BOSTON HACK DRIVER DISCOVERS HORRIBLE MURDER

Vaudeville Performer Accidentally Kills Wife—Cuts Body to Pieces and Packs in Trunk

HUSBAND IS ARRESTED—MAKES CONFESSION

Tells Police His Wife Had Taken to Drink and During a Quarrel He Killed Her and, Becoming Desperate, Hoped to Hide the Crime

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—A brutal crime was discovered tonight by the discovery of the torso of Mrs. Honorah Jordan, an actress, aged 23, of Somerville, in a trunk in a boarding house at No. 7 Hancock street, this city. Later the head and bones of her limbs were found in a furnace of the Jordan home at Somerville, and her scalp of hair and other remains taken from the kitchen range in the house.

Chester Jordan, aged 29, an actor, of Somerville, is held by the police, charged with the murder, and tonight, according to the officers, made a complete confession of the crime. According to his confession, he accidentally killed his wife Tuesday night in a quarrel at their home, and becoming desperate over what he had done he went out and bought a butcher knife and with this knife, a razor and a pair of shears he cut up the body and place the torso in a trunk.

He planned to take a steamer for New York and throw parts of the body overboard.

The fact that the steamer Harvard laid off, owing to an accident, disarranged his plans and he was obliged to employ a hackman to take the trunk to the Boston boarding house and await a more favorable opportunity. The discovery of the crime is due to the suspicions of Hackman George W. Collins, who had in mind numerous robberies in Boston recently, and surmising from the weight of the trunk, that it contained silverware, he notified the police. When the police went to the boarding house, Jordan

Donohue Leaves Note Accusing a "Jos. Berry" of Murder of Mrs. Donohue

POLICE TAKE UP NEW SCENT

Donohue Had Already Made Application For the Life Insurance and the Money Mrs. Donohue Had in a Bank.

OAKLAND, Sept. 3.—Daniel Donohue, husband of Mrs. Alice Donohue, who was murdered and buried in Emeryville, a suburb of Oakland, and whose body was found Sunday, shot and killed himself at his home this morning. The body was found by Deputy Coroner Sergeant and Deputy Public Administrator Flood who had gone to search for him. Donohue was forced to give proof this afternoon of his marriage to the woman. He had already made application for the $9000 cash bank and life insurance and the $3700 left by Mrs. Donohue and was under subpoena to appear as a witness at the inquest which met this afternoon. When he did not appear a deputy was sent to get him. Donohue still grasped the revolver with which he shot himself and on the table was this note:

"I am innocent of this crime; if you will find Jos. Berry, you will get the man that had or did the deed." The note was not signed.

Joseph Berry is the man with whom Mrs. Donohue is reported to have lived with before she took up with Donohue. The police are bending every effort to locate him. The suicide of Donohue caused a continuance of the inquest until next Tuesday. It leaves the murder farther from solution.

The police believe that Donohue was not married to the woman and Captain of Detectives Petersen and Sheriff Barnet feel that Donohue was concerned in the murder, and shot himself when he knew he must explain under oath his relations with the woman, and his haste in making application for her money and life insurance. That he shot himself as soon as he learned he was under the eyes of the police seems certain. The note of Donohue will change the attitude of the police towards Gustave Ahlstedt alias Arkell, who has been held on suspicion.
