

WARRENTON SENDS UP A FRIENDLY BUDGET

RECENT HAPPENINGS IN THE WEST SIDE METROPOLIS

Saturday evening the Ladies' Aid Society gave a supper in the hotel for the benefit of Mrs. Caruthers who is ill in the hospital. All the ladies of Warrenton assisted. The tables were laden with everything the market afforded, and nicely served by the young ladies. The supper was well patronized and a neat sum realized. A dance was given in the evening in Warren's hall by the young men, and as the music and hall were donated, it was a success financially as well as socially. This was also for Mrs. Caruthers' benefit.

The Warrenton hotel opened Sunday morning under new management, Nelly Bebes of Astoria having assumed charge.

The school clerk in his district is busy taking the census, and is rounding up a goodly number between the ages of 20 and 4 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Schmidt have returned to Warrenton and are occupying one of the Sherman houses.

Rumor has it that the Old Oregon mills will start up after the first of the year and many signs seem to point in that direction.

Mr. Tudor Smith and Miss Edna Wallingford, both of Warrenton, were married in Astoria Saturday and were receiving congratulations at the party that evening.

Mrs. Dell Moore was a guest of Mrs. G. T. Moore over Sunday.

Mrs. E. L. Shont of Long Beach, Wash., has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Bird, at Seaside, and on her way home is visiting her old friends, Dr. Owens-Adair and Mrs. S. S. Munson.

Philharmonic Society

entire range. Dr. Enna led as he never led before and found abundant compensation in the unalloyed and spontaneous pleasure his work yielded to his cultured auditors. It was, par excellence, the event of the 1908 season.

The Philharmonic Society choruses were splendidly given and every member sustained the high reputation this fine local group has achieved in its work to date and served to make the achievement of the evening the essential and permanent standard by which to gauge everything they may attempt in the future.

Every soloist of the night was at his and her best; there was not a false note in the myriads that fell from voice and instrument during the unfolding of the long and rich program. Miss Reba Hobson's beautiful soprano was heard at its best in the aria of Johanna and in the rich melodies of "The Sea Maiden," and was promptly and fully acknowledged by the delighted house. Mr. Roberts' superb baritone charmed, as it always does here, in his splendid assignments, "Ever Bravest Heart," from Faust, and in the three ringing ballads, "The Wanderer's Song," "The Old Black Mare," and "Blow Thou Winter Wind," in all of which he but added to the pleasurable conviction with which musical Astoria already regards him. Mrs. W. T. A. Bushong, the contralto premiere of the evening, was particularly happy in her rendering of the melodies from the opera, "The Mountain King," in which she figured as the Queen, singing deliciously every word and line of the spirited numbers, and receiving instant and emphatic acknowledgment. To Miss Clarina Rogers, cellist, fell the very distinct approbation of the eager house; her work being of such pronounced excellence in Thome's Andante Religioso as to win her the most cordial expressions of delight which could not be construed in any but the most generous light. Naturally, all Astoria was ready for the pleasure certain to be had from the singing of Miss Laura McCann, whose glorious alto was heard to wonderful advantage in Saint Saen's "My Heart, At Thy Sweet Voice"; and unhappily, in no other number as Miss McCann did not respond to the encors granted. Miss Hattie Wise delighted the audience with one of her most effective renderings of Mendelssohn's brilliant caprices, (Op. 22) on the piano and was roundly thanked by her appreciative auditors. Miss Esther Sundquist gave a superb exhibition of her acknowledged mastery of the violin, in one of Vieuxtemp's wonderful numbers, and for an encore gave the exquisite numbers of Greque's Elsa's Death, and, as usual, received deserved and prolonged applause. As concertmeister, Frank Eichenlaub, of Portland, was perfectly at home, and guided his confreres imitatively through the mazes of the wide range of instrumentation demanded of him and them, to the complete satisfaction of the listening hundreds. The trio work of Mrs. A. A. Finch, soprano; Mrs. J. T. Allen, alto; and Miss Nellie Utringer, contralto, was of the ever pleasing kind Astorians have learned to expect from this accomplished group and lacked nothing in the way of cordial recognition at all points. And the Misses Anna Campbell and Louise Wise, as the accompanists of the evening, added distinctly to the universal pleasure of the hour, by the faithful and brilliant work.

First and last the concert was a thoroughly delightful and wholly appreciated event and will be remembered for many a long year. The Astoria Philharmonic Society is splendidly and happily launched as one of the defacto musical organizations of the State and of the Northwest.
