The steamship Roanoke sent a wireless to the Callender Navigation Co., here yesterday forenoon, advising them that she would dock here at 7 o'clock in the evening, but Capt. Dunham had her tied up at the pier half an hour before that. She discharged her passengers here and they were sent on to Portland by rail, and the ship remained to take her chief place in the line of "Battleship" excursions today. She will leave out from the Callender dock sharply at 10 o'clock this morning, for sea.

The French bark Eugene Pergaline, was among the get-aways from this port yesterday, crossing out for Fal-mouth, with her big cargo of grain.

The steamer Undine came down the river last evening with a big bunch of Portland excursionists for the Roanoke. She landed them at the Callender, and then went to her own dock, taking on good business above and below stairs for the up-trip and got away on spot-time, 7 o'clock.

The Italian bark Emanuel Accame, 125 days out from Hamburg, with a general cargo, and consigned to Kerr, Gifford & Company, entered port yesterday morning, Captain Chiappi in command, and is in the lower harbor waiting an up-river tow. Her voyage was uneventful, and reasonably quick.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT THE THEATRE

H. M. CAKE, CANDIDATE FOR UNITED STATES SENATE, APPEALS TO THE VOTERS OF CLATSOP COUNTY.

Last night the Astoria Theatre was fairly well filled by Republicans and a few Democrats to listen to the speech of Hon. H. M. Cake of Portland, the Republican candidate for the United States Senate.

The stage was occupied by the following members of the County Republican Central Committee consisting of J. C. McCue, W. F. McGregor, F. J. Dunbar, C. G. Fulton and J. C. Curtis.

Hon. C. G. Fulton in a few felicitous remarks introduced the speaker and implored his audience to stand by the Republican party and the candidates who were nominated at the primaries.

Mr. Cake said he appreciated the delicate position he was in when he was standing and speaking in the home town of the present Senator and regretted the defeat of Mr. Fulton but felt impelled to stand for the nomination. He rejoiced that there was no words of reproach from either of them and assured his hearers that had Mr. Fulton been the choice of the primaries that he would have taken off his coat and gone loyally, actively and vigorously into the fight to re-elect the present incumbent. Mr. Fulton wrote him a congratulatory letter from Washington and he was prepared to felicitate the Senator had he been re-nominated. That he contested the nomination with Senator Bourne but did all in his power to elect him after he had lost the nomination. He believes we are upon the eve of a crucial fight and warned his hearers against being led astray by the fallacy of voting for a Democrat. He said the candidate who was on that ticket relied upon Republican votes to elect him the same as he did when he was elected governor nor was he disappointed. The danger to the State of Oregon was in selecting a man who would always be in the minority.

Parties represent principles and look at the two great parties. The Republican party stands for problems successfully settled, prosperity and commercial importance among all nations. It is the best there is in government and in full accord with all the great problems before the people. He spoke of the benefits of the forest reserve policy as a good thing for the present generation and a heritage due the future ones. The Republican party had succeeded in controlling the corporations and told of the remark of Mark Hanna when Mr. Roosevelt was suggested for the vice-presidency. Mr. Hanna remarked there was only one man between Mr. Roosevelt and the presidency and knowing the character of the man feared for the trusts of which he was a prominent factor.

Mr. Cake put himself on record as unalterably opposed to trusts. He cited the case of the Northern Securities as the first case of the administration applying corrective methods. Then the beef trust and the Standard Oil Company being fined $29,000,000. He emphasized the fact that behind prison bars was the place for the officers who deliberately combine interests and made competition impossible. (Great applause.) Then he paid his respects to the railroad companies and said that the reason Oregon only had 600,000 people to Washington's millions was because the railroads and especially the branch lines had been promised but never built. That transportation companies are public service corporations and must reverse the order of things, which is that the first duty is to themselves but they owe a duty to the public and must perform that first and attend to their own interests afterwards. The policy of the administration was to arrange the law and the transportation companies must come to the people and do their duty.

He spoke of the waterways and declared that the river should be made navigable from Astoria to Lewiston. That if the south jetty was not sufficient to secure 40 feet on the bar build a north jetty and send men to the Senate who would have influence enough to get an appropriation of $50,000,000 a year instead of $34,000,000 once in every two years. Whatever may be required to get 40 feet let us get the whole thing at once and place before congress the straight facts as they are. He thought the estimates of the engineers too low. But insisted that, this state must have direct water competition with the railroads. Tariff revision came in for a few salient remarks and he cautioned his hearers not to be led into the error of voting for a tariff for revenue only. Put himself squarely against Coolie labor and hoped new regulations would be made against the alarming emigration and said it would be regulated by a proper law. He discussed the relative merits of the two parties and declared that it was no consolation to be affiliated with the Democratic party as it had no policy. No planks and recalled the economic fallacy of Bryan's 16 to 1.

That Bryan was a Rooseveltian democrat—whatever that was. Then he explained the mode of Congressional procedure and showed how utterly a Democrat or member of the minority would be left off the important committees. In closing he urged all to stand by the party and keep the state at the head of the list of Republican states of the Pacific and the party's interest must be shown on June 1.
