commercial clubs in the near future. Even the silent executive of New York, Gov. Hughes, has agreed to be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Union League Club of Chicago on Washington's birthday, on which occasion he is expected to declare himself as to his stand on national questions. The fact that Mr. Hughes' views on tariff revision, corporation and railroad control, a greater navy, and one or two other issues which, collectively, bid fair to form the bone of contention in next November's election, never have been clearly known has caused much criticism to be directed against the movement to nominate him. These criticisms practically all have come from the supporters of other candidates, but they nevertheless have served as a brake to the Hughes Presidential hand-wagon. Thus it is that what the New York Governor will have to say at the Windy City banquet is being awaited with much interest.

American poultry raisers doubtless will be delighted to learn that the usual amount of government free seeds will be forthcoming—a little later, perhaps, but still in time to be of use. When, last fall, the seed warehouse of the Department of Agriculture was visited by a fire which destroyed some $50,000 worth of the seeds which had been purchased and packed for Congressional distribution, the farmers regretfully and even tearfully put aside the thought of producing extra-fine poultry for the holiday trade and took other steps to secure suitable fattening food for the Thanksgiving and Christmas birds, for they realized that $50,000 worth of chicken feed makes a big pile. However the American public can look forward to frolicsome feasts on fat spring chicken, for, thanks to the foresight of Secretary Wilson and his lieutenants, no sooner had the clang of the fire bells died out than provisional purchase was made of seeds to replace those destroyed, and these were delivered in Washington and held subject to the action of the Sixtieth Congress on the Department's request for an emergency appropriation to refill the bins of the restored seed warehouse. The measure, as everyone knows, went through, and this week it developed that the Department is about ready to inaugurate its annual distribution of the seeds, as per Congressional suggestion.

That South Africa is already something of a rival to America in progressiveness is proved by the telephone expansion of that British colony. A recent report received in this city states that there was opened at Johannesburg on October 26th last a new common battery exchange having a present equipment of 246 lines. The cut-over from the magneto system was made the occasion for a complete revision of the system of rates, so that henceforth these will correspond to the methods of the message rate system as practiced in most of the larger American cities. Instead of a flat rate charge of approximately $100 a year, which has heretofore prevailed in Johannesburg, subscribers to residence service now pay about $35 a year for a minimum of 600 calls; over that a charge of four cents for each call up to 800; two cents up to 2400, and one cent beyond. These prices for limited service are easily seen to be rather high, considering the size of the South African capital. The message rate plan which has been adopted in Johannesburg is said to be gaining in favor all over the world.

The suggestion made by ex-President Grover Cleveland that the United States find some method of taking care of its Presidents after they leave the executive office which will enable them to maintain the standard of living expected of them, has met with more or less general approval. Mr. Cleveland the other day called attention to the fact that few of the 24 men who have been honored by their countrymen with the office of President have enjoyed sufficient incomes during the remainder of their lives to enable them to maintain the social standing expected of them. He pointed out that very few fields of industry are open to the man who has once served the nation as its chief executive, and that still fewer will insure an income sufficient for him to continue to live on the same social scale as when he presided at the White House. The American people, he declared, thoughtlessly have demanded that their former Presidents shall seek and follow a high calling upon retiring, whether or not they possess the means to do so. Awakened to the truth of this, it is extremely probable that Congress will vote a substantial pension to the men who for four years or more shall have steered the good ship of state. Several Senators and Congressmen already have expressed themselves as being in sympathy with such a course. Incidentally, some local statistician has dug up figures which show that the average life of ex-Presidents, after retirement, has been 12 years and 10 months.

To be removed from the uncertainty of Senatorial patronage and placed upon the "Senate roll" which practically means a life job, is the good fortune of William B. Turner, for 10 years printing clerk of the upper house of Congress. Mr. Turner, who hails from Oregon, was appointed to the place by Senator McBride, and because of his efficient work and his genial personality Senator Mitchell and Senator Gearin, who served successive terms, easily were induced to relinquish their claims on Mr. Turner's official scalp. With the coming of Senator Bourne, however, Mr. Turner began to feel a bit shaky, for the man who coddled and nursed the Roosevelt third term movement wanted the printing clerk's job, and said so. Through the Secretary of the Senate, Mr. Turner was requested to resign some six weeks before the 60th Congress convened, but the Oregon man unwilling to part with his official life without a struggle, hid himself to one or two friendly Senators, and so popular had he become with the majority of the dignified solons of the Senate, that the matter was taken up on the floor and a majority vote placed him on the Senate roll, which precludes discharge, except by vote of the caucus.

PRETTY COMPLIMENT.

Mayor Wise Recipient of Fine Photograph of Federation Delegates.

A very neat compliment was paid Mayor Wise by the delegates to the late convention of the State Federation of Labor through their representative, R. R. Wallace, of this city. Last night this gentleman, on behalf of his organization, presented our worthy Mayor with an enlarged picture of the visiting delegates, in a heavy gilt frame. The picture was taken in front of the hall in which the convention was held, and the Mayor, on the invitation of the body, is in the picture. There are also some "bouquets" there. Mayor Wise, in a spirit of fun, presented several of the officers and delegates with mock bouquets, nicely prepared for presentation. To President Gram he sent a head of cabbage with the inscription on the card accompanying, "You are it." Secretary T. M. Leabo received a red beat and informed that he was hard to beat. Publisher of the Labor Press, McDonald, was remembered with a sweet potato, informing him what he was in the "language of flowers," a sweet potato. Delegate Parsons, of the cigar makers' union, was presented with a lemon. The Mayor sent his card to Labor Commissioner Hoff, to which was attached a large piece of sticking plaster denoting "I am stuck on you." A bunch of lettuce neatly placed in a vase was accompanied by a card reading "To all the delegates. Let us be friends." The lady delegates were recipients of neat bouquets of carnations. Everyone took the Mayor's joke in good part and to retaliate placed the presents on a stand to be photographed with the group. The picture is on exhibition in the Mayor's show window.

Badly Burned Arm—

A little Finnish girl by the name of S. Haadega, from the Lewis and Clark country was brought in to St. Mary's hospital yesterday afternoon, with a badly burned arm, caused by falling upon the home stove, and was immediately put under effective treatment by Dr. Fosstrum, and at last accounts was doing nicely.

The Secret of a Beautiful Face lies in keeping the skin protected as well as cleansed. Just washing is not enough—that only leaves the delicate surface more exposed to the irritation of dust and germs; to merciless attacks of sun and weather. After washing, apply Robertine and experience its delightful refreshment. You will admire the line-less softness it imparts to face, neck and arms. It not only stimulates a radiant glow, but protects the skin from becoming coarse. Prevents burning, tan and freckles.
