SAVED BY THE MUD.

Exciting Elephant Adventure in the Heart of Africa.
 During a hunting trip in Africa A. Henry Savage Landor had a narrow escape from two elephants which he was stalking. He had got to within ten yards of the male elephant and, taking careful aim, pulled the trigger. The story of what followed is told in Mr. Landor's book "Across Widest Africa."

The cartridge never went off, but unfortunately my kresh, who relied on the effectiveness of my weapon, fired at the same moment with his matchlock. We were such a short distance from the animal that he actually hit him in the head. I shall never forget my surprise when the elephant lifted his trunk skyward and in his fury roared like thunder.

A moment later the elephant, with his trunk extended, dashed after us, I too, with my useless rifle in my hand, having by that time acquired a high rate of speed.

Had I been running a race for the world's record I am sure I should have won the prize. It was amazing to me how fast I could run, as I confess my blood turned perfectly cold when I could feel the hoarse blowing trunk of the elephant only a few rods behind me, and I expected every minute to be crushed into a jelly.

In that particular part of the country these marshy plains are extraordinarily sticky and slushy, so the moment I dashed into the grass at the record breaking speed at which I was traveling my feet stuck in the soft and slushy mud, and I was precipitated with my face and hands in the slush, my rifle sinking deep.

This was the supreme moment of apprehension. I said goodby to the world and imagined myself dead. No one could have been more surprised than I was when, a reasonable time to be killed in having elapsed, I got up again and perceived the elephant a few yards off, centering away in the opposite direction.

His back view was a great relief to me. He had come to within two or three yards of where I had fallen and, having himself sunk in the soft mud, had turned around and struggled away, leaving big circular footmarks, regular holes four or five feet deep in the mud.

Her Secret.
 Wife—Have you any secrets you keep from me, dearest?
 Husband—None, darling.
 Wife—Then I am determined I will have none from you either.
 Husband—Have you secrets, then?
 Wife—Only one, and I am resolved to make a clean breast of it.
 Husband (hoarsely)—Go on!
 Wife—For several days I have had a secret—a secret longing for a new dress, with hat to match, for my birthday.
 That fetched him.—London Mail.

Fixed.
 One of the local officials of Chicago tells of a plumber's apprentice who on his way to work one morning called at the office of the health authorities and made known his wish to register his father's death. When the clerk asked the date of the demise, the son replied: "He ain't dead yet, but he will be before night. I thought it would save me another journey if you put it down now."
 "That won't do at all," said the clerk.
 "Perhaps your father will live for a long while yet."
 "Well, I don't know," responded the apprentice doubtfully. "The doctor says he won't, and he knows what he has given him."—Harper's Weekly.

He Won't Always Be One.
 "I have a clerk," a New York wholesale merchant remarked the other day, "and he sometimes manages to hand back a rather good one, though, as a rule, he is little short of stupid apparently. As a matter of fact, I suppose he is one of those dreamy sort of chaps, and you never can tell about that kind."
 "I was sorry after I said it," he continued, "but recently he had made a most unnecessary blunder, and I lost my temper."
 "I say, Jones," I sneered, "you'd make a pretty good clerk maybe if you had a little more sense."
 "He looked at me for a minute with a sort of half smile. 'Didn't it ever occur to you, Mr. Brown,' he said, 'that if I had a little more sense I wouldn't be a clerk at all?'"—Boston Post.

"Bidding His Last Goodby."
 Almost a Dozen.
 "Yes," confessed the pretty girl in the orange hat, "he said he was dying for a kiss."
 "And what did you say, dear?" asked her anxious chum.
 "Oh, I told him he should practice self restraint—told him every time he felt like stealing a kiss he should count ten."
 "And did he count ten?"
 "Yes. The first thing I knew the roose had counted ten kisses."—Chicago News.

SWEATERS FOR DOGS.

"I spent the winter in St. Moritz," said a western girl. "In that white town, 6000 feet up among the Alps, everybody wears a sweater. Skating, skiing, coasting, if you are not clad in a white sweater your dress is incorrect."

"The prettiest, quaintest thing there is the way all the dogs wear sweaters too. A sweater is just the thing for a dog. Fitting tight, leaving the legs free, outlining the graceful body, it is at once comfortable and becoming."

"And in St. Moritz all the dogs wear sweaters. Bull-dogs, dachshunds, collies, fox terriers, each capers about in the white snow in a white sweater."

Here is proof in Astoria. Mrs. E. Haggblom, corner Ninth and Harrison streets, Astoria, Oregon, says: "For 10 years I suffered acutely from kidney trouble which gradually grew more severe until I was on the verge of physical breakdown. I was losing flesh rapidly. My back was so weak and painful and I suffered from such severe dizzy spells that I could hardly get around. At last I was forced to take to my bed and remained there for a long time. My kidneys were irregular in action and the secretions so profuse as to cause me a great deal of suffering. At last I decided to try a good kidney remedy. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and the results that followed their use were most satisfactory. I continued using them and it was not long before I was completely cured. I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on some occasions since, to keep my kidneys in good order and can conscientiously say I have not had any recurrence of the trouble Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."
