WOMEN A FAILURE

In a Business Enterprise She Can't "Make Good"

CLAIMS A WOMAN WRITER

Only the Desexed Kind Succeed Partly, and They Never Become Leaders in Business, and the Professions.

NEW YORK, June 21.—"Woman has failed to 'make good' as a leader and thinker in the professions and in business. While many succeed in earning a very comfortable living for themselves, few rise to the top in any of the many lines of activity which they have invaded in recent years. Very few are among physicians or lawyers of note. Few rise to be executive heads of colleges, editors, or directors of big business enterprises. They have had control of fortunes; they have had sway in kitchens; they have always taught; they have always acted; yet men are the great financiers, cooks, teachers, managers of theatres. In no profession are they equal to any of the leading men who stand at the head of various occupations and whose names are familiar to the public."

This is the sweeping arraignment brought against woman in business and professional life by one of her own class, Mary O'Connor Newell, in the July number of Appleton's magazine, just published here. She quotes with approval the statement of a well-known man that there are three kinds of women in business—the kind that marry, the discontented kind—and that only the latter are successful. The confession is made that even the women who seem to be most successful in professional occupations usually regard themselves as failures whether they will admit it or not. By the time they have reached the point where they are able to accomplish important results they feel keenly the lack of family ties and home surroundings, and the more womanly they are the more strongly does this lack make itself felt. This is the explanation given of why so many young business women for whom brilliant careers are predicted abandon their chosen occupation for marriage.

In the Appleton article the writer also asserts that women are inferior to men in almost all the qualities that command success, that, except in rare cases, they have no real enthusiasm for their work, that they will not stick to their word, and that they have no code of business honor. Only in the home, as wife and mother does woman occupy a position of her own equal to that of man in the field of business, is the startling confession of this writer, speaking "from the inside" with a frankness that no man would dare to imitate.

Badly Sprained Ankle Cured.
Three years ago our daughter sprained her ankle and had been suffering terribly for two days and nights—had not slept a minute. Mr. Stallings, of Butler Tenn., told us of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We went to the store that night and got a bottle of it and bathed her ankle two or three times and she went to sleep and had a good night's rest. The next morning she was much better and in a short time could walk around and had no more trouble with her ankle.—E. M. ### THREE "STARS" SHORT

American Olympic Team Sail Minus Three Strong Performers.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Manager Mathew P. Halpin of the American Olympic Team, states that when the steamship pulls out from her dock Saturday the team will be minus three of its first strong performers. They are W. R. Dray of Yale, the crack-pole vaulter, J. D. Withal, the Pennsylvania sprinter and Rowe of Michigan, the distance runner. The absence of Dray will hardly make much difference as Gilbert, the other man from Yale, is nearly as good, though the pole vault department would have been much more sure with Dray along.

In case of sickness or accident to any of the other three his presence would be just the thing. The most important thing with regard to Withal is that he was an alternate for one of the 200 yard sprints in the 1,600 yard relay, and would be a capital man for the position. Good men in the distance runs are scarce, so Rowe will be more or less of a loss. All the members of the team have sent the measurements for suits and caps and every man who leaves on Sunday will have the official brand of racing togs stowed away safely in his kit.

Manager Halpin has been more or less anxious over McGrath. Some time ago he injured the cartilage of his knee and was incapacitated for a while, but the specialist on muscular trouble took the big hammer thrower in hand and cured him of the trouble. On Saturday last McGrath was out for the first time and sent the hammer 160 feet on his first attempt. He went at his work yesterday in real earnest and five times beat 171 feet. This means that he will be in his old trim at the English stadium.
