SENSATIONAL THEFT OF TWO DOLLAR HAT

ENTERS STORE AND DECAMPS WITH HEADPIECE HURRIEDLY WITHOUT PAYING.

Filled to overflowing, not with enthusiasm, but with the beverage that intoxicates, a soldier proceeded to enjoy himself in his peculiar way by starting a "rough house" on Astor street a little after 7 o'clock last evening. His efforts to entertain the inmates of one of the houses by the attempt to change the locations of several of the objects in the room, much to the damage of same, being unappreciated, and such lack of appreciation being about to be shown by several men who had answered signals of distress, he hurriedly made his exit through one of the windows carrying it with him.

When he reached the street he was the possessor of a badly cut face but minus a hat. In this condition he found his way to Bond street without being captured. He presented a woeful appearance as he entered a small clothing store on that street near Tenth and asked for a hat. He was shown the head covering and under pretense of attempting to find money in his pockets to pay the price asked edged toward the entrance and suddenly decamped followed by the excited proprietor frantically crying out "catch him." Pursued and pursuer turned into Tenth street, headed for Commercial, the pursued handicapped by his condition, and the pursuer by his age and excited condition. Seeing a crowd approaching, attracted by the cries, the star of the occasion turned suddenly and darted into the alley in the rear of the Flavel building where he disappeared as if the earth had swallowed him. Officers Houghton and Thompson were immediately on the scene and although they made an exhaustive search under the buildings in the vicinity no trace of the man could be found. At a late hour last night he had not been apprehended. The value of the hat was $2, but it was evidently needed in a hurry and he got it.

"The consumer has the right to protection in the character of food which comes upon his table. This protection begins at the time the animals are being fed for slaughter. It continues during the time the animals are slaughtered and afterwards in the preparation of their carcasses for consumption. It does not end until the meat is delivered to the consumer properly certified as being sound and wholesome and warranted free from deleterious coloring matter and preservatives. The consumers of this country can have this protection if they demand it."

structure—chimneys, derricks, roofs had their precariously hung swarms of rosters. Outside the grounds for an hour preceding the calling of the game there was an almost uncontrollable crush.

Suddenly the corner gates to the diamond were opened and hundreds rushed madly to the sides of the field, fighting for places, stopping the practice of nines and causing confusion. But the police fought the crowd back and finally a sufficient margin of the field was maintained around the diamond. When the word, "Play ball", came, silence fell over all.

Thousands of cow bells and horns were unused. The game was on. It held the crowd under a spell. The players felt the tension. Chicago plainly showed it, and Sheppard facing Mathewson struck out. The deafening greeting of this beginning was in striking contrast when at the end the home team went out in one, two, three order, and rushed across the diamond to their club house. The two great innings of the game were the third and seventh. In the former Chicago made all its runs. In the latter opening up with enthusiasm, hopes were renewed, but died after one run which kept the company with that made in the first inning on the mammoth board far out afield.

BRYAN AT CONVENTION.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Addresses by Bryan and Pinchot, the latter being chairman of the National Conservation Commission, the reading of a letter from James J. Hill and short addresses by delegates and by a big reception at the Coliseum tonight were the features of the second day of the convention of the Lakes-to-Gulf Deep Waterway Association.

Bryan spoke earnestly for the deep waterways, not only from the lakes to the Gulf, but all other sections of the country where increased transportation facilities are needed. He was given an enthusiastic reception. Pinchot spoke on the various forms of waste of the natural resources and a committee of six was appointed to co-operate with him in his work.

A UNIFORM BILL OF LADING.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The western railroads have practically decided to adopt the same uniform bill of lading that has been accepted by the eastern roads. It is understood the western classification committee asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to adopt the provisions of the Eastern bill of lading on Nov. 1, instead of the Classification provisions which they have filed.

This action by the western roads is said to have greatly simplified the situation regarding the uniform bill of lading.

The eastern bill of lading exacts a ten per cent advance in the regular rates if the bill of lading be not used.

BANK EXAMINERS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Comptroller of the Currency Murray announced today that he had decided to put into action a plan for the formation of 11 districts of national bank examiners with a chairman who will preside over the quarterly meetings of all the examiners in each of the districts and at intervals between such meetings will keep in touch with the examiners of other districts. The co-operation of districts with the clearing house associations of the locality also is contemplated. District No. 11, will include Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and California, with six examiners, with headquarters in San Francisco with E. T. Wilson in charge.

"A STATESMAN WITH A CONSCIENCE."

Description of the Republican Presidential Candidate by Senator Borah of Idaho. (From Senator Borah's Boston Speech.)

"Now, it seems to be conceded by friend and foe that few men have been nominated for the presidency whose experience, whose training and whose sound and wholesome fashion of grasping and dealing with public questions were equal to those of William H. Taft.

"He is not a crusader, he is a statesman with conscience. He has won his present position through a cheerful, unhesitating and undeviating devotion to duty, through actually achieving things on the open field of action, through an intelligent conception of the strength and worth of our great government with its checks and balances; and the strength and capacity of our citizenship with its loyalty and its patriotism.

"No man ever had a deeper regard for the fundamental principles and precepts upon which this government is founded, and no one ever had a firmer conviction that the constitution is a sufficient chart by which to measure all rights and obligations and to gauge all the demands and all the aspirations and restrain and control all the recklessness of this indomitable race of ours. Trained in the law, eleven years on the bench, he explored well the sources of jurisprudence and carried away from his work an everlasting devotion to order and justice.

"Under all circumstances and under all emergencies, he has proved himself a brave, clean-minded, self-poised and courageous statesman. No man can put his finger upon a little or cowardly act, an incompetent or questionable piece of public service—no stain upon his private life, no shadow upon his public career. And standing now in the full fierce light which beats upon a throne, with eager eyes scrutinizing every act of a long and arduous public career, no doubt arises as to his experience and ability, no challenge comes to his fine sense of duty or his patriotism."

I believe our strong party with its great principles is only in its infancy. Our glory as a nation has but just begun. There are mighty problems yet to be solved, grave questions to be answered, complex issues to be wrought out, but I believe we can trust the Grand Old Party and its leaders to care for the entire future of our Nation and of our people as it has cared for them so well in the past.—Hon. James S. Sherman.

In Des Moines Mr. Bryan talked free trade, in Indianapolis sailed into corporations, and in Topeka proclaimed the necessity of the guarantee of bank deposits. Mr. Bryan is geographically adjustable at a moment's notice, and never dismayed when one of his paramount issues blows up.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The puzzle over the ten lost tribes is as nothing compared with the hiding place of Bryan's lost issues.

Bryan claims to be at once the father and heir of the Roosevelt policies. His brother Democrat, Judge Parker, denounces Rooseveltism. The family seems a little jarred.

Mr. Bryan says he is not going to worry about the negro vote. He will have enough to worry over the Democratic vote.

All of the blast furnaces in southern Illinois have been reopened, doing their share toward blasting Democratic hopes of success in that state.

Hon. Adlai Stevenson deems that he was ever a "knight of the golden circle," but was a prominent knight of the silver circle, which was just as bad.

An English writer says that Bryanism is a religion. Hardly that, as no one was ever saved by it.

Candidate Kern says that he is the left wing of the Bryan army. The record shows that both wings of the Bryan army are left.

the case, is, apparently, in the best of health after his long confinement and fortified by the presence of a host of devoted relatives and friends and a splendid battery of attorneys is content to face the issues that involve his life and liberty. The trial proper, will begin tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, all witnesses present being held, under order of the court, for that hour. The trial transcends, in importance, anything ever presented at the Wahkiakum county bar and the most moderate estimate of the cost of the case to the county is $10,000, mitigating for which is found in the fact that the county is clear of all public obligations and has the snug sum of $30,000 in her treasury. There are some vital and perhaps, sensational developments, inseparable from this trial, which will be unfolded in due course of the testimony presented and which are likely to occasion a wide range of eager and pointed concern to the members of the Washington and Oregon bars. The Astorian is in full possession of the facts and history leading up to the threatening and intensely interesting disclosures and will make them public when the moment of crisis impends. They are of a nature quite apart from anything that has ever arisen in the practice of another state and will cause a genuine uproar when they are brought to the front, if the people responsible for them shall invite the raw disclosure. Aside from this impending revelation, the trial of Mr. Campbell is progressing admirably under the Washington statutes and will have the most exact and adequate judicial treatment known to the code on this side of the river.

Cathlamet itself, is one of the liveliest centers on the north shore of the Columbia and is far and away the most beautifully located town in the river district. There is plenty of evidence of its civic and commercial pride and progress and its people are wholly alive to the close relation it bears to the general development of the valley. Its homes and business houses and plants are all in the finest order, its highways are under broad and intelligent plans of improvement, and in all its popular courses, it shows the impress and purpose of a generous, sensible and modern disposition to make the best of its chances as a point of commercial and civic importance.
