BLACKALL ADDRESS

At the International Sunday School Convention

DELIVERED AT LOUISVILLE

C. R. Blackall of Philadelphia is the Secretary of the International Sunday School Editorial Association That Met on June 23.

LOUISVILLE, June 24--C. R. Blackall delivered the following address at the International Sunday School Convention, held here. He spoke as follows:

Sunday School editors are in two distinct classes. The first of these classes, the smaller in point of numbers, is formed of those who are in charge of undenominational periodicals. Commercially these periodicals claim the whole world as their field; the vested interests are constantly being increased; a commendable activity is shown by their editors and publishers in pursuit of their purpose; this is coupled, as a rule, with a high order of intellectual and spiritual capacity and acumen. The force is one to be reckoned with.

The second and much the larger class, is formed of editors of denominational periodicals, each of the issues by this class being necessarily restricted in scope, influence and circulation. Their publication houses claim right of way, and loyalty to their very large vested interests. There is little disposition to yield their ground except under severe competition. The aggregate of their gross output naturally overtops that of all the others combined, as the following data gained personally by myself last year will prove. The gross output of Sunday School periodicals for 1906, are reported to the World's Convention, held in Rome, amounted to the enormous quantity of four hundred and eight-eight millions six hundred and sixty-eight thousand copies (488,668,000). The aggregate of the foreign issues (this in large degree estimated however), inclusive of those of Great Britain amounted, approximately, to twenty-five millions four hundred and thirty-three thousand copies (25,436,000), of which only one hundred and seventy-one thousand two hundred (171,200) were issued by denominational organizations. This left four hundred and sixty-three millions two hundred and thirty-two thousand (463,232,000) as American issues, including those of Canada, of which in round numbers three hundred and sixty-three millions (363,000,000), or about seventy-eight per cent., were published by denominational societies; and one hundred millions (100,000,000), or about twenty-two per cent., were published by undenominational or independent publishers. These totals would undoubtedly be very much enlarged if similar data were gathered for the year 1908. From present indications the proportions will be greatly changed during the next five or ten years, from causes that even now are self-evident.

The reciprocal influence of each of the two classes upon the other has been in marked degree beneficial. The high grade of excellence attained by any given periodical, whether independent or denominational, has compelled similar attainment on the part of others, in order to hold their ground, who otherwise might have been satisfied with inferior conditions. Healthy, though it must be said sometimes even unworthy, competition also has done its part, sometimes bringing the product below a proper standard, yet on the whole keeping prices at the lowest practical point, though not infrequently at the sacrifice of a high order of mechanical quality.

It is self-evident fact that by and of themselves, Sunday School editors are no more independent of their publishers than are editors of any other class of publications. The vision of the editor may be broad and far-reaching, but not clear to his publishers; his ideals may be swamped or practically nullified by financial considerations that the publishers dare not ignore or put aside; or it may be that the prospect of immediate pecuniary return from a given course is not sufficient to warrant what both publishers and editor would readily agree in regarding as both needed and definite progress, yet hindered or denied by scant and inadequate resources. Here associated effort is producing admirable results not otherwise within the reach of possibility, with a distinct uplift of the entire line to a higher level.

The Editorial Association has always been absolutely loyal to the International Association and its work, and I believe it will always remain so. Yet it must be distinctly admitted that the loyalty of its denominational members must first and always be to their own distinctive constituencies. If there is ever any swiveling of from present allegiance on the part of the latter class it will be from justifiable causes that cannot be corrected.

The Sunday School editors, in combination with the publishers, if they remain united in their present associated capacity, form the key to the whole Sunday School situation. They are in closest touch with the entire Sunday School host. An average proportion of about one to every one hundred and fifty thousand (150,000) of the Sunday School officers and teachers attend any given session of the International Association, and this but once in three years. If the adult pupils in the schools are included, the relative proportion of attendants upon the International Association would be much less, and if the statistics were at all reliable it would doubtless be found that the ratio would be still further diminished. An equally small proportion attend state and local gatherings. The editors, however, speak to the entire working force, from four to twelve and often fifty-two times every year, exercising a potent and direct influence upon the whole body, as well as in the molding of the younger element from which shall ere long come new leaders.

The Sunday School Editorial Association is necessarily numerically small, but it is in evidence in exceedingly large degree at this convention as a distinct and effective factor in carrying out the beneficent purpose for which the International Sunday School Association so nobly stands. In the future, as in the past, it may be depended on to "make good" every time and all the time.

Cured Hemorrhages of the Lungs.

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take Foley's Honey and Tar, and my lungs are now as sound as a bell. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble." Foley's Honey and Tar stop the cough and heals the lungs, and prevents serious results from a cold. Refuse substitutes. T. F. Laurin, Owl Drug Store.

If you will make inquiry it will be a revelation to you how many succumb to kidney or bladder troubles in one for another. If the patient is not beyond medical aid, Foley's Kidney Cure will cure. It never disappoints.

The dull feeling in the head which is not quite an ache, but bad enough to make one miserable, can be driven away by Lane's Family Medicine, the best cure for headache.

RACING UNDER NEW LAW

Betting Ring Of New York Track Turned Into Restaurants.

NEW YORK, June 24.--The greatest outward change in the appearance of the Sheephead Bay race course since the Coney Island Jockey Club's meeting opened under the provisions of the Hart-Agnew Anti-Betting Law has just been made. The former betting rings, by the simple expedient of moving in tables, chairs and benches, having been transformed into open air restaurants and lounging places.

The places are cool and breezy, but the police refuse to forget the records of the inclosure and a guard of scattering patrolmen keep watch on the new restaurant. Horsemen have taken interest in the fight in progress in Louisiana against the winter track and received with lively approval an announcement on behalf of the New California Jockey Club of San Francisco that racing there will be on the greatest scale ever known. It is believed here that the proposed extension of the San Francisco meeting and the addition of a number of a big stake events will result in the going to the coast of a number of great eastern horses.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS.

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles--A Citizen of Astoria Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Astoria people testify to permanent cures.

Theodore Josephson, 515 Seventh street, Astoria, Ore., says: "About five years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and derived great benefit. I was suffering from severe pains across my back and my loins and at times was unable to stoop or straighten. My kidneys also bothered me a great deal, as the secretions were generally too free in passing. At last Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and I procured a box at Charles Rogers & Son's drug store. I began using them and my health is now excellent. I take a few doses now and then, when feeling any sign of backache and they never fail to banish the trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name--Doan's--and take no other.

A Grand Family Medicine

"It gives me pleasure to speak a good word for Electric Bitters," Mr. Frank Conlan of No. 436 Houston street New York. "It's a grand family medicine for dyspepsia and liver complications; while for lame back and weak kidneys it cannot be too highly recommended." Electric Bitters regulate the digestive functions, purify the blood, and impart renewed vigor and vitality to the weak and debilitated of both sexes. Sold under guarantee at Chas. Rogers & Son's drug store. 50c.

No medicine has ever done more towards warding off grip and pneumonia and relieving the distressing grip cough than Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure.
