KOKO HEAD'S SWIFT TRANS-PACIFIC TRIP—ROSE CITY IN
WITH BIG CROWD—FLEET
DUE IN TODAY—NOTES.

The steamer Harvest Queen will be down early this morning, and fasten on to the American four-masted barkentine Koko Head, Captain Larson, just arrived from Yokohama after a crackerjack run of 31 days, which puts the 32-day run of the Irene, Captain Mitchell from San Diego to this port slightly in the shade. The Koko Head comes in ballast and will go to the Portland Lumber Company's docks and load deep for Sydney, Australia.

The steamer Spencer came down eight yesterday. Among her passengers up-river were Miss Florence Cann, who goes to Portland to visit with her aunt, Mrs. Jack Thompson; and Mrs. G. B. Blessing and baby daughter, for a week's stay with relatives; and Captain and Mrs. John Haggblom and children, en route to Collins Springs for a two weeks' outing.

There is a big fleet due in this port today, from up-stream and from sea, among them being the steamers R. D. Inman, from San Francisco; the Casco, from there; the Johan Poulsen, from Portland; the F. S. Loop, from Portland; the Washington, from San Francisco; the Yosemite, from Portland; the Northland, from the Bay City; the Cascades, also from there.

The steamship Roanoke entered port last evening and stayed at the Callender pier long enough to give her passengers a chance to "run to the fire," at Dunbar's; and they were very free with kindly encomiums upon the swift and clever work of the As-

SLASHES 5 HINDUS UNCONSCIOUS FROM A WITH KNIFE FIST BLOW

EMIL JANSEN A LONGSHORE-MAN, GETS IN QUARREL AND
DOES FRIGHTFUL EXECU-TION AMONG FOREIGNERS

Five Hindus were cut and slashed in a frightful manner last evening about 6 o'clock by Emil Janssen, a Belgian fisherman and longshoreman. The affair occurred at Sixth and Astor streets. None of the Hindus are wounded dangerously, though several are slashed about the head and thorax in a vicious manner and the street became red with their blood.

Janssen was arrested. He was drunk. At the police station he was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. The arrest was made by Patrolman Houghten, assisted by Constable Sayer.

The affair was a frightful one of its kind because of the savage and barbarous onslaught made by Janssen on the Hindus. That he did not kill one or more of them was, apparently, no fault of Janssen. Out of half a dozen stories of the matter told by various ones, the facts appear to be fairly plain.

Yesterday many of the Hindus employed at the Hammond mills at Tongue Point came to the city because of a temporary, lay-off in their work. Towards evening some of them wandered down near the waterfront. It is likely they had been drinking some, though if so it was not noticeable according to several who saw them and the fracas. In one of the saloons at Sixth and Astor they met Janssen, who had been drinking, and out on the street Janssen started the trouble.

Then an odd thing happened. Janssen rushed in on one of the dark-skinned foreigners and was promptly laid on his back. He had met a Tartar in the apparently inoffensive foreigner from the land of dreams and strange things. Again Janssen, who is a powerful and active man, with the brawn that life on the river gives, rushed in, and again he was laid on his back after a fierce struggle that lasted only for a moment. Some said the Hindu threw him by tripping.

So far the story is clear. The rest of it happened so quickly and viciously that the accounts differ. For the third time Janssen clinched his antagonism and this time he secured a "strangle hold" on the Hindu's neck. He began to slowly crush and choke the life out of him. The other Hindus then jumped in to the aid of their companion and pulled Janssen off. Janssen darted into one of the nearby "cribs" and came out with a knife shining in his hand, and like a flash he jumped into the pack of men before him.

Up and down and right and left slashed the blade and every time it reached home somewhere on a brown skin. One man had the end of a finger almost slashed off. Another was cut about the head and face half a dozen times. Besides several minor cuts another received a long, vicious cut along the jaw, which, had it struck a few inches lower, might have severed the juglar.

A great crowd collected in a trice and Janssen retreated with his bloody knife into a neighboring place, where he was later found by the police officer.

Three of the Hindus, after all of them had wandered about in their bloody condition through the unsympathetic crowd for a time, were directed to the office of Dr. Estes, where the physician worked for a couple of hours in sewing up their wounds. The Hindu with the bad cut along his jaw was sent to his home.

To the ordinary reader the names of the Hindus would be meaningless. Each was a "Singh." As a rule the Hindus are looked upon as being very peaceful and about as inoffensive as so many rabbits, though Chief of Police Gammal said last night they have caused more trouble here of late than all the foreigners together. Had not Janssen been drunk it is probable he would not have been so easily handled by the Hindu when he attacked him, and had he not been drunk it is probable he would not have made his vicious onslaught with the knife. As the case now stands, according to the accounts of the matter, he may consider himself highly lucky that he probably won't have to face a manslaughter or murder charge. It is said that the man who threw him escaped. The ones cut were the "innocent bystanders."

JAMES SCOTT (OLD "SCOTTY")
LIES IN PRECARIOUS CONDI-TION AS RESULT OF AN ALTERCATION SUNDAY.

James Scott, better known by his familiar cognomen of "Scotty," was struck on the head during an altercation Sunday night and severely injured. For a time it was thought his skull was fractured. Yesterday "Scotty" lay in a precarious condition, hardly conscious of his surroundings.

His assailant was James O'Malley, a man who has been in the city about a month. It seems the men had some words Sunday evening and one or more blows followed the words. "Scotty" fell, and since then he has been tenderly cared for by Dennis J. Cummins, around whose places the injured man has frequently worked. Yesterday Dr. Fulton, whose services had been retained, said that apparently "Scotty's" skull may not have been fractured, as his breathing and eyes did not indicate an injury of that specific nature. At all events the wounded man appeared to be in pretty bad shape and fears were expressed over his condition.

O'Malley, who struck "Scotty," was later arrested by Police Officer Houghten and in police court yesterday afternoon was charged with vagrancy. Three police officers testified that they have seen O'Malley hanging around town for about a month and that he did little or no work. To this charge O'Malley put up a spirited defense, but inasmuch as it was deemed the part of wisdom to hold him until the outcome of "Scotty's" injuries became known, Judge Anderson apparently placed little weight on his statements and fined him $30 or in lieu thereof a sentence of 15 days.

O'Malley said in court that "Scotty" had struck him first, and that he only struck back in self defense. His blow must have been a powerful one. While on his way to the jail O'Malley hurt his leg pretty badly.

Exploding a Mine in Granite.
One of the methods of quarrying granite is to dislodge a huge sheet from the surface of the formation through the medium of a powder mine. A large perpendicular shaft is first blasted to a depth of about thirty feet. At the bottom of this and radiating in all directions horizontally, like the spokes of a huge wheel, long holes are drilled. The extremities of these holes are then shot with light charges of dynamite in order to create chambers large enough to receive large quantities of black powder. This takes weeks of ever increasing charges. Then the final charge is loaded. The now huge chambers at the extremities of the spokes are packed with hundreds of pounds of powder, numerous electric wires attached and the whole mine tamped with fine material. A mighty roar and rumble in the bowels of the earth and the huge sheet is detached from the ledge.—Popular Mechanics.

A Fraudulent Tax.
A well to do German farmer in a western state came into the town of which he was accounted a resident to pay his taxes. The bill was handed to him, itemized as follows:
State tax.....$15.00
County tax..... 8.50
School tax..... 5.00
Total.....$28.50

After the German had carefully scrutinized the bill he set his lips tightly and in a very determined manner said: "I pays de state tax, I pays de county tax and I pays de school tax, but I be doggoned if I pays dat total tax. I never had no total tax! I think he is a fraud!"—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Missed the Mark.
A north of England clergyman recently preached against ill natured gossiping and spoke pretty plainly to his congregation on the subject. One of the members of the congregation to whom he was especially alluding came up to him after the service. The vicar thought he had touched her and that she was about to express contrition, but she said, "Ah, vicar, I am so glad you spoke out, and what a good thing it was the Misses — were there to hear you."—Church Family Newspaper.

SOME FINE SAMPLES

ASTORIA CLAY PRODUCT COM-PANY GETS ITS BIG MACHIN-ERY ON THE GROUND AND WILL SOON SET IT UP.

Manager Lew Ogan, of the Astoria Clay Product Company, is just now congratulating himself upon the successful completion of the big haul of the company's new and fine machinery, from the Hammond mill dock, at Tongue Point, to the big plant nearly a mile this side of there.

By a clever arrangement between Mr. Ogan and the A. & C. people and the management of the Hammond mills, the railway company was enabled to discharge their cars of the bulky freight at the Tongue, and on the first day thereafter, that would permit the work to be done without interfering with the yard work of the mills people, Manager Ogan was allowed to do the task that awaited him and he summoned his forces and the necessary drays and set about it with his usual vigor and precision. He worked all of Sunday and far into the night getting the great batch of machines on to the grounds and into the buildings where they will be set up for service, and he and his men were pretty nearly worn out with the heavy lifting and the ponderous haul.

The new machinery consists of a huge seven-ton press, with a power of 4000 pounds to the square inch; dry-pan; crushing and conveying apparatus; elevating processes; trucks, cars, dynamos, engine, and warming box; all of it very heavy, and very expensive, the lot standing the company nearly $6000.

In due time, probably by September 1st, all will be set up and the new venture will make its initial start in the world of manufacturing of a wide range of products; at which time more, and larger details of the fine business will be given out.

His Turn to Criticize.

Little John, who, at the mature age of four, has learned the Lord's Prayer, is often criticised by his sister, two years older, for slight mistakes which he cannot always avoid in offering the petition. A few Sundays ago he was taken to church for the first time. When the moment for the prayer arrived and the congregation bowed their heads John's mother took the precaution to whisper to him that he must be very quiet. "Listen," she said, "and you will hear the minister pray." This interested John at once, and his little face took on a look of serious attention, but his mother, watching him covertly, saw his expression change presently to one of surprise and disapproval. A few minutes more, and he could stand it no longer. What could this man be saying? Not a word of the prayer did he recognize as the only formula he had ever heard called by that name.

"Why, mother," he exclaimed in a tone audible over nearly half the church, "do you hear? He isn't saying it right at all!"—St. Louis Republic.
