

BACKACHE IS A BAD SIGN NOW

MANY WAIT UNTIL TOO LATE—TRY THIS SIMPLE HOME PRESCRIPTION FOR KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE.

Take care of backache. A great many cases of kidney complaint are reported about here, also bladder trouble and rheumatism.

An authority once stated that pain in the back, loins or region of the kidneys is the danger signal nature hangs out to notify the sufferer that there is something wrong with the kidneys, which should receive immediate attention. Only vegetable treatment should be administered and absolutely no strongly alcoholic patent medicines, which are harmful to the kidneys and bladder.

The following prescription, while simple, harmless and inexpensive, is known and recognized as a sovereign remedy for kidney complaint. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and any one can mix them: Compound Kardon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This preparation is said to restore the natural function of the kidneys, so they will sift and strain the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, purifying it and relieving rheumatism. Backache will be relieved, the urine will be neutralized and cleared and no longer a cause of irritation, thereby overcoming such symptoms as weak bladder, painful, frequent and other urinary difficulties.

This is worth trying and may prove just what many people here need.

INJURED IN RIOT.

CHICAGO, Mar. 31.—Several persons were seriously injured in a riot which broke out at the Inland steel mills in Indiana Harbor, Ind., yesterday between 600 Hungarians, Lithuanians and Roumanians. For several hours the police were unable to disperse the mob. Reserves were called out from East Chicago and five arrests were made. Three hundred Hungarians and Lithuanian discharged from the mills during the financial panic and who had failed to secure work when the plant was reopened, attacked the Roumanian employes as they left the company's grounds. Brick and stones were used as weapons. When the police charged the crowd the Hungarians attacked them. Sergeant Bowen was struck and slightly injured by a thrown brick.

Rheumatic Pains Relieved.

Mrs. Thos. Stenton, postmaster of Pontypool, Ont., writes: "For the past eight years I suffered from rheumatic pains, and during that time I used many different liniments and remedies for the cure of rheumatism. Last summer I procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and got more relief from it than anything I have ever used, and cheerfully recommend this liniment to all sufferers from rheumatic pains." For sale by Frank Hart and leading druggists.

FRAUDULENT USE OF MAILS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31.—Earle Accola of Chicago has been arrested by Postoffice Inspector O'Connell on a telegram from the postoffice inspector at Chicago, stating that Accola had been indicted by the Federal grand jury of that city for furtherance of a scheme to defraud, and using the United States mails in carrying out his designs.

Chamberlain's Has the Preference.

Mr. Fred. C. Hanrahan, a prominent druggist of Portsmouth, Va., says: "For the past six years I have sold and recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is a great remedy and one of the best patent medicines on the market. I handle some others for the same purposes that pay me a larger profit, but this remedy is so sure to effect a cure, and my customer so certain to appreciate my recommending it to him, that I give it the preference." For sale by Frank Hart and leading druggists.

TOBACCO AN INDEX

The Way Men Smoke a Great Character Indicator.

SMOKING IS A NERVOUS HABIT

One Can Trace Selfishness, Boorishness, Self-Assertiveness, Timidity or Good Temper in a Smoker's Demeanor in Any Mixed Company.

It is a truism that a man largely proclaims his character in his habits, and in nothing is this dictum more clearly exemplified than in the habit of smoking. Smoking provides us with a thousand opportunities for expressing, or hinting at, our individual traits, virtues, and frailties. We smoke as we live, or as we desire to live. Indolence, extravagance, frugality, penuriousness, stolidity, nervous tension, and innumerable other attributes can be revealed to an observant looker-on by simply smoking a pipe, a cigar, or a cigarette, says the London "Tribune". Choice of tobacco, methods of smoking, pipe cleaning and lighting, the treatment of cigar ash, and the use of cigarette ends are all straws that point which way the wind of disposition blows.

It is, of course, difficult and at best always a thankless task to set up arbitrary definitions, but if one must generalize it is fairly safe to assert that as a rule pipe smokers differ largely from the votaries of the cigarette in method and persistence. There are, however, exceptions, and at the present moment two of the most brilliant men of our day combine an inveterate habit of pipe-smoking with extreme volatile nervousness and excitement. It is noteworthy in judging character by smoke that both these men employ a common method. They light their pipes every other second. An entire box of matches is used regularly to finish one full pipe of tobacco, and the studies of both men, who are personally unknown to one another, are literally strewn from end to end with burnt and wasted match sticks.

Smoking with these men is simply a nervous habit. They do not trouble to keep their pipes alight but whenever they pause in thought or speech—they strike a match. Two puffs at the pipe and the tobacco is out again. If it remained burning, and there was no occasion to strike a match when the next halt in their thoughts or speech occurred, these two smokers would experience the utmost mental discomfort.

Some cigarette smokers are of a wasteful and extravagant nature and fling their cigarettes away when they are consumed to the extent of a third of their length. These people also are generally excitable creatures. They must be constantly doing something, taking out or shutting up their pocket cases, fumbling for matches, lighting a cigarette, or throwing one away. Fanciful and freak smokers are often indolent. The man who can squat for hours in a chair blowing smoke rings, emitting the smoke from his nose, or inhaling the smoke for an extraordinary duration of time, has generally a lack of vital energy and purpose. He answers naturally to the type of individual described in certain theatrical circles as "Bar-Performer," i. e., persons who are not clever or persevering in their profession, but whose self-appointed mission in life is to perform tricks in saloon bars, refreshment rooms, and railway waiting-rooms, for the diversion of their companions.

Cigar smokers have frequently been characterized as men of expensive tastes. This, of course, is a very obvious conclusion, but is really hard to establish. Many cigar smokers show themselves to be persons of taste and discrimination. You can generally tell by facial expression whether they are genuine cigar lovers. There is a stock broker amongst the acquaintances of the present writer who looks absolutely a poet when he is enjoying the full bouquet of a certain brand of most excellent cigars. His whole being becomes sublimated, his mood mellows, and his thoughts resume an imaginative color.

That this man's being is capable of sublimation under these circumstances clearly shows that somewhere hidden beneath his hard business acumen and commercial capacities is a strain, an inherent strain, of poetic thought and feeling. But one could never have discovered this save through the agency of these wonderful cigars.

A person who smokes a cigar with the label-band on is always a vulgarian; a person who displays two inches of ash adhering to a cigar is generally ostentatious; a person who selects a cigar because it is sprinkled with light spots in an ignoramus who credits any popular report; and a person who chews up the end of a cigar or a cigarette is more often than not of an irascible or peevish nature.

Smoking is also a great test of natural courtesy in any individual. One can trace selfishness, boorishness, selfassertiveness, timidity, or good temper in a smoker's demeanor in any mixed company. Judging upon the example of Mr. Kipling, it has been asserted that the man who knocks his pipe ashes out behind the parlor couch is usually a genius. But this is a somewhat empty assertion, and, at any rate, it comprises a belief that is in no wise shared by housewives and landladies.

As a concluding rule for diagnosing character by tobacco habits it may be accepted that the best men smoke quietly and without ostentation, offer you a good cigar without a preparatory oration on its cost and merits, and smoke their pipes and cigars out to the end. When a man is concerned because his friends are not smoking with him he is a person to be cultivated.

wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturer for publication, that others similarly ailing may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm-hearted wish of the writer to be of use to some one else. This remedy is for sale by Frank Hart and leading druggists.
