Captain Fair, of the steamship Uganda which entered port yesterday, reports that while he was maneuvering for an entrance to this port on Sunday morning last, the training ship Herzogia* Cecelie, which has been off this river for some days awaiting her orders (which are not yet delivered to her, by the way) bore up into the neighborhood, and before she realized it the wind had failed her and for a few moments it looked as though the Uganda would have to steam to the relief of the German ship and aid her to an offing; but she caught a catspaw of wind, and with every inch of canvas serving her hauled in to deep water and seemed pretty glad of it.

The steamship Senator, from San Francisco, arrived in at the O. R. & N. piers yesterday a little before noon, and with but few passengers on board. Captain Nopander, of the State of California was on the bridge much to the pleasure of his Astoria clientele. She left up for the metropolis at 12:30.

The recent storm seems to have played havoc with the range light towers lately put up by the government on Sand Island, the one on the seaward end of the island having been canted over until it leans far out of plumb and will have to be righted before it can be utilized at all.

There is practically 100 pounds of mail matter at the office of Acting British Consul E. M. Cherry for the North German Lloyd Steamship Company's training ship Herzogia Sophie Charlotte, which will be despatched to her forthwith by that gentleman.

The steamer Lurline was on duty at schedule hours last night and went to Portland with a good load of freight and the following named passengers: A. Dunbar, G. Barber, Dean Blanchard, J. C. Kennedy, Mrs. D. C. Stoner, J. G. Howells, Harry Havello, P. F. Olsen, and D. Buyer.

The river-towboat Shaver arrived down early on Sunday morning to tow the oil barge No. 3, hence to Portland, but she did not get away with her load until yesterday noon, and then made a slow progress of it across the bay.

The Coos Bay packets made it as usual here on Sunday last; the Alliance coming down from Portland and passing out, and the Breakwater came in and after her usual stop here, went on to the metropolis.

The steamship Geo. W. Elder which was due in this port last evening from the coast of California, will probably enter this morning, as she has been in the custom of doing lately.

The steamer Homer was among the Sunday arrivals in this port, coming up from San Francisco. She deposited 80 tons of freight on the Callender dock before going on to the metropolis.

The Wasp, from San Francisco, was another San Francisco liner to show up here on Sunday. She went on to Portland and will load lumber outward from there.

The British steamship Uganda arrived in yesterday from Nansimo, B. C., and went on to Portland where she will load grain out for Europe.

The steamer Grace Dollar was one of the craft to arrive here yesterday, hailing from San Francisco, and bound for Prescott, where she will load lumber for the return voyage.

The four-masted schooner Taurus arrived down yesterday from Stella, lumber laden for the Bay City, and will make it over the bar as soon as it subsides a bit.

Captain Wicklund, of the Point Adams life saving station, was in the city yesterday on matters of interest connected with his post.

ASTORIA MOURNS FOR R. M. LEATHERS

PROMINENT AND RESPECTED CITIZEN BREATHED HIS LAST YESTERDAY.

After long weeks of illness, during which everything that human science and tender ministrations could suggest was done in mitigation of his malady pericarditis, Richard Marshall Leathers, one of Astoria's best and most deeply respected citizens, breathed his last at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at his beautiful hill-home, on Exchange street in this city.

For sometime there has been a good deal of apprehension among the host of friends he possessed here, as to whether he could and would rally from the affliction, and the anxiety reached far beyond his household, and with that of his family's, ceased only with the sad intelligence of his death yesterday. Mr. Leathers was a comparatively young man and this lends emphasis to his taking away, being but 51 years of age. He was born in Redwood City, California, on the 8th of September, 1857, and was one of seven children born to Peter and Ellen Sullivan Leathers, his parents, both of whom preceded him in death. Mr. Leathers leaves to mourn him, his devoted widow, Mrs. Annie O'Neill Leathers, and a baby son; beside two sisters, Mrs. Klöcksen, of Palo Alto, California, and Miss Mary Leathers, of Napa, in that state, and one brother, Benjamin Leathers, of Bremerton,

Captain Crowe, the well known lumber surveyor for the San Francisco board of Marine Underwriters, was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

The O. R. & N. steamer, the popular Hassalo, is back on her Astoria-Portland run, in fine shape and condition, and resumed business here yesterday morning.

The steamer Atlas, with barge No. 3, on her tow-lines, entered port yesterday morning, and both proceeded Portland-ward at once.

The big trans-Pacific liner Alesia is still in this port, the Columbia bar still being a bit too ponderous for her safe passage outward.

THE MAN SAID

"Two years ago you papered my house and it looks just as good as it did when you finished the work." That sounds good to us.

Perhaps we will not be able to get another job from him for some time but when he needs work we know just about where he will spend his money. Workmanship is remembered long after price is forgotten.

IT'S A GOOD THING TO REFER to the reputation of a store before making any important purchases therein. Before you buy is the time to look up the matter. Ask questions. Find out if the store you intend patronizing keeps its pledges. Be sure that you learn if it sells the qualities it claims; if it treats its customers honestly and fairly, then, if satisfied, buy there. Do all the asking you wish about us among your friends, and that you will result in your coming here regularly.

who will arrive here today on this mournful quest.

At the present writing it is the intention of the family to give the remains sepulture at Portland, under the auspices of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, and within the pale of his faith, the Catholic church; but the announcement of final arrangements must wait upon the decision of those most deeply concerned and will probably be made known in tomorrow's issue of the Morning Astorian.

The news of "Dick" Leathers' death yesterday afternoon cast a gloom on all who heard it, and on every side were heard expressions of profound goodwill for the deceased and genuine sorrow that he could not have lived on and made still better use of the life he honored in every way it is given man to do. His character for high purpose and unflinching integrity was universal on this coast, and in this city, where he was known longest and best, he stood upright and unsullied, a good man in every sense of the word. It is conceded by everyone that Astoria has lost a valuable citizen in the death of Mr. Leathers, and this conviction is based upon 27 long years of intimate, friendly and business association that most happily justifies the kindest thing said of him.

R. M. Leathers was known as one of the most skilful and successful builders of small craft on the Pacific Coast, having served a long apprenticeship in the yards and shops of John Reid, the famous boat builder of San Francisco, away back in the "Eighties." He maintained a fine business here for years and turned out a fleet of launches, fishboats and pleasure-craft that has reflected wide and honest credit upon this conscientious artisan, who, it is said by those who know him and his work, never turned out a poor piece of work in his career. He has worked at his trade on all sections of the Pacific Coast, from Alaska to Mexico, and there is many a sturdy little vessel to bear witness to the craftsmanship and business faith that inspired all his work. He was of quiet and reserved manner, but always amenable to the kindnesses and courtesies of life and employed them himself in every relation with the result that his friends were legion. In business he was firm, exact and scrupulously careful, good to his men and absolutely fair in all things; socially he was a delightful host and a warm friend and generous in all directions where his purse might proffer relief to his less successful fellows; and dying, he leaves every manly virtue accentuated since they must be recalled that justice may be done him.

He was a member of Temple Lodge No. 7, A. F. & A. M., of this city, and of Astoria Lodge No. 180, B. P. O. E., and devoted to both great orders and all they stood for among men.

Mrs. Leathers has the abounding sympathy of the wide range of friends and neighbors and citizens who have known her and her husband through the years here and she was the recipient yesterday of manifold expressions of condolence and comfort, all of which were deeply appreciated. She is well known in this city, as girl and woman, and has innumerable friends to aid her in bearing the great grief of her life. Mrs. Leathers was a graduate of the State Normal School, at Monmouth, in the class of 1897.

Fell Into Creek—
While down at his ranch at Clatsop on Sunday Mr. Lounsberry, the popular clerk of the water commission, fell into Cullaby creek and got both cold and wet. Fortunately he suffered no bad consequences from the dip into the chilly waters and was at the office as usual yesterday.

Mr. Lounsberry, accompanied by Mrs. Lounsberry, their son Lester, and the hired man from the ranch, were rowing up the creek when they came to a place where several logs barred further progress. Mr. Lounsberry stepped out onto one of the logs to help get the boat past, when the log turned and down he went with a splutter. He tried to hang onto the log but couldn't, but finally the boat was forced near him and he climbed up into it. While the incident closed cheerfully enough, had Mr. Lounsberry not been able to swim the episode might have ended much more seriously.

Foley's Honey and Tar clears the air passages, stops the irritation in the throat, soothes the inflamed membranes, and the most obstinate cough disappears. AMUSEMENTS

"WHERE IS MY WANDERING BOY TONIGHT"

Elmer Walters has inserted the words and music of the sweet old song for the rise of the curtain of the second act of "A Millionaire Tramp" because it carries with it the sentiment of so many mothers whose sons are adventurous. The music peels out from the church organ and the song is sung by trained voices just as the curtain ascends upon the scene of The Church of the Holy Cross.

What makes the song particularly effective in this play is the appearance of old Mr. and Mrs. Trumbull whose son has left the old homestead after an argument with the father and has vowed to seek his fortune alone and unaided. The son's whereabouts has been unknown for six months and the singing of the old song by the choir as old Mrs. Trumbull enters the church for evening service is said to bring moisture to the eyes of many in the audience even before dialogue has been spoken.

"HIP! HIP! HOORAH!"

Weber and Field's burlesque is always of the best and most amusing type. Rice and Cady who have taken their place in their German dialect comedy are starring in "Hip! Hip! Hoorah!" which ran an entire season at Weber's Music Hall and in which they will be seen here at the Astoria Theatre on November 29 for one night. It is a great big splendid production direct from Broadway where Jos. Weber's prodigality in staging is a by-word. The girls are pretty, the songs irresistible and the entire production crowded with gaiety and high spirits.

SWINTON

But very few lots are left in the original plat of Swinton. The sale has been phenomenal. Many people have seen the opportunity and seized it. Others have failed to do so and regret it.

The demand for Swinton lots has been so great that the Columbia Trust Company has been induced to file a new plat comprising Blocks 41 to 54, in all less than 400 lots. This new section adjoins the old plat of Swinton on the south, lying between Russett and Bryant streets, and is as choice as any part of Swinton. It is high and level and overlooks every lot in the old plat, shade trees are bountiful and the view is superb. At the rate the first 600 lots sold this new plat will not last over 30 days.

To the early buyers we will offer a 10 per cent discount, as we did in the original plat. This discount is only for a short time pending the progress of the improvements and is subject to recall without notice.
Don't delay to make an early selection.
