CRAFT ARRIVING AND DEPARTING IN AND FROM ASTORIA
—AND THEIR MASTERS, MEN AND MESSAGES

The fine Japanese steamship Fukui Maru entered port yesterday, from Hakodate, with 1,300,000 feet of Japanese oak logs, for Portland delivery. She is officered entirely by Japanese and is a great carrier. The logs come from the great oak forests of Otaru, on the west coast of Japan and are especially fine specimens. She had a good passage over with nothing of importance to mark it; and went on to the metropolis in the afternoon.

Captain Sproul brought the tug Astoria into port yesterday morning from around Gray's Harbor way, for the purpose of towing the hull of the old bay steamer Volga hence to Willapa Harbor, where the hull will be used as a fish barge or station, by P. J. McGowan & Sons, who have recently purchased her of Captain Babbidge. Captain Sproul left across the bay with his tow, and wooped up at Knappton, before proceeding to sea.

The Nehalem bar tug Geo. R. Vosburg entered port yesterday morning with the barge Nehalem on her lines and docked her tow at the A. & C. dock. The barge was loaded with 60 or 70 great logs, from three to five feet in diameter, and the cargo demonstrates what can be done on the bars of Oregon when the weather permits. It is not known yet whether the logs are intended for the mills of this port or Portland.

The Kamm liner Lurline went up last evening with a big load of freight and the following named people: B. O. Bainter, Mrs. T. Yorke and family, Mrs. R. Spooner and children, Mrs. F. Burley, A. Slaughterback and family, John Barton, H. Fleckenstein, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Soule, chairman and governess; B. F. Greene and family.

The steamship State of California came in from San Francisco yesterday at noon and was soon alongside the O. R. & N. piers, where she remained for a few hours discharging local freight. She had 184 passengers on board, and went on to Portland at 3 o'clock.

The Elmore motor packet Evie arrived in from Tillamook Bay yesterday afternoon and went on to Portland with her cargo of salmon and other things. The Sue H. Elmore was also due in but failed to materialize at sundown.

An aerogram was received at the United Wireless Station on Smith's Point last evening from the steamship Buckman, then off the Columbia bar, bound north and for Seattle; all well on board.

The British steamship Koko Head is due down from Portland today, with an immense load of lumber, bound for New Zealand. She will depart at once upon arrival here, as the grim old bar off this river is very placable these days.

The handsome lighthouse tender Columbine, Captain Charles Richardson, commanding, is at her berth at the foot of Eighth street, blowing down her boilers, and getting in readiness for another trip over the Thirteenth District.

The steamer Shoshone made it out of this port yesterday, with 160,000 feet from the Hammond mills and the Clatsop mills, bound for the Bay City.

The steamships Breakwater and Alliance crossed each other's bows on Sunday morning last, in their passage to and from the Coos coast, through these waters.

The steamship Geo. W. Elder is due to come in this morning from the California coast, with her usual strong equipment of people and freight.

The steamer Johan Poulsen entered port yesterday morning and after a brief call at the Callender dock, went on to the metropolis.

The steamer Johan Poulsen entered port yesterday morning and after a brief call at the Callender dock, went on to the metropolis.

The British ship Crown of India was a Sunday getaway over the Columbia bar.

The British ship Largiemore went to sea and Europe yesterday on the tow lines of the Wallula.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT.

The popular Grand Theatre has an exceptionally good program on this week that is well worth the time of anyone to witness. One film in particular is worthy of mention entitled "Don Juan" a beautiful colored film that is meeting with unbounded delight by the many people who so far have seen it. The story is an old familiar one and needs no reviewing at this time. Besides this picture there are several others of the comedy variety that are pleasing immensely. Taking the show all in all it is the best program Manager Shorty of this popular place of amusement has yet offered and is easily the best assortment of pictures in town this week.

FUNNIEST PEOPLE EVER.

CHAMBER ELECTS THE PORT COMMISSION

MANY WELL KNOWN CITIZENS WERE PLACED IN NOMINATION.

- Charles Wilson
- G. Wingate
- F. A. Fisher
- T. L. Ball
- Jas. Finlayson
- Charles Callender
- S. S. Gordon

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night the seven gentlemen who will comprise the Port of Astoria Commission in the event that project is carried by the people in the December election were selected by ballot. The names of the seven elected appear above. The balloting was spirited, and the names of many other well known citizens were also placed in nomination. Mr. Gordon, whose name appears in the list, had run a tie with Gust Holmes, each having received 18 votes, but when the tie was voted on again Mr. Gordon carried it by a majority of several votes.

Mr. Wingate, who has been one of the warmest workers for the Port of Astoria bill from the beginning, made a motion before the balloting commenced last night that the number of the commission be changed from five to seven, and this carried without objection.

In a general way Mr. Wingate has taken charge of the matter in the several discussions that have arisen over it in the Chamber of Commerce meetings, and last night he placed in nomination a "slate" of seven names for the commission. It was understood that these seven men all favored the project and were looked upon as men who would enter heartily into the plan in all its phases. This "slate" carried, with but one exception. The name of Mr. Holmes was one of the seven and he was finally defeated by Mr. Gordon, though it is understood that those who have worked for and made the bill what it now is have no objections at all to Mr. Gordon.

The commission will hold office indefinitely, providing that the people make the bill a law. They are to hold office until their successors "are elected and appointed," though by the initiative an election might be called at any time and new commissioners voted for.

There was nothing else of great importance before the session last night. F. L. Evans, promoter of the proposed electric line to Seaside, appeared before the Chamber and asked that a committee be appointed to secure the rights of way between this city and Seaside. The Chamber of Commerce had heretofore practically volunteered to do this part of the work, but by inadvertence the actual work of securing the formal rights of way has been suffered to stand in abeyance, and the time has now come when something must be accomplished at once. The chair was empowered to appoint such a committee, and he will do so within the next day or two. A committee will also be appointed to arrange for securing funds with the purpose in view of continuing the line to Cannon Beach.

The representative of the company that may underwrite the bonds for the electric line is expected in the city today, and he will be properly met and entertained by the president and secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

E. M. Cherry, acting British vice-consul, was elected a member of the Chamber, as also was F. J. Finch.

Just before adjournment, Mr. Finlayson called attention to the reported case of cholera in San Francisco, and suggested that this might be a good time for the Chamber to again call attention to the federal government of the need of more adequate sanitary and quarantine arrangements here. The secretary will act upon this suggestion.

musical farce entitled "A Lonesome Town." And it was one uproarious laugh from the start to the finish; there was nothing else to do but laugh.

The players found themselves up for all the fun they could make, and it was no task at all for all concerned to reap the acme of pleasure, under such conditions. Kolb and Dill are naturally, and technically, fun-makers, and it comes so easy that nobody noted any especial effort on their part; the people on the house side of the footlights were the ones

SUNDAY CARD GAME

JOHN STEPHENSEN AND FIVE PLAYERS TAKEN—GOES TO THE GRAND JURY.

At 2 o'clock on Sunday morning Police Officers Linville and Houghton arrested John Stephensen, proprietor of a saloon at Seventh and Astor streets, on the charge of conducting a gambling game, and five of the alleged players were also arrested at the same time. All were taken to the police station, and later were released on bail of $25 each. The bail money was furnished by Stephensen for all of the five men and himself.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the cases against Stephensen and the five men were called in police court, but Captain Abercrombie, the city attorney, announced to the court that he had not prepared complaints and asked for a dismissal of the charges, on the ground that the matter is one which the grand jury should properly pass upon, especially as it is now in session. Judge Anderson therefore dismissed the cases.

The five men arrested are apparently fishermen. They are Charles Pretela, Hans Hantulla, Henry Ottola, Henry Gamasa, Alex Pettersson.

Accompanied by Acting Chief of Police Oberg, the proprietor of the saloon, Stephensen, later, went to the office of the prosecuting attorney, Mr. Tongue, and announced his willingness to appear before the grand jury, and it is presumed that that investigating body will look into the matter thoroughly.

Stephensen, the proprietor, stated to a reporter of the Morning Astoria last evening that the men were not gambling; he said that they were playing cards for cigars and for "soft drinks." He asserted emphatically that there was no real gambling going on. The table at which the game was being played is in sight from the street and that not the slightest effort was made to conceal the fact that the men were playing. Mr. Stephensen also avers that his saloon was not open for the sale of drinks, and while this game was being played in the saloon building, that the bar was tightly closed. At the police station very little money was found on the five men. The total amount would hardly buy a new hat.

"It was gambling and nothing but gambling," said Patrolman Linville, last evening. "The matter should have been tried in police court. This game started at 7 o'clock in the evening and up until midnight a big crowd of men stood around the table and watched the game. Chips were used; each chip representing so much money. The proprietor says that the men played for drinks, but if they had played for drinks from 7 o'clock in the evening until 2 o'clock the next morning one would naturally think that each man would have been pretty drunk by that time. They were sober when arrested."

C. J. Curtis, the attorney, appeared for the defendants, and he stated that he felt satisfied that his clients would have little difficulty in disproving the charge of gambling.

If evidence can be gained to substantiate the charge of gambling it is known that the prosecuting attorney's office will take up the matter vigorously.

who worked; the ached, and ached again, but the pace was hot and only one curtain to intervene for relief; but they stood it nobly and were sorry to go home.

The play is a mere skit; something to hang the endless wit on and accentuate it; to give zest and point and color to the beautiful melodies of the night; a vehicle for conveying the best lot of clean fun that Astoria has witnessed for many a day. It was refreshing, and that means much in this day of varied entertainment.

The great German comedians were ably supported by a galaxy of bright people, including Maude Lambert and Billy Clifford, Edith Whitely and Leola Maye, with a clever chorus of handsome girls to liven things with a brilliant lot of dancing and some of the very best of the topical songs and music of the hour. Taken from end to end, it was one of the heartiest and most enjoyable presentations made here in a long while, and the promise secured by Manager Hanlin, that they will play a return engagement here in the nearest possible future, is welcomed by everybody; only the sooner the better.
