The county court of Clatsop met in a brief and final session yesterday morning, for the purpose of making an order relative to the old rock-crusher, and which order directs Road Master J. F. Bartoldus to set the big machine at the quarry on the Barth place at Clatskanie Falls, a few miles from Olney. The new machine is busily at work on the Kamm ranch and doing good work court adjourned to meet again one week from Monday next, the 15th instant.

Official Count Made—

The vote of Clatsop county at the general election on Monday last, was officially counted and registered at the court house yesterday, County Clerk Clinton, City Auditor Anderson, and Justice Goodman, serving as the board. The final figures returned by the board do not differ, save in a single vote, from the tabulated statement made by this paper in its columns of Wednesday morning last; and that was on a minor amendment and in the negative column.

The robbers gained entrance to the store from beneath the wharf by forcing a small opening that was in the floor, enlarging it enough to admit the body of a man. The robbers easily escaped with their plunder without leaving the slightest trace or clue to who they might be. The case has been reported to the police with a description of the pipe which is the only article taken that may lead to the discovery of the principles.

Brings Suit On Astoria—

Suit has been filed by the attorneys of Mrs. Annie Anderson of Portland in the United States Court of that city against the City of Astoria for $20,000 for personal damages she sustained in this city during the regatta in 1907. Mrs. Anderson claims that while in Astoria she slipped on the apron on the railroad track, injuring her hip that she says will disable her for life. There is a question yet to be decided who is liable for her injuries, whether it is the railroad or city. But she has brought suit on the city alone. Mrs. Anderson is of foreign birth and has never been naturalized, consequently she had to bring the matter up before the United States court.

Up To The Authorities—

The insistent and utterly needless whistling, by the steamer Shoshone in this harbor yesterday morning, is a sample of the imposition thrust on the people of this city, day and night, by the masters of steam vessels, and is a case in point for the authorities to work upon, if there is any law for relief at hand. She was tied up at the Callenred dock, ready to sail at 3 o'clock, but at that hour, her crew being absent on a drinking bout in the lower levels, she turned her cyrent loose and kept it howling for 25 minutes without a break, to the discomfort of everybody from the Tongue to Smith's Point, the well, the sick, the nervous, young and old. It is time some protection was afforded against this kind of thing.
