ILWACO

J. A. Howerton, left Tuesday for a business trip to Astoria, returning home Thursday morning.

Last Tuesday, Clark Hedrick, suffered a large and ugly gash across the face, when, the horse, which he was riding, threw him. Mr. Hedrick was stunned for a few minutes, but in the course of an hour or two was able to again take up his work in the store.

Ben Wise returned the first of the week from a business trip to Portland where he laid in his fall and winter supply of dry goods.

J. A. Vaughn returned Wednesday from Portland, where he attended the funeral of his friend, Mrs. Crosby who died recently in Portland.

Isaac Belknap, deputy sheriff of Pacific County, was in town Wednesday and Thursday, he returned to Chinook Thursday evening.

Charlie Rogers, proprietor of the Ilwaco Mill and Lumber Co., returned Wednesday, on the launch, from a trip to Astoria.

Reverend McWaters returned Wednesday from Tacoma, where he has been attending the Methodist Conference, for a week or more with Rev. Temple of South Bend. Mr. McWaters suffered considerably from seasickness, while crossing the bay, between South Bend and Nahcotta.

R. H. Herrold, who is engaged in fishing on the Nasel river was in town for a few days this week. He reports fish running very poorly at present, but entertains hopes for the run of dog-salmon.

A telegram, from Wrangle Alaska, was received this week saying that Norman Hawkins, a well known young man, who was born and reared in Ilwaco, but who has of late years, worked in California, was in the wreck of the "Star of Bengal" and was numbered among the drowned. His body was recovered, with several others, and was buried on the Alaskan beach. His many friends and acquaintances are deeply grieved over the untimely death of their beloved young friend, while, his mother, brothers and sisters are inconsolable. It is very probable that the body will be sent for, and re-interred in the cemetery here.

John Clancy and Percy Colbert returned Wednesday from the Nasel. Mr. Clancy will return in the course of a few days, but Mr. Colbert left Thursday for Whitworth College.

Last Tuesday, Ernest Samples, cut his foot quite severely with an axe, while in the employ of the Ilwaco Mill and Lumber Co. He will not be able to be at work again for a week or more.

Mrs. James Gold, is quite ill at present, but hopes are entertained by Dr. Paul, who is in attendance, for a speedy recovery.

Many people are leaving daily for the cranberry marsh, where they will spend a few months outing and at the same time earn some money picking berries. The crop this season is remarkably good and, there is a large demand for pickers.

W. O. Fowler, returned Thursday from Astoria, where he has been for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Eckert passed through Ilwaco Thursday on their way to Ocean Park, after a most pleasant visit in Seattle, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eckert.

Sam Maxwell spent a few days this week in Astoria, in the interests of his employer, J. H. Walker.

TOOK GLIMPSE AT THE OLD COUNTY JAIL

SOME OF THE COUNTY BUILDINGS WERE LOOKED OVER BY THE GRAND JURY.

The members of the grand jury had a comparatively free day yesterday, because of the fact that the prosecuting attorney's office was engaged in the circuit court with a criminal trial and they spent the day variously. They looked over some of the public buildings, including the county jail and the court house, and some citizens may be hopeful enough to think they may report that the county jail is old and dilapidated and ought to be replaced by a new one on some other site.

It is also said the jury looked over a number of saloons in several parts of the city, apparently seeing just what the characters of the places are.

Judging from the witnesses who have appeared before the jury it may be true that it is looked into the question of the Sunday closing law and other alleged violations with some care.

But entirely irrespective of the action of the grand jury, it is known that the prosecuting attorney, Mr. Tongue, is preparing plans for the enforcement of laws that heretofore have not been enforced as they should be. Mr. Tongue talks freely of this matter and he has stated that if the laws are not strictly enforced in this community it will not be from lack of proper activity and zeal on the part of that office. If Mr. Tongue is enabled to make good his desires in this matter there probably will be a shaking up of things in general and a cessation of the game of shuttlecock that has been going on for quite a time between several departments.

Meantime the presence of the grand jury has been observed with much interest by many citizens and there seems to be a general feeling that the calling of this body, as provided by the new law, is a good thing. There also seems to be an impression that this jury is composed of worthy and intelligent citizens, and that if there is anything they can take up and deliberate upon that they surely will do so, though as far as is known, there does not seem to be a very wide field of activity for their energies just now.

Casey Found Guilty

authorities, and the present prosecuting attorney, Mr. Tongue, had had no opportunity to discuss the matter with him.

Dr. Forsstrom testified that his examination showed that the crime had not been completed, technically.

The evidence of Dr. Finch, however, on the previous day, had tended to show a different conclusion, though naturally a year had elapsed in the interim and Dr. Finch's testimony could only be circumstantial, and not direct and virtually conclusive, as was that of Dr. Forsstrom. At all events this doubt cast upon the actual commission of the technical crime, left the jury nothing to do, apparently, but return a verdict of guilt for an attempt, or of returning a verdict of innocence.

Mr. Tongue, the prosecuting attorney, in his address to the jury, called attention in an impassioned manner to certain alleged inconsistencies on the part of the defense. Mr. Brownell, the assistant prosecutor, opened the argument for the prosecution, while Mr. McCue, who was alone in conducting the defense and fought hard for his client, made a strong address to the jury.

Dr. Forsstrom was very much put out by the published accounts of his absence in Portland when the trial, of which he was an important witness, was called. He stated that he had not been subpoenaed and knew nothing of it being called yesterday.

political housecleaning has begun. It is hinted that a demand will be made by Mr. Bryan for the dismissal of Cortelyou from the cabinet on the ground of the disclosure this morning that he personally solicited and procured funds from H. H. Rogers and John D. Archbold, Standard Oil managers, to the extent of $100,000 in 1904 to save the national and state tickets in New York that the disavowal will be demanded of the endorsement given by the administracome back here and she felt as if he would be better off away from the city.

"I would also like to know if he dived with suicidal intent. Also what disposition was made of the body and what became of his personal effects (if he had any). Thanking you and anxiously awaiting your reply I remain. Yours sincerely,

"LOTTIE M. BERRY.

"No. 1027 Vermont St."

This letter, and its plea for further enlightenment on the unhappy incident, moved the Astorian to get into immediate communication with Captain Connick, of the Ocean Park station, and he was called on long-distance telephone yesterday afternoon, and closely questioned regarding the personality of the unfortunate man whom he and his men found and buried, and who is believed to have been Frank Sullivan.

In describing the body, Captain Connick stated clearly and distinctly that he was a well-knit, stout-bodied, young man, of about 25 years, with light brown hair, eyes of blue (he thought, but was not certain), with tattooing on both fore-arms well down toward the hands, dressed in a blue shirt, that was sleeveless, and in blue sailor trousers with a sharp flare at the bottom, AND ACROSS THE BREAST WAS PINNED THE WELL KNOWN PENNANT OF THE ASTORIA REGATTA, THE LETTERS "A. A. R.," every detail of which is directly and literally indicative of the identity of the man beyond all further cavil, because the night before his death, Sullivan was in company with Edward B. Hill, son of and assistant to his father, George Hill, of the Russian baths on Astor street, who lent him the sleeveless blue shirt and gave him the pennant tion to Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island and by his appointment as chairman of the currency commission, because of his acknowledged connection with the Standard Oil Company, with the letters aforesaid upon it, which Sullivan then and there pinned securely across the breast of the garment, with a remark to the effect that it would show his association with the committee and the sports of the season. Mr. Hill is entirely free with his statements and has been convinced that the body reported was Sullivan's ever since the matter has been under argument.

Captain Connick said yesterday that the body was buried at a point about two miles from the Ocean Park station, unmarked, so far, but that since the matter has reached the stage it has, he would at once proceed to definitely mark the spot and keep it so that subsequent search and inquiry may be duly met.

There was also in the pockets of the coat left by Sullivan, a hotel room-key with a tag attached bearing the number "10," and Mr. Cherry would be glad to return it to the proprietor of the house which had been patronized by the young man the night before he met his untimely death, and will do so upon a proper showing.
