Chairman Robinson who has charge of the electric sign, "ASTORIA," for the marine parade, is working energetically and promises to eclipse all previous efforts.

Captain Simon of the four-masted ship Donna Francisca, has promised to let the champion chanty-song men from his good ship lead in chanty songs after the crowning of Queen Hattie. There is another one of the new features and should prove highly interesting. A number of local gentlemen who possess good voices have been requested to assist.

Admiral Shepherd is expected here today to confer with the Regatta committee. The admiral has mailed handsomely printed commissions to each member of his staff, which commissions are much appreciated.

The sheriffs of Oregon who hold their annual gathering here during the regatta will turn out in the grand parade.

Secretary Foster of the Veteran Fireman's Committee is receiving numerous acceptances from the old volunteers to turn out with the machines once again.

The Tug of War Men Agree on Live Pig as Booby Prize---Will Photograph Them

The captains of the various teams in the tug of war contest to be held during the regatta met with the committee yesterday and discussed matters connected therewith and settled several important matters in connection with the contest.

The meeting was a very harmonious one and was attended by H. F. Prael, G. C. Fulton and Judge Olof Anderson, the committee in charge, Capt. A. M. Planck, the manager, and the captains of all the teams. Several matters were thoroughly discussed and the unanimity of sentiment evident showed the enthusiasm of the different teams, each being determined to win, and confident that they will do so.

Capt. Franciscovich of the Austrian team before the adjournment, jokingly suggested that a booby prize be awarded to the team in the last place in the awards, and proposed that a live pig be the prize. The suggestion caused laughter but was picked up by the captains and the committee, and Messrs. Prael, Fulton and Anderson agreed to pay for the pig, Franciscovich to secure it, and his porkshop is to be in evidence in the parade and on the stand during the tournament.

Everything is going finely in the preparations, the teams are training, and the contest is expected to be a most successful outcome and this will, without doubt, be one of the main features of the regatta.

STREET WORK TWISTING WATER PIPES

BIG CUT ON WEST COMMERCIAL CAUSES SLIGHT TROUBLE.

The work of the contractor in improving West Commercial street has thus far caused very little trouble or damage to the homes that lie in the lower ground directly to the north. Yesterday, however, it is understood, the water pipes in the home of Mrs. J. K. Smith at 123 First street were badly twisted apparently by the great mass of earth used in the fill directly to the south of the house.

The most interesting question that has arisen in connection with the improvements on West Commercial street relates to the proposed abutment at the rear of the property belonging to Postmaster John Hahn. According to statements made at the city hall, when the plans and specifications of this improvement were formulated it was not contemplated that any bulkhead would be required at the Hahn property, inasmuch as it seemed to have been the impression that Mr. Hahn would good naturedly permit sufficient filling in his yard to act as a natural abutment for the graded street, provided and were needed. But it appears that Mr. Hahn's property is cultivated clear to the street line; flowers and berry bushes grow there, and in addition to this, the contemplated filling in his back yard clearly would hardly add to the value nor the sightliness of his place. Therefore he objects to the filling, it is understood, and the necessity of a bulkhead arises.

For a clear understanding of the situation it must be premised that immediately to the west of Mr. Hahn's property bulkheads were provided for, and naturally are to be paid for by the general, "assessment" district. These bulkheads to the west were constructed, especially in front of the Mrs. Trullinger property. But so vast was the weight pushing against the Trullinger abutment that it has begun to bend and give, and one of the poles is already cracked. One might easily guess that this bulkhead, which does not wear an appearance of great strength, is likely to give away and if it does the house would probably be given a bad shaking up and would be half buried. It is said that the contractor, Mr. Foote, has purchased the Trullinger house very recently and intends to fill in the lot and raise the house to grade, which apparently is an excellent means of avoiding the possible danger from the bulging bulkhead.

The bulkhead at Mr. Hahn's property would not necessarily be very high. The only question is, whether he should pay for it, or should it be paid for by others within the improved district; or, should he be compelled to pay for even a part of it when it may be argued that the improvement is of no benefit to his property.

Meantime the question of sliding property in this locality may arise later, especially as to homesteads to the south which lie on the hillside and the cutting down of the street to grade simply has a tendency to cut away the support of the properties in question.

The selection of Chief of Police Gammal as referee gives good satisfaction to all of the teams as do also G. C. Fulton and Judge Olof Anderson as judges, with A. W. Hawkinson of Portland, who has much experience in Oregon and California, and Constable Lon Wagner, also of Portland, as special judges. H. F. Prael will be official timekeeper.

POLICE CHIEF ADVISES MORE CAUTION

DURING REGATTA WEEK THE HOUSEHOLDERS SHOULD GUARD AGAINST THEFTS

If you are a bondholder and accustomed to keep Standard Oil and other securities in the house, or if you are a house-wife and are in the habit of leaving the silver spoons and other valuable things lying around somewhat carelessly, it may well be remembered that during the regatta week there will be many strangers in the city. Already many are here. It probably will be the part of wisdom to see that things are placed in a safe place, and especially that doors and windows are not carelessly left open while everyone is downtown.

Last year a few pickpockets infested the crowds, just as there was a little of that work done on the last Fourth of July celebration, but all-in-all Astoria has usually been quite fortunate in not having many robberies of a serious kind. Nevertheless—"verb. sap", as the school boys used to learn.

Chief of Police Gammal said last evening that preparations will be made to watch the crowds, and that special police officers will be detailed in civilian clothes.

Chief Gammal also suggests that householders should be careful while there are so many strangers in the city. Recently there have been a number of petty thefts, along the waterfront and in hotels and saloons. Yesterday a warrant was issued for the arrest of a man by name of Alexander who is charged with having stolen a suit of clothes from Henry Fowler at the New Nehalem house several days ago. The clothes were recovered in a pawn shop, where they had been "put up" for only a few dollars. A couple of weeks ago the theft of some jewels including one or more diamonds, was reported at one of the hotels, but the police were not able to fasten the crime upon anyone, though suspicion was directed towards one person in particular. The jewels were stolen from a lady who is visiting her sister in Astoria.

One of the coziest and most popular resorts in the city is the Commercial. The best of goods are only handled, and this fact being so well known, a large business is done at the Commercial, on Commercial street, near Eleventh.
