Whipple's Handcuffs Were Removed to Allow Him to Eat, and When Guard Turns His Back Prisoner Makes Dash For Liberty.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 15.—C. C. Whipple, alias Calley, alias Dr. S. G. Jarrick, who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Walters on a charge of forgery, jumped from the North Bank train yesterday while it was going at a speed of 40 miles an hour and made good his escape. Sheriff Eubanks of Pasco, Wash., from whom he escaped, is in hot pursuit, but Whipple is still at large.

Whipple was handcuffed before being taken aboard the train at the Vancouver depot yesterday morning as he was known to have shown fight on several occasions. When the train reached White Salmon a lunch for the prisoner was secured and as soon as the train pulled out of the station his handcuffs were removed to allow him to eat. When the sheriff was a few feet away Whipple quickly went to the door of the coach and jumped far out from the moving train. He was seen in the act by members of the train crew and the sheriff, and the train was stopped at once, but the prisoner had made good his escape into the bushes. A member of the train crew declares that Whipple must have had previous experience with leaving fast moving trains, so well did he do the leap yesterday.
